England May Halt Normal Industry to Push Rearmament

Sir Thomas Inskip Predicts 3-Year Stop in Trade to Speed 7½-Billion Dollar Defense Program.

World Rearmament Developments.

The British minister of defense co-ordination declared the nation's normal industry may have to stand still for the next three years while the nation perfects its armaments.

The Air Ministry asked $412,500,000 for air defense alone, pushing Britain's war-machine budget over the billion-dollar mark for 1937, and revealed plans for caging in London with a ring of steel cables to block any enemy plane from breaking through in time of war.

Scotchmen were warned they may have to pay extra taxes so Britain can go ahead with rearmament.

A Nazi newspaper predicted a new European war "if British policy continues to pursue the aim of preventing by armed force the national revival of peoples and their economic independence."

The House of Representatives here passed a half-billion dollar naval appropriation bill, narrowly rejecting an amendment asking President Roosevelt to call an international disarmament conference.

Industry May Halt.

By the Associated Press.

Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, March 5.—Sir Thomas Inskip, defense coordination minister, declared tonight Great Britain's normal industry may have to stand still for the next three years while the nation perfects its armaments.

In a speech considered one of the most significant since England became alarmed over her war-time safety, Sir Thomas suggested that, because of a shortage of steel, erection of new buildings and reconstruction of old ones should be postponed. Thus, he said, the government would not be handicapped in its five-year $7,500,000,000 rearmament program.

"It would be no bad thing," he declared, "if some orders were postponed two or three years while contractors are busy on the government program."

"I hope other nations will not be unmindful of the determination of the old, proud nation to defend itself, even to the very end," the minister said.

It had been known previously that British aircraft concerns were so occupied with government orders that they were not making an attempt to meet private demands.

This was the first indication, however, that the government would permit the rearmament program to interfere with normal domestic demands in other fields.

Sir Thomas announced negotiations were nearing completion for acquisition of the Scotswood Locomotive Works, to be converted into a munitions factory.

Passes Billion Mark.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 5.—Britain's war-machine budget topped the billion-dollar mark for 1937 today with the air ministry proposing to "cage in" the capital from air raids and asking £82,500,000 ($412,500,000) for air defense alone.

Viscount Swinton, secretary of state for air, said large fleets of balloons would be sent into the air at the first alarm of a hostile raid. These balloons would drop a network of steel cables caging in the city and blocking any enemy plane from breaking through.

He added the royal air force would be increased to 70,000 officers and men with a first line strength of 1,750 aircraft formed in 124 squadrons.

Total Cost Soars.

The air estimates pushed the 1937 cost of Great Britain's national defense to £269,739,000 ($1,348,695,000), the navy already has asked $525,325,000, and the army, $410,870,000.

Lord Swinton said the air force personnel, as planned for this year, represents an increase of 20,000 men over 1936.

He told the House of Commons that by April 1, the Royal Air Force will number 100 squadrons stationed at home, 20 serving with the fleet and 26 squadrons in the Dominions.

Organization of the Metropolitan Air Force for the protection of London already is well under way, he said, with orders for the balloons needed to lay the barrage about London already placed and some received.

Six factories for making airplane engines are to be completed in a few months.

13 New Airdromes.

The air minister, further explaining the program, said 13 new airdromes are already in use, five civil airdromes have been converted to the Royal Air Force use, and work is under way for 26 additional sites with more to be acquired during the year.

The ministry's estimates included a total of $10,575,000, more than doubling 1936, for civil aviation.

The ministry requested a subsidy of $80,000 for the Imperial Airways for the projected Bermuda to New York service which Swinton said he hoped would be started in con-

U. S. Defense Speeded.

By Sidney Olson.

The House last night passed a bill appropriating $526,555,428 for the Navy for the fiscal year of 1937-1938.

No record vote was taken, but the minority bloc of "little navy" advocates was whipped soundly on every limiting amendment.

Consternation came to the majority forces, however, when Representative William B. Umstead (Democrat), North Carolina, suddenly proposed an amendment asking President Roosevelt to call an international disarmament conference.

Violent debate broke into the lethargy of dozing House members. The majority leader, Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, was hastily summoned; Rayburn talked the matter over with Umstead, who sat, pale and grim in his seat, shaking his head. Apparently unable to get Umstead to withdraw his amendment, the bald, pink-faced Texan stalked to the well of the House, buttoning his double-breasted brown coat with determined fingers.

Rayburn Cracks Whip.

There, for the first time since his selection as majority leader, the dapper Southerner wielded the Administration influence. In a very short statement he called the amendment a "great mistake," and added: "Whether we vote this amendment up or down, we may be misunderstood."

The vote was called for, and the amendment lost, as the Administration forces squeaked through to victory by a tally of 81-66.

This was the first time that Rayburn had openly exercised his influence in the House since January 28, when, according to cloak-room gossip, he had the lights in the House chamber turned off halting debate, while Administration whips scoured the House Office buildings and committee rooms to round up members to beat down objections to the Postmasters' civil service bill.

Yesterday the sunlight streamed so brilliantly through the skylights above the chamber that the turning

Study Begun On Nepotism In D. C. Jobs

A carefully concealed investigation of nepotism in the District government was launched yesterday under orders of the House District Appropriations Committee.

District Auditor Daniel Donovan was ordered to start the investigation after he presented the committee with results of a survey showing the numbers of District employes who have outside jobs.

But so quietly was Donovan proceeding with the second survey that both Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and George E. Allen declared they had not even heard it had been ordered.

Acted on Complaints.

Donovan, himself, was absent from his office most of the afternoon and when finally located by reporters declared over the telephone that he could neither deny nor confirm reports he was conducting the nepotism investigation.

Members of the House Committee became curious, it was learned, after hearing complaints that relatives of District officials seemed immune from dismissal when retrenchments became necessary at the District building.

It was reported that one District official had a score of near and distant relatives on various governmental pay rolls whose annual salary exceeded $40,000.

It could not be learned from Donovan whether the investigation of nepotism would embrace the pay rolls of the District WPA as well as those of the regular municipal departments.

The survey of outside employment, it was learned, did not affect employes of the District WPA. Only employes of the regular departments were required to fill out the questionnaires.

Results Not Disclosed.

Results of the survey could not be obtained at the District Building, but it was reported that only approximately 100 of the nearly 11,000 District employes admitted they had outside employment.

What use the Appropriations Committee intends to make of the circulars was a mystery on Capitol Hill.

At the District Building employes were at a loss to understand what had prompted the nepotism probe. The Commissioners, who pass on all appointments, have been unusually chary of appointing relatives.

Commissioner Hazen has only one relative on the municipal pay rolls, a niece, Miss Margaret Davis, secretary of the ABC Board. Commissioner Allen has never placed a relative on District pay rolls.

Court Approves Montana Assembly 'Sit-Down Strike'

Helena, Mont., March 5 (U.P.).—Recalcitrant lawmakers kept the 1937 session of the Montana State Legislature alive 24 hours after constitutional adjournment tonight in the Nation's first legislative sit-down strike.

A House bloc refused to adjourn until appropriation bills had been passed. Another bloc sought to force adjournment and a special session so that measures killed previously could be revived.

The House, where the revolt originated, called a temporary truce to permit members to eat dinner, after the State Supreme Court turned down a legal move for an injunction instituted by a minority seeking a special session. The Senate continued in executive session behind locked doors.

Hazen Demands Co-operation As 32d Victim of Traffic Dies

By Howard F. Wentworth.

(Winner of first prize in the Nation-wide C. I. T. Safety Contest with his 1936 series appearing in The Post.)

Thirty-two persons dead.
Three killed within as many days.
Scores maimed and crippled.

6th of a Series

This, is the District's 1937 traffic toll—a record which has forced city officials to plead, preach and finally demand public co-operation toward greater highway safety. "And," said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday, "we are powerless to end this killing—to provide adequate protection for our citizens—unless they awaken to the problem. Without co-operation and support, we can enforce laws and spread safety education until doomsday with little results."

In Emergency Hospital yesterday the year's thirty-second traffic victim died of injuries received Wednesday night. He was George A. Neal, 64, 3425 Eastern avenue, Mount Rainier, Md. Neal—the third fatality within as many days—was struck by an automobile at Ninth and D streets northwest, police reported.

William A. Sperper, 333 N street southwest, driver of the car, was not held. Witnesses said Neal stepped into the street before Sperper could stop his car and avoid the accident.

From all corners of the country—the District included—traffic authorities have issued repeated appeals for pedestrian and motorist co-operation in the relentless battle against death on the highway.

"We must force both driver and pedestrian to realize what we are attempting to do; to realize his own danger and to realize that he must aid us if the problem is to be solved," said Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Foremost traffic experts of the country agree to importance of the three "E's" in motoring safety—enforcement, education and engineering.

But they also agree the motoring and walking public must do its share in order to assure success of safety measures and produce ultimate reductions in traffic fatality rates.

As a constant reminder of street dangers, New York City officials recently erected large yellow signs at busy downtown intersections. They read: "Walk on proper lights, cross at crossing, don't stand in the street, beware of DEATH!"

And a rapidly decreasing pedestrian traffic toll has been noted in that city during the last several months.

Seeking to test motorist co-opera-

U. S. Legation Raid Reported With 160 Slain

Italian Troops Said to Have Entered Quarters, Killed Refugees.

By the United Press.

London (Saturday), March 6.—The United Press was informed today by a source which usually is reliable that Italian soldiers invaded the United States Legation in Addis Ababa and slaughtered 160 Ethiopians who had sought refuge there.

According to the report the incident occurred after Ethiopians had thrown bombs at Viceroy Rodolfo Graziani two weeks ago.

The informant understood the State Department in Washington either has protested or will protest to the Italian government.

Today's report was considered especially significant in view of the announcement that the United States Minister, Cornelius Van H. Engert, was being withdrawn from Addis Ababa.

The United States has never recognized Italian authority over Ethiopia. The legation there has remained open since Italian troops took over the Ethiopian capital, when Emperor Haile Selassie fled last spring.

(In Washington, James Clement Dunn, chief of the Division of Western European Affairs of the State Department, said he knew "nothing at all" about the reported incident.)

Engert's Departure Final.

By the Associated Press.

The State Department decided yesterday to withdraw diplomatic representatives from Ethiopia. In so doing, the department said, the question of recognizing the African nation as a part of the Italian Empire was not affected.

Widener Race Ratings Addled By Rainstorm

Denemark Entries Face Threat in Martin's White Cockade.

By Walter Haight.

Hialeah Park, Miami, Fla., March 5.—Angry tropical skies drenched this beautiful race track this afternoon and brought a chorus of "hold those selections" from the army of so-called turf experts gathered for tomorrow's running of the $50,000 added Widener Challenge Cup race. Before Mother Nature poured water in the proverbial buckets full, the boys who pick one horse for the paper and play another, had come to the conclusion that the Widener would be a hop, skip and a few jumps for Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance.

HAIGHT.

With the prospect of an off track, if not a muddy one, the race becomes a rather open affair due chiefly to Finance's dislike for anything except a fast track.

A record field of 19 was named in the overnight entries for the rich stake which climaxes this track's

Wife Dies by Gas As Gift to Spouse On Anniversary

"This is our second wedding anniversary and this is my present to you."

When John Bennett, taxi driver, returned to his modest home in the 1100 block of Mount Olivet road northeast early today he found this note on the door and smelled gas.

He broke in the door and found the body of his wife, Mrs. Helen Bennett, 21, sprawled on the kitchen floor. She had turned on the jets in the kitchen stove and committed suicide. Bennett told police they had quarrelled.

Before turning on the gas, Mrs. Bennett carefully gathered up her pet poodle and led him to safety outside the house. He was whining for his mistress when his master burst in on the death scene.

Police said Mrs. Bennett was blonde, pretty and clad in an artistic smock.

Fatal Air Crash Caused By Dropped Microphone

New York, March 5 (AP).—The Herald-Tribune says the Bureau of Air Commerce has been given evidence that a pilot's radio telephone microphone, inadvertently dropped by its user, jammed the controls and caused the crash of the big airliner in San Francisco Bay February 9 in which 11 persons lost their lives.

The paper says the Government bureau is expected to make this information public shortly in a written report, but that the cause of the crash was disclosed by official notices posted at Newark Airport today.

Lewis Calls C. I. O. Parley Here Tuesday

Leaders to Map Drive to Enlist 1,200,000 Textile Workers.

Green Refuses Bid to War on Rival Union in Steel Industry.

The Labor Situation.

John L. Lewis summoned the Committee for Industrial Organization to meet in Washington Tuesday to consider future steps, including a drive to enlist 1,200,000 textile workers.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, refused to join a drive by opponents of the C. I. O. to check the C. I. O. campaign in the steel industry.

At New York, President J. J. Mara, of the International Boot and Shoe Workers Union, promised "open battle" against the C. I. O.

Tactics Session.

By William V. Nessly.

John L. Lewis announced yesterday his Committee for Industrial Organization will meet here Tuesday to review its work in the automobile and steel organizing campaigns and chart its future course in other industries.

At the same time the Massachusetts Federation of Labor declined to join in the war on Lewis' activities, as asked by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. It replied to Green that all union workers in the State "share a common objective"—the welfare of the workers.

These developments came in the midst of turbulent developments in the steel labor field, in which employe representatives of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation began a reorganization in order to oppose more effectively Lewis' drive to supplant their form of organization.

Follows League Parley.

The grievance committee of the employe representation plan, which Lewis calls a company union, sent an appeal to Green to help them in their fight on the Lewis union, which was granted a contract only this week by the corporation.

Green promptly refused, agreeing with Lewis, his rival for leadership of American labor, that employe representation bodies are "corporation dominated" and wiring

Aid Officer Dies On Date Warning Set for His Death

Poplar Bluff, Mo., March 5 (AP).—Delois F. Teed, 40-year-old Federal Relief Administrator for Butler County, died in his office here late today—the day he was marked for death in an abusive letter received a week ago.

The note warned Teed to get out of town within seven days "or it will be judgment day for you." Today was the "seventh day."

Department of Justice agents revealed Teed had turned a copy of the letter over to them. Coroner Grover Greer said "it is possible that worry over the warning may have influenced a sudden heart attack."

Employes at the relief offices said that a few days ago Teed received a petition signed by six men who had been cut off the relief rolls. The petition condemned the relief official for his method in handling affairs.

Revolt of Democrats Forecast After Court Attack by Roosevelt

Wallace Urges Crippling Tax On Crops Exceeding Quotas

By Russell Smith.

The "big stick" which will force recalcitrant farmers to comply with the Administration's new farm program should be a prohibitive tax on production above fixed quotas, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has informed the House Agriculture Committee.

The punitive tax would be imposed as the fourth, and last resort, step in a four-step program for storage of surplus output in years of good crops for release in following years of poor crops, the program Wallace designates as the "ever-normal granary."

Presentation of the proposal, which rounds out farm policy for the remainder of the Roosevelt Administration unless that policy is modified by farm pressure, was disclosed to The Post yesterday by Administrator H. R. Tolley of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Except for the provision that the proceeds of the tax will go to the general Treasury, the principle of the assessment is that of the outlawed AAA, as it relates to benefit payments, for the funds collected would be redistributed to farmers who co-operated in the program.

In its punitive provisions it even more strongly resembles the taxes laid under the Bankhead cotton, Kerr-Smith tobacco and Warren potato acts, all of which were designed to force compliance with a commodity production control program.

Since the President requested repeal of these acts following the Supreme Court's AAA decision, on the ground that that decision equally affected the commodity taxes,

Senator Planning Reply to President From New York City.

Wheeler Says Talk 'Inflamed Passions'

Burke Predicts Change in Party Ranks if Plan Succeeds.

By Robert C. Albright.

Stirred to resentment by the President's "Victory" day assault on the Supreme Court, Democratic opponents of his judiciary program yesterday pledged a "bitter end" fight to defeat it and forecast "a new alignment of parties before 1940" if the President wins and the court is remodeled.

The severity of the President's indictment caught opponents off guard, but they quickly announced plans for a four-way reply in New York's Carnegie Hall next Friday, when Democratic Senators from North, South, East and West will strike out in rebuttal.

Smarting particularly under Roosevelt's assertion that "substantially the same elements" which opposed him in the campaign are fighting his court plan, the Democratic opposition reacted with tight-lipped silence, grim "off-the-record" comments or forthright criticism.

Burke Predicts Cleavage.

Senators Edward R. Burke, of Nebraska, and Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, two spearheads of the fight on the court plan, spoke out boldly in condemnation. It was Burke who predicted a new party alignment if the plan succeeds, intimating a cleavage on States' rights lines. Senator Wheeler, who will reply on the radio the night after President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" next Tuesday, found fault with the character of the President's arguments.

"I regret that the President had to inflame the passions of the people with the implication that the Supreme Court was to blame for the Dust Bowl and the Ohio floods," said Wheeler. "The opposition tried to keep the argument on a higher plane."

Following a conference of the opposition, Burke and Wheeler said their lines were holding firm. Wheeler recessed his railroad hearings for three weeks to concentrate his energies against the court proposals. Burke was revising a previously scheduled radio speech tonight, to answer the President's victory dinner address.

Administration leaders, on the other hand, swung to the President's support, with comments ranging all the way from Speaker Bankhead's "it was a crackerjack" to Senator Alben W. Barkley's "it will put fight into the supporters of the judiciary plan both in Congress and the country."

The evasive observation of Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, was typical of the "noncommittals'" comment. "Yes, I heard the President's speech," said Lonergan. "It's a nice day, isn't it?"

Radio broadsides for and against the plan continued last night. Sydney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, and one of the founders of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and Labor's Non-Partisan League, appealed for labor support over the radio. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo (Democrat), California, and Gen. Hugh Johnson, former NRA administrator, broadcast further arguments for the plan, while Representative U. S. Guyer, of Kansas, ranking minority member of the House Judiciary Committee, roadioed a denunciation of it.

Walsh to Talk.

The Senate opposition's Carnegie Hall forum against the program next Friday night will bring out for the first time a strong Senate voice, hitherto silent—that of Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, it was learned. Other Senators who will speak in opposition at the New York meeting will be Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia; Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, and Senator Burke. Within the next week, Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, is expected to join the radio offensive against the plan.

One Southern Democrat, who declined to be quoted, said yesterday that the President's Victory Dinner speech meant unmistakably that the Supreme Court issue will be fought out in the 1938 Congressional campaign, whether or not the six-judge Supreme Court enlargement plan is

Dentist Knew Who Betrayed Virginia Girl

By Edward T. Folliard.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charlottesville, Va., March 5.—Police today "raided" the office of Dr. Richard G. Miller, 53-year-old dentist, charged with the chloroform murder of Cleo Sprouse. They carried out four bundles which included several bottles.

Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife said no chloroform was found in the dentist's office.

"Dr. Miller's contention that she succumbed to a small dose of chloroform just doesn't stand up in the light of other developments," Fife said.

"Disproving" Confession.

"It can be definitely stated that no attempt at an abortion had been made on the girl, who would normally have become a mother in five months. What we are now doing here is designed to disprove certain parts of the confession that don't satisy me by a long shot."

Dr. Miller, a friend of the Sprouse family for 20 years, confessed two days ago en route to a Richmond jail that the girl died from a dose of chloroform while he was preparing to perform an illegal operation on her.

As Sheriff J. Mason Smith announced further details of the alleged oral confession of Dr. Miller, friends of the dentist recalled that he was wounded accidentally while hunting about four months ago.

In climbing a wire fence while on a turkey-shooting expedition, Dr. Miller's 12-gauge shotgun was discharged, it was learned. Several shot penetrated his head and he had been complaining of headaches since.

Girl Named Betrayer.

Sheriff Smith quoted Dr. Miller as saying the girl told him the name of a sweetheart who was responsible for her pregnancy.

"He said," the sheriff told reporters, "that Cleo has given him the name of the man, but that he had forgotten it.

"He said the name was not familiar to him and meant nothing to him.

"He told us that Cleo begged him to perform the operation and that she died from the effects of chloroform while he was preparing to do the operation."

Sheriff Smith said Dr. Miller told him he drank a pint of gin after the girl died, but felt no effects from it. Searchers found the empty bottle today.

The authorities today set out to

Slavs Seize 91 Bound to Spain On French Ship

Yugoslav Cutter Halts Vessel; France Denies Morocco Plan.

By the United Press.

Belgrade, Yugoslavia (Saturday), March 6.—A Yugoslav coast guard cutter today was reported to have stopped a French steamer, La Corse, off Dubrovnik and arrested 91 Yugoslavs allegedly bound for Spain.

Denies Fascist Charge.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 5.—The French foreign office tonight termed "ridiculous" a charge by the Spanish insurgent regime that France is fomenting trouble in Spanish Morocco as a pretext for an invasion.

The diplomatic staff of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, whose armies hold the territory, accused the French of secretly concentrating arms on the border.

Officials asserted France was keenly interested in developments in Spanish Morocco, but was convinced her colonial interests in North Africa could be safeguarded sufficiently by insisting on maintenance of treaty provisions affecting Morocco.

The insurgent diplomatic cabinet said it had lodged a strong protest with all signatory powers to the Algeciras convention, asserting any attempt at aggression against Spanish Morocco would be met with "an adequate reply."

"Inciting Natives" Charged.

The insurgents charged heavy concentration of French troops along the frontier constituted "an action of inciting the natives of the frontier zone.."

Terming the French activities a "flagrant violation" of the Morocco agreements, the note asked signatory powers to the Algeciras convention of 1906 to send a committee to Spanish Morocco to investigate the charges.

Officials said the presence of Gen. August Nogues, resident general of French Morocco, in Paris, was not connected with the Moroccan situation.

They admitted, however, the situation was delicate enough to be discussed at a meeting of the high Mediterranean committee on March 10.

New Treason Trial Is Likely as Soviets Expel Two High Officials for Anti-Party Activities

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, March 5.—Another treason trial of men once high in the Bolshevist regime tonight was believed in prospect for Soviet Russia.

There were authoritative indications the principals would be Alexis I. Rykoff, once president of the council of peoples' commissars—a post corresponding to the premiership in other governments—and Nikolai Bukharin, former editor of Izvestia, government organ, both of whom were expelled tonight from the Communist Party.

The two were charged with anti-party activity. Rykoff was arrested late in 1936. The arrest of Bukharin was disclosed during the January treason trial in Moscow.

A trial of these two would be the third of its kind in recent months. Sixteen men, including Gregory Zinovieff and Leon Kameneff, were convicted of treason last July and executed. Seventeen others were similarly convicted in January and 13 of them were shot, the other four receiving prison terms.

The official communique announcing the expulsions also disclosed adoption of resolutions affecting the entire Communist Party structure. It said:

"The plenum of the central committee of the Communist Party which has just closed examined the anti-party activity of Bukharin and Rykoff and expelled them from the ranks of the party. The plenum also discussed questions pertaining to economy and party structure and passed all necessary decisions."

Exact nature of the discussions was not disclosed.

The decisions, however, were believed of vital importance because of party troubles following upon the recent treason plot trials and disclosures of defection and alleged conspiracy within the party ranks.

Rykoff and Bukharin, it was indicated, will be headliners of a group of some 15 to 20 persons comprising the so-called "Right Center" charged with conspiring for the overthrow of bolshevism.

Walsh Blames Humphrey Case For Court Fight

Trade Commissioner Ousting Held Big Factor in Cleric's Talk.

Future historians will put their fingers on the summary removal of Federal Trade Commissioner Humphrey without legal cause as the true beginning of the controversy between President Roosevelt and the Supreme Court, said Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., regent of the School of Foreign Service and vice president of Georgetown University, in a lecture in Memorial Continental Hall last night.

The lecture opened his series of eight on "The Constitution and the Supreme Court."

"In my opinion," asserted Dr. Walsh, "the present conflict was not so much precipitated by the NRA decision, nor the AAA reversal or invalidation of the Guffey coal act as by an incident that, curiously enough, seems to have been lost and submerged in the floodtide of more spectacular developments.

"As one removed from purely party interests, or political advocacy, I believe future historians will put their finger on the summary removal without legal cause of a member of the Federal Trade Commission, named Mr. Humphrey, as the true beginning of the present controversy between the Chief Executive and the Supreme Judiciary."

Reviews History.

Father Walsh declared that, after four years, it was "the spirit, the intangible core of democracy that is shaken in its innermost citadel as public challenge is hurled at the very apple of freedom's eye—the Supreme Court."

"As relentlessly as the Ohio and Mississippi creep higher and higher to flood height despite man's heroic efforts," said he, "so this still unsolved crisis has risen to the danger point beyond which lies a dark and unpredictable future."

Dr. Walsh reviewed much of the history of the court, and the struggles that have arisen around it in the past.

"We who reside on the banks of the Potomac in this day," said he, "are living within earshot of stirring and historic events which recall the battle of the titans that ensued twice before during our Nation's history."

The first crisis, he explained, revolved around the struggle for ratification of the newly adopted Constitution, which lasted from the adjournment of the Constitutional Convention on September 17, 1787, down to the adoption consequent to ratification by the State of New Hampshire in 1788.

The second, he continued, was of longer duration and reached violent maturity in the War Between the States.

Period of Travail.

"It was a period of long travail and high debate that began with the Missouri compromise in 1821, reached a fever heat with Taney's Dred Scott decision in 1857, and was announced as insoluble by the first shot fired at Fort Sumter on April 12, 1861, said he.

"That second crisis of democracy in America was found impossible of solution by reason or statesmanship," asserted Dr. Walsh.

"The President of the United States warned us last night in a Nation-wide radio address that we are face to face with a crisis fundamentally more grave than the emergency facing the Nation when he assumed the Presidency on March 4, 1933."

"I concur unreservedly on that specific point and pray divine guidance on his lips in the discharge of the fearful responsibility that now devolves on him."

In the Humphrey case, the Supreme Court ruled unanimously that the President had exceeded his authority in removing the Federal trade commissioner.

would enable the government to wipe out most of the remaining list of prominent men who fought with Lenin in the early days of the revolution.

Voting Reform Made.

A reform of the Communist party to introduce democracy and secret, direct voting for lower officials of the party was announced at the conclusion of a secret session of the central committee of the party, which had been in session in the Kremlin for ten days.

This was the same body that announced the expulsion of Rykoff and Bukharin.

The new constitution is responsible for the voting reform. It guarantees direct and secret voting for all except those specifically disfranchised. The announcement immediately preceded elections to be called shortly to name members of the supreme council, which will be the Soviet parliament.

A communique declared the Communist party would continue leadership of national affairs, but said the undemocratic regime in lower ranks must be eliminated.

The announcement said elections must be held yearly except provincial party elections, which must be held every 18 months.

Nazi Predicts War.

Berlin, March 5 (U.P.).—War between Germany and Soviet Russia was predicted today by Field Marshal August von Mackensen, famous World War commander, in a speech before a gathering of Hitler youth in Saxony.

Bolling Field Plans New Traffic Control

Complete airplane traffic control soon will be established at the Army's Bolling Field. Incoming and outgoing traffic will be directed by radio and signal lights, functioning in co-operation with the control tower now being built and the federal airways control station at Washington-Hoover Airport.

The new control tower, nearly completed, will be equipped with the latest type weather instruments, including a velocity transmitter and indicator. The transmitter, consists of a magneto generator and anemometer, which generates its own current as it is turned by the wind. The wind direction indicator is also operated by electricty and regarded as one of the most accurate yet produced. It is one of the first of its kind to be installed by the Army.

By Franklyn Waltman

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT deserves to be applauded for abandoning in his Thursday night speech the specious arguments about congestion in Federal court dockets as justifying his request for authority to name six new justices to the Supreme Court and 19 other judges to the lower Federal benches.

In his really very effective—from a political viewpoint—speech at the Democratic Victory Dinner, the President struck a note of realism and tore away from his court reorganization proposal most of the subterfuge in which he had veiled it in his message to Congress a month ago. That is a distinct gain and one for which the country should be grateful because it should clarify national thinking about the issue which the President has precipitated.

In almost so many words the President now says he does not like a majority of the Supreme Court because that group declines to see eye to eye with him on the legality of several important undertakings. Thus, he would undertake to cancel out the vote of the majority by placing six new justices on the court—not necessarily because they are legally wrong, but because the President claims his objectives are good and should prevail. And his objectives are good and should prevail.

WALTMAN.

In his effort to win support for his Supreme Court packing plan the President obviously overshot the mark by attempting to lay at the door of the Supreme Court responsibility for every major national problem confronting the country. For one-half page of his manuscript, Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the Federal Government was helpless to prevent floods on the Ohio River and he bluntly suggested that "defeatist lawyers" give their advice to "sweating men piling sandbags on the levees at Cairo"—and he interpolated in his prepared speech—"and in Louisville and at Memphis."

"I defy anyone," asserted the President, "to read the opinions in the TVA case, the Duke power case and the AAA case and tell us exactly what we can do as a National Government in this session of Congress to control flood and drought and generate cheap power with any reasonable certainty that what we do will not be nullified as unconstitutional."

Many legal authorities who have read all the opinions cited by the President believe that the National Government can do all that is necessary to hold in check floods on the Ohio and other rivers—just as the Federal Government for many years has done along the Mississippi River. The only limit seems to be the amount of money Congress is willing to spend.

More than a century ago the Supreme Court ruled that Congress has full power over navigable rivers and the term has been defined to include any river which may be made navigable. The Supreme Court never has invalidated a Federal flood control project. It has upheld the construction of dams in several cases. In 1934 the court refused the petition of the State of Arizona to declare the Boulder Dam project unconstitutional.

Slightly more than a year ago—in the TVA opinion to which the President referred—the court upheld by an 8-to-1 decision not only the right of the Federal Government to build and operate the Wilson Dam, but to dispose of the power generated by that project. Again and again in that opinion the court held that "Wilson Dam and its power plant must be taken to have been constructed in the exercise of the constitutional functions of the Federal Government."

In the Duke power case, to which the President also referred, the only opinion by the Supreme Court deals with a procedural question and it was specifically stated that "we express no opinion on the relevancy or effect of the evidence, or otherwise upon the merits." The effect of this ruling was to vacate the District Court decrees which had held against the Government.

This case did not involve flood control at all. The point at issue concerned construction of an electric power plant at Buzzard Roost, on the Saluda River, with a PWA loan and grant. After the case became somewhat complicated through the making by PWA of new contracts, the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the constitutionality of the project—using chiefly as a basis for such finding the Supreme Court's AAA opinion.

Requested yesterday to point out a court decision invalidating a flood control project, President Roosevelt referred to the decision last December of Judge John J. Gore, of the Middle Tennessee Federal Court, enjoining the TVA. This decision had nothing whatever to do with flood control or the construction of dams. The court enjoined TVA "from further enlarging or extending their facilities for the transmission, distribution or sale of electric energy; from soliciting present or potential customers of complainants." The injunction did not apply to transmission lines already under construction.

* * * *

Nor can it be successfully argued, as the President by inference undertook to do, the flood control and the generation of electrical power are inseparable. Mr. Roosevelt, pointing out that during the last four years the Nation had been "overwhelmed by disasters of flood and drought," contended that with only two of nine projected dams of the TVA program completed "there was no flood damage in the valley of the Tennessee this winter."

"But how can we confidently complete that Tennessee Valley project or extend the idea to the Ohio and other valleys while the lowest courts have not hesitated to paralyze its operation by sweeping injunctions," the President added.

Neither the Wilson nor the Norris dams in the TVA program are flood-control dams. They are hydroelectric dams—that is to say, their purpose presupposes a full dam and an even flow of water. As Raymond Moley, former brain trust chief, said recently, "a flood-control reservoir is most useful when it is empty—if it is full when the floods come down, what good is it?"

One of the most successful flood-control projects in this country was undertaken in the Miami Valley of Ohio after the disastrous flood of 1913 which inundated Dayton, Ohio. Many times since 1922 the Miami conservancy district system has saved Dayton from floods. Power is not generated by those dams. Indeed, they bear plaques which state that "their use for power development or for storage would be a menace to the cities below."

And former Rural Electrification Administrator Morris Llewellyn Cooke, an acknowledged authority on floods and conservation, last March told a Senate sub-committee that in dealing with floods "it seems to me like playing at blocks when we devote too much time to the building of dams, and in certain parts of the country practically every dam that has been built will be silted to the level in a very short time."

Further testimony along this line could be offered to show that hydroelectric generation should be separated from flood control—or at least that they are not necessarily linked. The reason why the Tennessee Valley escaped the flood havoc suffered by the Ohio Valley was not due to the TVA but because there was only normal rainfall—4.59 inches—during January at the head waters of the Tennessee and the Clinch river which empties into it, whereas from 8 to 20 inches of rain fell in the Ohio Valley.

attempt to pierce the capital's defenses. They said scattered attacks against defense garrisons, particularly in the northwest, probably signaled an insurgent search for weak spots.

In face of possible new food restrictions, the handful of refugees in the officially-closed United States embassy building were put on bread rations for the first time. Each was given half a large roll for the day.

Government acceptance of a scheme to eject foreign fighters was indorsed enthusiastically. The Socialist newspaper Informaciones pointed out it would mean the departure of Moors as well as Germans and Italians who have fought for the insurgents.

The Left Republican Heraldo de Madrid said "The government note shows Spanish loyal to the government are in the majority and are sufficient to put down the rebellion."

(The government was reported in London to have accepted an Anglo-French plan for withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain on condition "it is assured of the necessary reciprocity," presumably intimating the insurgents' foreign troops must be dismissed for the government to dispense with its own international brigade.)

Flannagan on Radio.

Representative John W. Flannagan, jr., of Bristol, Va., will make another radio speech tomorrow night in support of the President's judiciary reorganization plan.

Flannagan said this address will be directed particularly to farmers and small business men.

Hearings Slated On 3 Local Bills

Public hearings on three local bills were scheduled yesterday by sub-committees of the House District Committee.

Representative Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, will conduct hearings, beginning at 10 a. m. Tuesday, on the bill to increase the minimum theft for grand larceny and to enforce orders of the Joint Board of the District Commissioners and Public Utilities Commission.

At 2:30 p. m. the same day Representative Wood (Democrat), Missouri, will hold a hearing on the bill to prevent blindness in infants.

Hearing Deferred On Juvenile Court

A scheduled public hearing on the District Juvenile Court bill to be held this morning was canceled yesterday due to the absence of Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York.

Chairman King, of the House District Committee, and Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, will meet with Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal and other District officials in an executive session this afternoon.

While the measure may be amended, it appears unlikely that further hearings will be held on it.

Lewis Orders C. I. O. Parley Here Tuesday

that "dual and triple bargaining agencies in any plant lead to confusion and industrial strife." The grievance committee then said it would take other steps to combat Lewis' union, which it said included only a "small minority" of the workers in the corporation.

In telling a press conference of the C. I. O. meeting next Tuesday, Lewis pointed out that it would follow by only a day the convention here of Labor's Nonpartisan League. Numerous labor leaders, including Lewis, are active in both the C. I. O. and the League.

Lewis confirmed reports that a drive to organize the 1,200,000 textile workers for the C. I. O. forces is under way and said the Tuesday meeting probably would deal with plans for that campaign.

Urge Change in Name.

Green's telegram to the grievance committee at Pittsburgh said that "only self-established democratic bona fide unions such as are chartered by the federation" can adequately represent workers and held that "one agreement negotiated by said established union" must apply to all workers in the plant. He explained to reporters he meant that even if there are different unions in a plant, one universal one shall do the bargaining for all.

He intimated that if the employes now in the representation plan should form an entirely new union, completely free of company influence, he might work with them. The grievance committee called a meeting for today at which this proposal may be considered.

Meanwhile, 24 members of the Pittsburgh district employe representatives council had voted to change the name of the organization to the "American Union of Steel Workers," the Associated Press reported. It was pointed out, however, the representation plan rules requires that the employes themselves, at an annual election, must vote on the changes proposed yesterday. The next annual election is set for June.

At Boston, the Associated Press said, the State Federation of Labor replied to Green's call for a fight on the C. I. O. unions by saying it would co-operate fully with the A. F. of L. Boot and Shoe Workers Union, but adding "it would, indeed, be most unfortunate if the wage earners should be divided by the use of different methods, when we all do share a common objective." In the Bay State the C. I. O. claims support of three large independent unions for its proposal to "amalgamate." A. F. of L. leaders claim, however, the three unions are "bankrupt" and ineffective, compared to the larger federation union.

A third factor in the steel organization fight arose, meanwhile, in the newly formed Steel Workers Independent Labor Organization in the Chicago area plants of Carnegie-Illinois Steel. Its spokesman, Floyd Davis, was quoted in an Associated Press dispatch from Chicago, as saying the union would demand a further wage increase at a conference next week with Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the company. Davis claimed the Pittsburgh employe representatives "stole our idea" in deciding to reorganize.

At Cleveland, Ohio, the Republic Steel Corporation defied the Lewis forces on the closed shop plan by announcing it "stands for the open shop principle." It said it would bargain with any organization for whomsoever the organization represents but that no one would have to join a union to get or hold a job.

Lewis, at his press conference, declined to comment on Green's message to the steel workers. He said his steel workers organizing committee expects to reach agreements with other steel concerns like that won from Carnegie-Illinois.

"Surge for Organization."

Discussing C. I. O. plans he said there was a "tremendous surge and sweep for organization among the unorganized workers." He declared the "psychology of fear" among them had been largely dissipated, for which he gave part of the credit to the LaFollette Senate committee investigating alleged violations of civil liberties.

Asked whether the C. I. O. had adopted a charter to be granted new unions it may organize he said that matter would be reached later. At Detroit, however, Homer Martin, president of the C. I. O. automobile union, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying "any man or woman who has to toil for a living" would be admitted to the auto union until the C. I. O. can make a place for them. Edward Hall, vice president, said the union now has in its membership pickle factory workers, glove makers, electric refrigeration factory employes and street railway maintenance men.

Lewis termed "not well founded" the suggestion by the Lonergan Senate Committee investigating campaign fund expenditures that labor unions and other organizations be forbidden, as are corporations, from contributing to party funds.

Striker Shot To Get Picture, Senators Hear

By the Associated Press

Senate investigators produced correspondence yesterday to show that a tear-gas salesman won praise from his chief after he reported killing a "Communist."

An affidavit and oral testimony indicated the salesman shot a longshoreman with a tear-gas shell and expressed regret that he "did not get more." The affidavit, signed by James A. Duggar, another longshoreman, expressed the belief the shooting was "staged" for the benefit of a moving-picture cameraman.

Investigators of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee said the incident occurred during the Pacific Coast maritime strike of 1934, when J. M. Roush, then a California agent for Federal Laboratories, Inc., manufacturers of tear gas, assisted police in dispersing a group of strikers. The man who was "shot" did not die, it was brought out.

Roush reported his participation in the incident to B. H. Barker, the corporation's vice president in charge of sales.

When he had read the letter, Chairman La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, turned to Barker, then on the stand, for comment. Barker said Roush had been discharged, and that the shooting was "one of many reasons" for his dismissal.

La Follette submitted for the record a reply by Baker to Roush's report. It said: "I have just read your five-page report regarding which I wired you yesterday. The report is splendid and we think enough of it to excerpt a large portion of it to send out to the men, so you will be well known when you come in September 1."

Barker could not recall whether he had excerpted the portion describing the shooting.

Describing the shooting, the affidavit said: "There was no commotion or disturbance at the time whatever. The only explanation which seems to me to make sense is that the whole thing was staged for the benefit of the motion picture cameraman. My belief is based on experience of many years as a motion picture operator. I know how valuable a negative of this type would be. From the position of the cameraman and from the fact that he was cranking away throughout the shooting, I would say that the whole thing had the appearance of a put-up job."

Scotch Warned of Extra Taxes.

Edinburgh, Scotland, March 5 (AP). Scotchmen were warned tonight by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, that they may have to pay extra taxes so that Britain can go ahead with rearmament plans.

Referring to the government's idea of diverting any treasury surpluses to rearmament, the treasury head said: "Nothing but stark necessity would have made me confess to such a negation of common sense and common humanity. * * *

"I cannot dismiss the hope we and the other nations of Europe may presently find some less suicidal way of ending our fears and suspicions of one another before we are all ruined by our own efforts to defend ourselves."

Taking a somewhat more optimistic view, Sir John Simon, home secretary, declared in an address at Taunton that the defense program was far more likely to provide a basis on which international limitation of armaments could be obtained than would Britain's disarmament.

Britain, Sir John said, had to fight and win the battle to uphold democracy.

Nazis See War Policy.

Berlin (Saturday), March 5 (U.P.).—The Nazi economic review, Deutsche Volkswirtschaft, today predicted a new European war "if British policy continues to pursue the aim of preventing by armed force the national revival of peoples and their economic independence."

Usher Is Killed After Quarrel; Friend Seized

Fractured Skull Is Fatal to Downtown Theater Attendant.

A 24-year-old captain of ushers at a downtown theater was dead yesterday and a companion was held by Arlington County authorities, charged with involuntary manslaughter, after a farewell party that ended in a fatal argument at a South Washington, Va., gas station.

The dead man is Otis Hilderbrand, father of two infant children. He was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital early yesterday. An autopsy shows a fractured skull.

Curtis Coons, 25, of 1774 Troy street, Arlington, Va., was released under $1,000 bond set by authorities in Arlington County. Coons is also an usher at the theater where Hilderbrand was employed.

The involuntary manslaughter charge was placed against Coons after an all-day grilling of five young men by Washington detectives and Arlington County officials.

The five, all of whom are ushers at the local theater, were arrested by Washington police yesterday morning after they had taken their companion to Emergency Hospital. After questioning by local detectives they agreed to turn themselves over to Arlington County police. All except Coons were released without bond.

Besides Coon, those held were Garrett D. Mooney, 22, of 1314 Thirteenth street northwest; William D. Whalen, of 1656-A Avon place northwest; F. L. Ankers, 20, of 310 Cedar avenue, Takoma Park, Md.; Jerold C. Adams, 17, of 3743 Twelfth street northeast.

It was brought out in the questioning of the youths that Hilderbrand began a fight with one of the others. As other members of the party atempted to stop the disturbance, Hilderbrand fell heavily to the ground.

The autopsy showed that in addition to the fractured skull, he also suffered an eye injury which might have been caused by a blow. The skull fracture was believed to have been caused by his head striking the concrete when he fell.

The party which ended so tragically began at Mooney's home on Thirteenth street. The ushers told police that they had done some drinking there and then had left for Virginia to get sandwiches. They rode in two cars.

When the dispute arose they had stopped for gasoline at a filling station near the airport.

Harry Hull, atendant at the station, said that he heard one of the men fall when he was wiping the car windshields. He said he had heard no blows or evidence of an argument.

Coons will appear for a hearing before B. M. Hedrick, judge of the County Court.

Hilderbrand leaves his wife and two sons, one 2 years old and the other 6 months. He also is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harry Hilderbrand, four brothers and three sisters.

Hazen Demands Drivers Co-operate

tion in their current drive to reduce accidents, police last night urged the driver of an auto involved in a crash at Ninth and K streets northeast, Thursday night, to report at Police Headquarters. The accident brought death to Rubin Stroman, colored, 17, of 5536 Jay street northeast.

Authorities at first believed the youth was struck by a hit-and-run driver. Later evidence, however, revealed the motorist stopped, saw another colored boy running down the street and drove on, apparently under the impression that no one had been injured.

Police want to question the driver and have appealed to him for cooperation. Witnesses failed to obtain his license number.

Citing education as one of the most effective weapons in traffic control, Commissioner Hazen last night again sought to enlist private employers in a city-wide campaign to reduce the upturning accident curve.

He called upon employers to warn their workers against infractions of traffic laws and requested that severe reprimands be issued when an offender is discovered.

Trucking concerns were mentioned specifically by the Commissioner.

Warns Truck Drivers.

"Truck drivers, although not always to blame, are responsible for a high percentage of our accidents," Hazen said. "They should be cautioned not only in driving practices but in parking methods. A large truck parked double on a congested street presents a dangerous highway hazard."

And at the same time yesterday, Judge John P. McMahon, presiding in Traffic Court, renewed his denunciation of leniency in first-offense speed cases. Again he refused to permit personal bonds for those brought before him accused of excessive speed.

In numerous lectures to defendants at his bench, Judge McMahon warned that little mercy would be shown speed law violators. Fast driving, he said, is one of the greatest contributing factors to the city's rising accident, injury and death toll.

A District motorist was charged with reckless driving yesterday after his car collided with another auto and overturned four times at Seventeenth and B streets southeast. Arrested by Fifth Precinct police, the motorist gave his name as Charles Skinner, 40, of the 2200 block of Eleventh street northwest.

strengthen their case against Dr. Miller.

Their object is to produce evidence that the death of the girl was murder and not, as Dr. Miller said, an accident.

For several hours this afternoon Sheriff Smith and Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife, together with their deputies, searched a wood off the Stony Point road about nine miles from here, where the girl died.

Dr. Miller said in his confession it was in this wood that he threw away the surgical instruments which he intended to use in the operation.

The officers were not able to find the instruments this afternoon.

While they were on the scene today the Commonwealth's Attorney and the sheriff supervised the making of plaster casts of tire tracks. These will be compared to the tires of a car which Dr. Miller borrowed last Monday evening from Hubert Carver, a local automobile salesman.

In Richmond, where Dr. Miller is held on a murder charge, it was announced that Commonwealth's Attorney Harold Ratcliffe, of Henrico County, had been retained as his defense counsel.

Ratcliffe called on Dr. Miller today and talked to him for more than an hour.

Though he is prosecutor in Henrico County, there is nothing to prevent Ratcliffe from acting as defense counsel in another Virginia county.

Robert Walker, 34, a cousin of the dead girl, said today he had given Fife information that led to questioning of Dr. Miller. He told Fife he had seen the dentist and the girl together several times.

Children Prefer Home To LaGuardia Speech

New York, March 5 (AP).—Approximately 250 Harlem school children remained after classes today to hear Mayor F. H. LaGuardia make a speech at ground breaking ceremonies for a new building. The Mayor started out by saying:

Premier King Quiet on Parley With President

Discussion of St. Lawrence Waterway Pact With Canada Hinted.

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt and Premier W. L. Mackenzie King, of Canada, sat down in the White House last night for a discussion of world affairs, but the details of their conference were kept secret.

On his arrival here yesterday at the invitation of the President, King said their conversations would cover matters of "mutual interest to the United States and Canada."

The President told his press conference he and the premier would discuss world affairs. Observers, who believe the Administration soon will renew efforts to negotiate a St. Lawrence waterway treaty, saw possibilities this project would be threshed out.

At the Canadian legation, where King greeted newspapermen, he declined to comment on the significance of his visit. He did not know, he said, what the President wanted to discuss.

King smiled when interviewers reminded him that former President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, one-time prime minister of England, had set a precedent in international intercourse by sitting on a log at the Hoover summer camp in Virginia in 1929 to talk of naval disarmament.

The premier said he expected to follow the Roosevelt precedent of sitting on a sofa. "That is where he sat to talk when I visited him in 1935," the Canadian said.

King's previous visit resulted in the agreement between Canada and the United States on a reciprocal trade treaty.

Dog Helped Woman Robber in Budapest

Budapest, March 5 (AP).—Ilona Serfoezoe told police today her dog, who barked once when he sighted a civilian and twice when a policeman was coming, should really have credit for the 30 burglaries she confessed.

If the job seemed difficult, she explained, she even let the dog climb through open apartment windows and carry things down while she watched outside.

Treasury Seeks Simple Forms for Income Tax

The Treasury sought yesterday to take some of the headache out of income tax returns.

Through the Internal Revenue Bureau, it created a special committee to consider simplification of the tax forms. The revenue experts also will try to give the taxpayer beter information on how returns should be made out.

Returns for 1936 are due by March 15, and no changes in the forms could be effective until next year.

National Safety Award Is Won By New York

Honorable Mention Given District; Illinois First Among States.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 5.—The National Safety Council announced tonight it had chosen New York City as the 1936 grand prize winner of the fifth national traffic safety contest.

Contest rules award the grand prize to "the city which in the opinion of judges, came nearest to doing for safety the maximum that can be done practically in that city."

New York also was named first place winner among cities of more than 500,000 population, displacing Milwaukee, Wis., which finished first in the group in 1935, and Evanston, Ill., 1935 prize winner.

Kansas City, Mo., was awarded first place in cities of 250,000 to 500,000 population, while Omaha, Nebr., was first in the 100,000 to 250,000 group; Jackson, Mich., first in the 50,000 to 100,000 group; West New York, N. J., first in the 25,000 to 50,000 group, and Wilmette, Ill., first in the 10,000 to 25,000 group.

The announcement said New York closed 1936 with 838 traffic accident deaths, 12.2 per cent lower than the 1935 total of 954 and 17 per cent lower than the average total for the three years previous to 1936.

Philadelphia, Pa., "with an excellent record," was adjudged a close second, and Chicago and San Francisco were given honorable mention in the "big city" group. Washington, D. C. was likewise honored in the group of 250,000 to 500,000.

Thomas H. McDonald, of Washington, D. C., chief of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, who presided as chairman of the judging committee which sifted the winners from 1,013 cities competing, said the mayors and Governors of the winning cities and States would be feted by the National Safety Council at a banquet March 15 in a New York Hotel.

Other members of the judging committee were Dr. Miller McClintock, director of the Harvard University Bureau for Street Traffic Research, and Dr. C. H. Watson, medical director of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and president of the National Safety Council.

Discussion of Neutrality Set by Group for Today

The Washington Council on International Relations will hold the first of two discussions this month at 1 p. m. today at the Cosmos Club

Speakers will be Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, of the Foreign Relations Committee; Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, and Representative James A. Shanley, of Connecticut.

The second discussion will be in the Pan-American Union March 20.

Benjamin Thaw Dies; Noted as U. S. Diplomat

Was Native of Pittsburgh; Heart Disease Fatal to D. C. Resident.

New York, March 5 (AP).—Benjamin Thaw, jr., 48, who retired in 1935 after many years in the American diplomatic service, died today at the Medical Center. He had been ill about three weeks of a heart ailment.

His widow, who was Consuelo Morgan, a sister of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and Lady Furness, was with him when he died.

Born in Pittsburgh, Mr. Thaw was a son of Benjamin Thaw, of the family widely known in that city. He was graduated from Yale in 1911 and entered the United States diplomatic service in 1917.

He served at various times in Paris, Brussels, Buenos Aires and London, in Poland and in Chile and at the time of his retirement in August, 1935, was counselor of the legation at Oslo, Norway. Since then he had lived in Washington.

Besides his widow he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Lawrence Slade, of Pittsburgh. A brother, William Thaw, head of the Lafayette Escadrille during the World War, died three years ago. Blair Thaw, another brother, was killed in the World War.

Funeral services will be held Monday in Pittsburgh.

Woman Motorist Leads With Right, Smiles and Pays

"It was worth it, Judge," said Mrs. Irma Dausey, 48, of New York City, as she paid fines aggregating $36 in police court.

A car driven by Mrs. Dausey collided with one driven by Chester Bernard, of Route 1, Alexandria, at Cameron and Washington streets, Alexandria. A heated discussion followed, both claiming the right-of-way, and the matter was carried to police headquarters. No settlement could be agreed upon by Mrs. Dausey and Bernard, and the woman became so enraged she suddenly landed two solid punches on the jaw of Bernard, who almost took the count of ten.

Policeman J. Cleveland Shaw, acting as referee, charged Mrs. Dausey with minor assault and disorderly conduct, and required her to post $40 bond, which she did.

Judge James Reese Duncan fined her $25 and $3 costs on the minor assault charge, and $5 and $3 costs for disorderly conduct. Mrs. Dausey remarked she got her money's worth.

Lahey Drawings Placed on Exhibit

Drawings and prints by Richard Lahey will be on exhibition in the second floor lobby of the central building of the Public Library at Eighth and K streets northwest, during this month, Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian, announced yesterday.

The collection demonstrates the remarkable versatility of Lahey's work in a number of mediums and styles of treatment. The subjects range from American landscapes in and around New York and Maine to the coast of Normandy and other French scenes.

Paintings by Washington artists are being shown at the Northeastern Branch at Seventh street and Maryland avenue northeast. This branch is inviting the public to its fifth anniversary celebration on Thursday, March 11. At the Mount Pleasant branch at Sixteenth and Lamont stree's water colors by Suzanne Tullett and Paul Arlt are on exhibition in the sun room. The exhibition of paintings by the Landscape Club being shown at the Takoma Park branch will remain until March 15.

Nazis Cheer Negro, Boxer, Boo German

Berlin, March 5 (AP).—Twelve thousand German fight fans forgot all about Nazi racial theories tonight and thunderously applauded the Belgian Negro boxer, Al Baker, even though he lost a 12-round fight to Gustave Eder, of Germany. The Negro was floored for a count of three in the second round and again for a count of two in the third, but recovered, and to spectators and some ringside critics, appeared to have the edge.

The crowd carried Baker out on its shoulders after booing Eder. The excitement and booing, which kept the Sportpalast in an uproar eight minutes after the decision, calmed down only when it was announced Eder had agreed to a return fight.

Priest's Widow Loses Decision In Will Appeal

Virginia Court Upholds Cleric's Sister in Bid for New Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., March 5.—Mary Hayes Guilforil, sister of the late Rev. William R. Hayes, secretly married Newburgh (N. Y.) Catholic priest, was awarded an appeal by the Virginia Supreme Court today from an adverse decree of the Princess Anne circuit court in her battle to share in the priest's estate.

Protesting against provisions of a will executed by Father Hayes in July, 1932, two years before his death, by which his wife, Adelaide M. Grady Hayes, became the sole legatee, the sister contends the priest was domiciled in New York and that under laws of that State she is entitled to one-half of the personal estate.

Widow Claims All.

Mrs. Hayes, whom the priest married secretly in Elizabeth City, N. C., in 1933, and who became executrix of the estate under the will, probated in Princess Anne County, Va., contends Hayes had established his legal domicile in Virginia, and that under Virginia law she would be sole distributee, even if the will were set aside.

The chief issue involved in the appeal is whether the priest died domiciled in Virginia or New York. The lower court held the priest had established legal residence in Virginia.

The marriage was not revealed until the death of the priest in a New York hospital April 27, 1934. Records of the litigation over division of the estate show he had never divulged his marriage either to relatives or officials of his church, and "doffed his clerical apparel and was known simply as 'Mr. Hayes'" when he visited Virginia Beach.

In support of her contention he was domiciled in New York at the time of his death, the sister cited a custom "universally observed in his church" under which she said he could not have been a citizen of Virginia and at the same time retained his pastorate in New York.

Professor Offers New Court Plan

Baltimore, March 5 (AP).—Dr. Edward Samuel Corwin, McCormick professor of jurisprudence at Princeton University, suggested tonight each President be given the power to appoint three Supreme Court justices in his Administration.

"This gradual addition of men who are in touch with the economic conditions and trend of the day would put things on a rational basis," the former PWA adviser on constitutional questions said at Johns Hopkins University.

"It would keep the court fairly contemporary."

Dr. Corwin said he believed the Supreme Court "should consider the Constitution on a more contemporaneous theory, a theory more in support of the New Deal."

Referring to President Roosevelt's proposal to retire justice at 70, he said:

"I believe judges under 70 years of age are better equipped to handle affairs of public interest. These younger men are more in touch with the affairs of the day."

Baha'i Symposium Set.

Baha'i Young People's Group of Washington will hold a public symposium on "Religion—A Way of Civilization" at 8:15 p. m. today at the Baha'i Center, 501-2 Albee Building. Members of the Washington and Baltimore groups will participate.

Thomas Seeks To Concentrate Money Control

Reserve Board Would Be Monetary Authority Under His Bill.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, said yesterday he would introduce a bill next week to designate the Federal Reserve Board as a "monetary authority" expressly directed to regulate the value of money.

The Oklahoman, who supported past New Deal monetary measures, declared present executive currency control was in too many hands.

"What we want to do now is get the camel's nose under one tent, centralize money control and add definite and fixed standards and limitations for money values," Thomas explained.

The monetary authority would have complete control over reserve requirements of Federal Reserve member banks, regional discount rates, the eligibility of collateral and over all open market operations in securities at home and abroad.

Those powers, Thomas said, would not conflict with current operation of the Treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund or the President's authority to revalue the dollar. However, he said such operations eventually would be taken over by the monetary authority.

1,726 Relief Cases Taken From Roll

In an effort to make room for additional needy workers, 1,726 relief cases carried on District WPA rolls and believed to be eligible for social security benefits, have been referred to the Public Assistance Division, Commissioner George E. Allen announced yesterday.

Preliminary investigation has led WPA case workers to believe the 1,726 cases are eligible for old age pensions, contributions for care of dependent children or other benefits, Allen explained.

None of the cases will be dropped from WPA rolls until eligibility for social security benefits has been determined fully, Allen said.

Review of all WPA cases was ordered by Allen several months ago to determine what cases should be cared for out of District WPA funds and which should be cleared through the Public Assistance Division. Of the approximately 13,000 cases 7,575 have been examined thus far, Allen said.

Case workers are reviewing the cases of all WPA workers assigned to the Department of the Interior, Labor, War, Agriculture, Justice, Commerce and Internal Revenue, the Navy Yard and the resettlement development at Berwyn.

Demented Woman Kills 2 Daughters

Clearfield, Pa., March 5 (AP).—Two daughters of a coal miner were hammered to death in their cottage at nearby Hawkrun today and District Attorney Carl Belin took into custody their mother, who he said calmly related killing the girls.

Belin said Mrs. Jennie Galley, whom he described as a "mental case," told of beating the girls, Virginia, 17, and Marie, 5, "because neighbors said her girls were dumb in school and she didn't want them talking that way."

Funeral Rites Today For William P. Baden

Funeral services for William P. Baden, 81, who died Thursday after a short illness in Garfield Hospital, will be held at 11 a. m. today at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Baden, Md. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

A former employe of the old Capital Traction Co., he retired eight years ago. He had served the company as conductor, later working in the office handling money collected on street car runs, and in the paint shop. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella Bean Baden, of 1422 Clifton street, two sisters, Miss Emma Baden and Miss Ella Baden, and a brother, John Baden, all of Washington.

Hitch-Hiker Beats, Robs Benefactor of His Auto

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., March 5.—Daniel Burns, 22, son of the Mayor of Newcastle, Pa., who has been visiting here, was severely beaten, and robbed of his automobile today by a youthful hitch-hiker whom he picked up on the Winchester road.

Burns told police he was beaten into unconsciousness with a pistol butt and hurled from his automobile near Strasburg. After he regained consciousness, he walked to Strasburg.

J. A. Whiting, Father Duffy's Friend, Is Dead

WorldWar Hero Succumbs to Heart Disease; Seryed in Rainbow Division.

The brave fight of James A. Whiting, World War hero and friend of the late Col. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the Rainbow Division, to recover from the effects of wounds he received in France, ended in death yesterday at Mount Alto Hospital.

Whiting, shot and gassed in 1918, when his regiment, the "Fighting Irish," of New York, wrote history with bayonets and machine guns as they drove the Germans back, died shortly before sunset of heart disease.

He served in the Lorraine sector, in the Argonne, in the Aisne-Marne and in Champagne.

It was before Father Duffy became chaplain of the entire division, and while he was serving in that capacity for the "Fighting Irish," that he met Whiting. The courage of Whiting is spoken of more than once by Father Duffy in his war memoirs.

Whiting settled in Ossining, N. Y., after the war and opened a cafe. He became prosperous. And he never forgot his "buddies" of the war days. He helped found the Westchester chapter of the Rainbow Division

No man who had served with the Rainbow ever was turned away from Whiting's cafe if he were in need. His generosity continued throughout the depression.

Whiting was 42 and unmarried. He is survived by a brother and two sisters in New York.

Funeral arrangements were tentative last night, but Rainbow veterans here said burial probably will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Jacques Cartier presents his dance narrative, "The Life of Louis XIV," in the Willard Hotel ballroom Friday afternoon, assisted by Mary Morley, pianist.

Since the dance comes under the scrutiny of music critics, this reviewer found himself yesterday afternoon at an entertainment in which music played for the most part the very incidental function of supplying "atmosphere" for a series of dramatic scenes in which "Le Roi Soleil" of France progressed from adolescence to three-score years. Yet he remained until the end, such was the histrionic attraction of Jacques Cartier, who impersonated the grand monarch and evoked his imaginary interlocutors from the empty air.

Dancing did have a part in two scenes—one in which the young king, who had been secretly taking lessons from an Italian balletmaster, simulates gaucherie and embarrassment at a rehearsal for purposes of a plot, and the other in which he startles the court with his agility and grace. This left ten scenes of narrative without dance, but none the less engrossing for its absence. Whatever ability Jacques Cartier has as choreographer and premier danseur remained undisclosed, but his talent for acting held his audience intent.

The sequence of scenes was so arranged as to present, through pivotal events and crises, a flickering view of Louis XIV's career in a continuity capable of being linked more closely by those familiar with French history. Beginning with the revolt against the domination of Cardinal Mazarin, the mimed monologue touched directly and by implication the intrigue with Louise de la Valliere, the downfall of Fouque, the founding of the Academies, the Battle of Namur, the disgrace of Madame de Montespan, the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and the Spanish succession.

The young actor read his lines so well that there were moments when one thought of Richard Mansfield. In the matter of characterization, his cleverness made convincing the transition from boyishness to senility. One felt that in the final scene, however, the decrepitude of the king was exaggerated, for Louis XIV was only 61 in 1699, and had 16 more years to reign.

N.C. Plans Second Victory Gathering To Spite Tydings

Raleigh, N. C., March 5 (AP).—Plans went forward here tonight for a second Democratic "victory dinner" as indignation of North Carolina Democrats mounted over what they called the "anti-New Deal" speech by Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, at a "victory banquet" here Tuesday night.

Sponsors of the "pro-Roosevelt demonstration," including A. D. (Lon) Folger, Democratic national committeeman, and many State officials, said the second dinner would be held March 12 to "correct the record."

Senator Tydings, in his speech, did not mention the name of President Roosevelt and, by inference, criticized the President's Supreme Court reorganization plan.

At Durham, J. C. B. Ehringhaus, former Governor, joined in the attack on Senator Tydings' speech.

"I listened in vain," he said, "to hear the name of the great general who led us to the victory we were celebrating. . . . It was like the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out."

Mrs. Trader Buried Beside Her Husband

Sensational Investigation of Murder Charge Ends With Widow's Death.

By the Associated Press.

Stockton, Md., March 5.—A grave beside the one in which an attorney asserted lay the solution to the crime with which she is charged was prepared today for Mrs. Jeannette B. Trader, accused husband-slayer.

Funeral services for the attractive 37-year-old widow who died Wednesday were scheduled for 2 p. m., with burial beside the grave of her husband, Clarence J. Trader, late operator of the Stockton light and power plant.

Samuel Leibowitz, New York criminal-lawyer who became interested in the case several weeks ago, said on one occasion that the solution to Trader's death "lies buried in a grave at Stockton." His plea for an exhumation was denied.

Mrs. Trader had maintained from the time her husband was found dead in her home here the night of January 14 that he shot himself and that she was innocent. She died following an operation without making a statement.

Her death left the case unsolved, as she was to have stood trial later this month. An inquest scheduled for yesterday was postponed pending completion of a report on an autopsy performed on her body.

The autopsy physicians were instructed to determine whether or not there was any trace of poison in her vital organs. Mrs. Trader had claimed her food at the Snow Hill Jail was poisoned.

Prosecution attorneys discounted the possibility Mrs. Trader was poisoned, but ordered the autopsy to clear away any doubt as to the cause of her death.

Rail Empire Facts Termed Concealed

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, of the Senate Railroad Finance Committee asserted yesterday the Van Sweringen Corporation had "concealed the facts" about its financial condition from its noteholders, who eventually lost approximately half of the $30,000,000 they invested.

Wheeler denounced what he called "glaring evils" of railway financing.

He charged the Guaranty Company of New York, underwriter of the note issue, had advised noteholders to trade in their securities in 1931 for 50 cents on the dollar in cash and another 50 cents worth of Van Sweringen Corporation common stock.

"That stock was practically worthless," the Senator declared, "but the note-holders were never informed of the fact."

H. G. Stockwell Is Dead at 70; Noted Attorney

Author Dies in Annapolis; Was U. S. Official in World War.

Herbert Grant Stockwell, 70, author, attorney and an official in the National Food Administration during the World War, died Thursday night at Annapolis, Md., after an attack of bronchitis, according to the Associated Press. Funeral services will be held this morning at the Annapolis First Presbyterian Church. Burial will be private.

Stockwell was a member of the Philadelphia bar and the founder of the firm of Stockwell, Wilson & Linville in that city. He had lived in Annapolis since 1931, following his retirement from business. Lecturer and author, his books include "Essentials of Business Character," "How to Read a Financial Statement," "How to Read a Profit and Loss Statement," and "An Introduction to Business Management."

He was born in Northampton, Mass., on September 1, 1866. Going to Philadelphia in 1880, he became a bookkeeper, later taking up auditing, becoming a certified public accountant and national bank examiner. He was graduated from Temple University Law School and admitted to the bar in 1900. He also gave business lectures at the Wharton School of Business.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason, a former member of the Philadelphia Club and Merion Cricket Club, a member of the Union League, Pennsylvania Section of the Sons of the Revolution, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Society of the War of 1812, a charter member of the Philadelphia Rotary Club, the First Church of the New Jerusalem (Swedenborgian) and the Annapolitan Club.

He is survived by his wife, the former Meta Melville, daughter of Rear Admiral George Wallace Melville, arctic explorer, and former engineer-in-chief of the Navy. Funeral Set Today For Capt. Hinckley

Funeral services for Capt. Harold D. Hinckley, former superintendent of the Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., will be held this morning at 11 o'clock in Arlington Cemetery. Capt. Hinckley died last Sunday in Seattle, Wash. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mabelle C. Hinckley, of Seattle.

He was superintendent of the academy from 1923 to 1928, and served at Coast Guard headquarters here some time ago. He was appointed to the academy in 1897, commissioned two years later, and promoted through the various grades, becoming a captain in 1929. He retired three years ago.

His World War service included command of several Coast Guard vessels in foreign waters. He was awarded the Navy Cross and the Victory Medal.

Watch your step and live . . .

So far this year there has been about one auto death every two days here in Washington. Most of these have been pedestrians. They have either failed to see the light signal or an approaching automobile, or have just taken a chance in getting across the street. They have failed to see or to heed traffic rules.

BE SURE YOUR EYES ARE NOT AT FAULT

It may be that some of these people did not see the traffic signal or the approaching auto because of poor vision. One of the most important safeguards for both the motorist and the pedestrian is to make sure that their vision is keen and accurate. Consult DR. GEORGE E. DODSON, the Registered Optometrist at our store. Don't take chances in crossing the street—don't take chances with your eyes.

Geishas Mourn Strike Suicide As Joan of Arc

Shy Girl Balks at Nude Rites of Sisters Preparing for Prayers.

By the Associated Press.

Osaka, Japan, March 5.—Striking geisha girls, bereaved by the suicide of a beautiful 22-year-old sister, vowed today they would immortalize her as their "Joan of Arc."

When the wintry dawn broke over Mount Shigi today, the 300 striking entertainers left their sanctuary in the Buddhist temple on Mount Shigi and went to a secluded woods for nude rites of purification.

Shy Fukuko Miyamoto, however, was appalled by the naked ceremonial. She disappeared from the others. After a long search police found her body, a fatal vial by her side, in a teahouse on the gay white way of Osaka from which the strikers have taken refuge.

Although the ritualistic ablutions, called Mizugori, are practiced generally by pious Japanese, even in zero weather, it was unprecedented for the humble geisha girls to indulge in such a sacred ceremony.

The icy bath prepared the girls to pray to Buddha for the success of their cause—a union organization.

After the shivering strikers had dried themselves and knelt before the altars of Gyokuzo Temple on the hard, cold rock of the mountain top, they prayed for a half hour.

But the Miyamoto girl, who had been sold into servitude as a child by her impoverished family, could not bring herself to join her sisters.

Woman, Airman She Shot 'Make Up'

Versailles, France, March 5 (AP).—Mme. Marie Schmeder and the man she mysteriously shot in the back as they flew together were reconciled in a tearful scene tonight in the district attorney's office.

Pierre L'Allemant, almost recovered from the bullet wound, faced Mme. Schmeder for the first time since the aerial drama last December 20, when she left him wounded in the field where he landed the plane in which she fled to England.

Weeping unrestrainedly, Mme. Schmeder asked L'Allemant's pardon and he gave it. He said he had no desire to press civil action. Lawyers, however, said the woman still would have to answer criminal charges.

Daughter of McAdoo Files Deposition Plea

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP).—Mrs. Ellen McAdoo De Onate, granddaughter of President Wilson, asked court permission today to take a deposition of her father, Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, in Washington, D. C., in connection with her divorce suit.

Mrs. De Onate seeks a divorce from Rafael Lopez De Onate, film actor, charging he failed to support her. De Onate answered that Senator McAdoo attempted to prevent their marriage and afterward sent them to Europe for two years.

Arrests Banned In Archery Games

The Archery Co., Inc., yesterday in District Court obtained a temporary injunction to prevent United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett from carrying out an order requiring the company to withdraw from public use its "archery" dart board game.

The game, according to Michael F. Keogh and Peter Chaconas, attorneys, is one that requires skill and has very little of the element of luck in it. Merchandise is given to those whose skill merits prizes.

Marlene Dietrich Files Papers for Citizenship

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP).—Marlene Dietrich, German film actress, asked today to become a citizen of the United States. Appearing unexpectedly in the naturalization department of the Federal court, she made out her first papers. She is eligible for citizenship in two years.

In her application Miss Dietrich gave her legal name as Maria Magdalene Sieber, and said she was born December 27, 1904, in Berlin.

A Warning Sign.

Recent wage increases, adoption of the 40-hour week and higher prices of supplies and raw materials are cited by President Irvin of the United States Steel Corporation in explanation of prospective increases in the prices of steel products.

So far labor has not suffered from the extensive advance in prices during recent years, for better wages and more employment have caused the workers' real income to rise more rapidly than the cost of living. Since the depression reached its low point, in fact, the national income has been expanding rapidly and labor's share of that income has also been increasing. In other words, we have been producing more and the wage earners and salaried classes have been obtaining a larger share of the current output.

So long as this condition prevails, nobody needs to worry about moderate increases in the price of steel or other manufactured goods which can be taken care of by an active buying demand. There will be good reason for both employers and employes to worry, however, if prices are pushed up so rapidly as to offset the higher buying power represented by wage and salary increases.

Of course, industry can not prosper or expand unless market outlets for its products are available. Well-paid, fully employed workers provide the basic support of any industrial structure. But if wage rates are driven upward too sharply or working hours reduced too drastically, the result will be a greatly reduced output of goods and higher prices for the limited supply.

Under such conditions the benefits of wage increases would likely be neutralized by a concurrent rise in living costs, while curtailment of production would be followed by loss of jobs. In short, the country's labor leaders can not afford to forget that real income is measured by the amount of tangible goods and useful services that an individual can buy, not by the number of dollars he receives. If industry is able to produce more as a result of reasonable production costs and moderate prices, there will be more for labor and management to share and an incentive to keep on producing. But when wages and other production costs advance so rapidly as to necessitate sharp increases in the sales prices of manufactured goods, production is inevitably curtailed and workers as a class grow steadily poorer.

Hence, price advances that follow wage increases sound a warning of trouble ahead if labor leaders should throw restraint to the winds and press aggressively for concessions regardless of the effect upon the actual output of an industry.

Premier King's Visit.

Exactly what "matters of mutual interest to the United States and Canada" Premier W. L. Mackenzie King discussed with President Roosevelt, during his stay at the White House yesterday, have not yet been made public. One thing is certain, however. Whatever these problems were, they were discussed in the very friendliest spirit.

At a time when armaments are piling up everywhere and the evil demon of war and international suspicion is rampant in the world, the significance of that great undefended frontier between the Dominion and the United States is greater than ever. And, recently, that same spirit of peace and good will was extended to trade matters. Because of the Canadian-American reciprocal trade agreement our commercial relations with our neighbor to the north are better than they have been in some time.

It is more than likely that Premier King took occasion during his stay here to discuss the problem of the St. Lawrence waterway. It is not believed that President Roosevelt has changed his mind regarding the advisability of that project. But final action depends on Congress, and three years ago the Senate definitely turned down the waterways treaty. That it will now reverse its stand is problematical.

Of more immediate concern is the American neutrality policy. Although an independent nation, Canada is a member of the League of Nations and a constituent part of the British Commonwealth. It cannot help viewing with concern, therefore, any fundamental change, such as is now contemplated, in our policy concerning wartime trade. The Pittman bill, with its "cash-and-carry" principle, will occasion no direct hardships on Canada. Yet American action concerning neutrality or any other aspects of foreign policy is bound to be of acute interest to the Dominion.

Stripping The Camouflage.

It was injudicious of President Roosevelt, at the opening of his broadcast on Thursday night, to suggest that his listeners let their thoughts revert to March 4 of 1933, asserting that his first inauguration "represented the death of one era and the birth of another."

Not even Mr. Roosevelt can both have his cake and eat it. It was unwise for him to suggest, in consecutive sentences, that his first term restored prosperity, advanced reform, improved the moral atmosphere, yet still leaves the country facing another crisis "fundamentally even more grave than that of four years ago." Such an argument forces one of two conclusions—either that four years of the New Deal have only served to intensify, not eliminate, the problems of 1933, or that the new crisis is primarily of the President's own making.

That the latter is the case Mr. Roosevelt proceeded to demonstrate in a speech which demands the most sober and analytical consideration.

Among the millions who listened to the President there were undoubtedly many whose thoughts took them back not merely four, but 150 years. At a "Victory Dinner" it was appropriate to recall that we have now begun the second quadrennium of the Roosevelt regime. But it is equally appropriate for Americans who are not workers in a party vineyard to remember that this year is the sesquicentennial of the adoption of the American Constitution, under which Mr. Roosevelt is merely the thirty-first President elected to act in a fiduciary capacity for the organic law.

Under that Constitution a balanced system of government was established which is ill-described as consisting of "three well-matched horses put to the task of ploughing," presumably under the lash of one superior intelligence with the right to resent fractiousness on the part of one of his draft animals. Psychologists know that the metaphor chosen unconsciously reveals the true direction of a speaker's thought.

In our federal system of government the legislature, the executive and the judiciary are not like horses, ordained to plough a field at the bidding of a single dictatorial will. They are, on the contrary, more nearly akin to the steel and brick and timber which play separate yet closely integrated parts in giving stability to a building whose tenants can normally do their work without anxiety as to the permanence of the structure housing them.

It is President Roosevelt's contention, at last made openly and without pretense, that the structure which houses the American people is outworn and needs rebuilding. For such a claim there is some argument, and procedure for remodeling, when, as and how the tenants wish, is clearly provided in the Constitution. But such remodeling is inacceptable to the imperious will. It wants a fundamental reconstruction, an all-steel building of post-war European architecture, and it wants this "now."

To accomplish this end Mr. Roosevelt is obviously prepared to stick at nothing. The "roar" of opposition to the court-packing plan is to him merely a challenge to "fight" for an objective which he unquestionably sincerely believes would be in the national advantage. What the President does not realize—yet—is the strength of the resistance which he is going to encounter in his effort to fetter an essentially dictatorial system of government on the United States.

In Thursday's speech all the camouflage about reform of judicial procedure was swept aside. Nor is the attack any longer merely on the nonconformist members of the Supreme Court. It is directed, on the contrary, against the Court as an institution, and thereby inferentially against the constitutional system which gives an independent judiciary the right to review legislation. The attack—now—is against that doctrine of judicial review which, in the words of Chief Justice Hughes, "is as much a part of our system of government as the judicial office itself."

Indeed the thoughts of many, on Thursday night, must have gone far back of that March day in 1933 which, to Mr. Roosevelt, represents "the birth of another era." They inevitably recalled that historic opinion in Marbury v. Madison, in 1803, when Chief Justice Marshall pointed out that "it is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is."

To this Mr. Roosevelt retorts that "the attitude of the courts" today incites "widespread refusal to obey law." It is indeed a new era for this country when its Chief Executive thus pronounces the entire judiciary a stumbling block which must be swept aside because it is assumed to block the path of social progress.

It is a big issue which Mr. Roosevelt has raised, and no powers of prophecy are needed to realize that it is one which will split his party from top to bottom. There are many Democrats who will tolerate his repudiation of States' rights. There are many who will support his amplification of bureaucracy. But there are also many who will halt at the assertion that the entire membership of the Supreme Court "assumed" power "to veto" the NRA. There will be many who will realize that if an unjustifiable assumption of power is the danger, the chief responsibility is not hard to fix.

On one point the President's verdict is uncontestable. The crisis is "fundamentally even more grave than that of four years ago." He has created it, and he has served notice of his intention to force the issue. There is little doubt that an aroused public opinion will accept the challenge—now.

Mayor LaGuardia's Blunder.

The orgy of epithets initiated by Mayor LaGuardia has reached its inevitable climax. His attempt to relegate Hitler to a "chamber of horrors" has brought from the German press far more bitter abuse of himself, and the State Department has felt forced to apologize for his conduct. No doubt the mayor is now cognizant of his blunder. But that will not mitigate the animosities he needlessly aroused, nor relieve the embarrassment he has caused the Federal Government.

Of course, the National Government is not responsible for the acts or loose talk of State or local officials. The constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech permits these agents of the people to denounce foreign governments and rulers, subject only to their own discretion. As a matter of custom and propriety, however, most mayors have learned long since to confine their endeavors to municipal affairs and leave foreign relations to the State Department.

It will be difficult for the dictator-ridden Nazis to understand either our deference for freedom of speech or the separation of national and local powers. They naturally expect Washington to crack down upon any indiscreet city head as Berlin would upon an offending local official in the land of Brown Shirt repression. Their wishes in this respect will not, of course, be gratified. The United States will not stoop to despotism to save the skin of any pompous Fuehrer from excoriation. Indeed, the more Germany yields to the blind dictates of propaganda and the more she reverts to medieval practice the more outspoken criticism in this country will become.

That, however, is beside the point immediately at issue. Regardless of how justified his criticism may have been, Mayor LaGuardia's indiscreet meddling merely brought reproach upon himself. The mayor may be insensible to the abuse heaped upon him by the propagandized German press, but he can scarcely avoid a sense of humiliation for the embarrassment he has brought upon the State Department.

To make the stupidity of the incident complete, the proposed Hitler exhibit in a "chamber of horrors" was mentioned in connection with New York's World Fair of 1939, in which the German government has been invited to participate.

Damned Both Ways.

Justice Proctor speaks the mind of many a Washingtonian when he suggests that too many small fry of the numbers racket are being brought to court and not enough of the "big fellows." Yet, to this, Chief of Police Brown gives a compelling answer. He replies that his men have recently broken up one of the biggest "numbers" gangs in the city and that the law will continue to be applied to all others—leaders and henchmen—alike.

What neither the District Court judge nor the police chief have said, however, is the important point: Regardless of the caliber of the gamblers involved, at the present rate of their arrest the racket will continue to flourish unabashed. There is far too much money involved for the business to languish under present conditions for want of personnel.

The explanation for the slow action of the police in this respect is the law. As it stands today, a numbers racketeer can easily sidestep its meshes. The racket is so loosely organized as a rule that rarely can a leader be discovered in an incriminating act. Attempts have been made several times to tighten the law. But each time objection has been raised to any departure from the usual grounds for search and seizure. It is feared, and with some justification, that any extension of the power of arrest might react adversely on all civil liberty.

The authorities, in short, are damned if they attempt to go after the numbers racketeers and damned if they don't.

Burbank Vistas.

Until the arrival of a late flash from Oklahoma, the boll weevil had always seemed an altogether cussed beast, unredeemed by the faintest suggestion of a virtue. But now it develops that the weevil has at least taste. A farmer in Union City has crossed his cotton plants with okra and—publish glad tidings—this combination is carefully eschewed by the weevil. The worm detests the flavor of okra, which is certainly understandable.

The discovery opens all manner of vistas to the Burbanks of the day. Insect palates cannot vary greatly. What the weevil dislikes, so in all probability will the Japanese beetle, the Mediterranean fruit fly, the gypsy moth, the potato bug and all the rest of that pestiferous crew. By simply introducing okra into their diets, the whole business of spraying and powdering and halting cars at State lines may be stopped.

And, if okra will not always turn the trick, spinach might be tried. Spinach-corn, indeed, might be an ideal vegetable: No borer, and the green leaves could be thrown away, quite properly, in the husking.

"More Commonwealths."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The spirit of the Klan is not dead. Kind-hearted Americans used to grow vocal and purple in the face telling about atrocities committed in the land that public school teachers in the Nation's Capital may not even mention. But when a union of Government employes accepts everything it reads as gospel truth and "takes its orders from Little Rock," refusing to seat an American-born Master of Arts from an American University (Wisconsin), Lucien Koch, because he had brains enough to become the youngest college president in the country, it is time to turn the phonograph record over and listen to a new tune.

Koch, in his first hearing after three blackballings from the Klan cohorts, states that he is a Presbyterian. His membership in a conservative trade union exhibits his faith in American institutions. If Commonwealth College Co-operative can produce men like Koch, then I say: "God bless dear old Commonwealth, her students, her professors, her alumni, her courses of study and her farm. Give us more Commonwealths, oh Lord!" I say this reverently.

ARISTOTLE.
Alexandria, Va., March 4.

"Dirty Business."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A strong cheer and a sincere pat on the back for Westbrook Pegler in his arraignment of the Minsky's, entrepreneurs of that so-called American art which Pegler calls "pure filth." Such words regarding the Minsky brothers have been all too few of late, and as a result the stench produced by these unestimable citizens has spread too far for comfort.

When the otherwise generally intelligent editors of a national magazine give an article in one issue to the publicizing of Gypsy Rose Lee, whose specialty happens to be the excitation of mob-lust, and then descend to the advertising of the name of Minsky, it is time to realize that this type of entertainment is no longer wallowing only in the butter, but is threatening the homes of decent families with its rottenness. This indictment of the Gypsy Rose may sound a little strong to some euphemists, but I think that any man who is willing to call a spade a spade must agree with me.

What has happened to the clean-hearted public spirit that used to take it for granted that these things were too foul to think about? I have never attended a performance of this sort, but the term "strip-tease" needs no explanation. Such a spectacle is one of unadulterated lust, without a redeeming feature. How any self-respecting human can sit through one of them and still feel a manly pride of life is beyond me.

And if, as Mr. Pegler says, the comedians are worse, I can only compare them with nasty little boys, boys vying with each other in the expression of the obscenity of their thoughts and the utter filth of their language. Not nasty little boys, however, but grown-up men and women regularly fill the Minsky dive in New York without a single doubt of their respectability.

This barnyard morality is going too far. It is a mark of degeneracy. Will some other person with a firm faith in the abiding beauty of clean thought and pure art please take up his pen and strike, with Mr. Pegler, another blow at the dirty business of these Minskys?

HERBERT LOCKWOOD.

Fidelity Reorganization.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note in your paper of March 4 a statement that a recommendation of the Home Loan Board is now before the Comptroller of the Currency for the Fidelity Building and Loan Association to be organized into a Federal savings association. There appears also a statement from the receiver that the losses from bad investments will not exceed $200,000. As the deposits are $4,500,000, this means (assuming that there will be no salvage in any of the alleged bad loans) that the total loss will not exceed 4½ per cent to the depositors.

In view of the fact that just ten days before the institution was closed by the Comptroller, a 5 per cent dividend was declared, it now appears there will practically be no loss. I presume the association's surplus has gone to pay the expenses of the receiver.

This raises a very grave question. Why was this institution placed in the hands of a receiver?

More than 16,000 persons have suffered untold agony for more than eight months fearing the entire loss of their savings. Each day it now becomes more apparent that the closing of this institution was due to some sinister motive. The public is entitled to know the truth.

HILDUR MALM.

Frederick County Roads.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have read with interest your articles in The Post on the condition of Frederick County roads. I saw the end of the sit-down strike parade of the school children of Thurston. Having been a former Frederick County teacher I felt the spirit of these brave children and leaders was "the spirit of 1776."

Quoting from the Frederick News of February 5: "Frederick County has 693.28 miles of dirt roads, according to the State Roads Commission records. The figure was reduced from 696.73 miles during the last year. That is, 3½ miles of road were hard-surfaced. At such a rate, it would require 198 years to bring an end to dirt roads in public use in the county."

Doubtless similar conditions exist all over. Why have able-bodied men been paid by the relief to remain idle when they should have been paid to do this and other work instead?

Surely good roads are more needed than parks at present. Why not all of us help in any way we can? The CCC boys could help. Plenty of peaceful occupation would do much to help everyone forget war.

LUELLA M. HESSON.
Frederick, Md., Feb. 26.

One-Man Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In letting Franklin D. Roosevelt get control of the Supreme Court's power, we may have a one-man Government. We can look at the many countries in Europe today to see what that means.

Of course, no one would accuse Mr. Roosevelt of wanting to have the power of life and death (not now)—just the power to fine and imprison those who do not obey his laws. But how long would just "fines and imprisonment" satisfy men in power? Who in the future are to be Presidents?

Presidents are elected for four years. With a one-man Government this could easily be changed into a life office—a dictatorship. Just glance at what has happened in many European countries and you will answer the question.

Mr. Roosevelt said he "hoped it would be said of his first Administration" that the opposing forces had met "their match;" and of his second, "they had met their master." For suave promises only to be thrown to the winds as he does his "brain-trusters," at will, is the public going to vote to "have a master?"

MARY CHALMERS HOOD.
Florence, Ala., Feb. 27.

England's Arming.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why should England's armament program force a similar one on our part?

No one but a maniac could conceive of a war between England and America. Both nations are striving their utmost for peace and it is clear to the world that England is arming against the mad dogs of Europe and is without a thought of arming against us. Of course we should arm, but against the aforesaid mad dogs.

If England and America would stand together there could be no war which could hurt either. I believe that the whole future of civilization depends on that.

Easy Forgetfulness.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a former resident of a neighboring State, I was greatly interested in a statement sent to South Dakota papers by Mr. E. H. Everson, president of the national organization of the Farmers Union, in which he said: "Personally, I am no more in favor of making or attempting to make the Supreme Court of the United States a rubber stamp than I am in favor of making Congress a rubber stamp for the Executive. * * *"

And where were Mr. Everson and his farmer friends back in 1932 when members of his organization were losing their homes faster than it takes to tell it, when the farmers couldn't get enough for what wheat they were able to raise to pay for coffee and tea and sugar and salt, to say nothing of clothing for the children?

How much did they worry about the President making a "rubber stamp" out of Congress when he and Mr. Wallace pushed the agricultural adjustment act through? Just how happy were they when the Supreme Court declared AAA unconstitutional and handed back the millions collected in processing taxes—not to the people who paid them, but to the millers who collected them?

Now that, due to drought and crop restriction, the price of wheat has gone up, and due to debt-easing measures passed by a "rubber-stamp" Congress at a time when debt was bearing them down, they breathe a bit easier, they bring out the old slogan again: Down with the rubber-stamp! Hooray for the checks and balances, although they check so well that nothing balances!

Mr. Everson is in more or less distinguished company, at least. The farm organizations didn't hotfoot is quite so swiftly to Washington in the days of Mr. Roosevelt's first Congress as did those other slogan-bearers (Too much government in business!), the Chamber of Commerce members, back in 1932. Like their associates, they have forgotten a good many things. Like the farmers, they have found, these past two or three years, the going a little smoother.

All of this talk about shorter hours, better wages, a chance for the little fellow—who wants to be his brother's keeper, anyway? Hooray for the Coolidge era, for Presidents who took afternoon naps and were content to be, as Mr. William Hard says, "just Presidents!"

Gas Masks For Two.

The development of the arts, the progress of science and the advance of the social amenities are all admirably illustrated by a London dispatch to the Herald Tribune. "Hundreds of women will wear gas masks," it tersely explains, "at an 'at home' to be given by Mrs. G. Farquharson, Mayoress of Wimbledon, to interest women in air defense. The government is co-operating by lending respirators and a lecturer. Tea and cakes will be served before the gas masks are donned."

The ladies of Wimbledon haven't quite mastered their problem; at subsequent at homes of the lady mayoress, no doubt, the tea and cakes will be served after donning the masks (eating was always one of the worst problems for the novice, but, of course, you've got to learn to eat and sleep in the things if they are to do any good under prolonged strafing), but it will all be accomplished with the most perfect form and the lecturer will be lovely and so inspiring.

Thus is civilization saved, and the fact that none of it—gas masks, bombproof shelters, lecturers and the rest—is likely to be of the slightest use when the bombing starts makes no difference. These little observances enable one to forget to think about that; the world goes on, and tea and gas masks become the fashion. And the big rearmament programs go smoothly through.

The Post Impressionist

What You Call It.

WE were sitting before the fire, watching the winter rain run down the window panes, when the conversation got around to titles. I don't mean the kind that heiresses marry, but the kind that all those poor people who write books strive to find. The studious man, who had brought the lady with the red finger-nails, said:

"You may say what you please, but I contend that its title is one of the most important features of a book. Particularly a novel. Look how many books the casual reader (by far the most numerous of the species) will read simply because the title attracts him. And did you ever really consider how authors get their titles? I knew an author once who spent six weeks doing nothing but thinking of a title. He finally got it."

"I'm glad of that," said the lady with r. f. "It would have been a shame if he hadn't."

"Generally," said the studious man, "the titles of novels are divided into three classifications. There is the character title, such as 'Silas Marner' and 'David Copperfield' and 'Ivanhoe' . . ."

"And 'Elmer Gantry' and the 'Gorgeous Hussy'—"

Naturally the words "character title" are descriptive in themselves, but in this group also should fall such titles as "The Last Puritan," "The Professor's House," "Look Homeward Angel" and so forth. The straight character title, of course, must tell you something about someone, whether a man or a woman, what is his or her station in life, occupation, and any other information that possibly can be included. Take the title "Oil for the Lamps of China." That tells you where the book is laid, that it is apt to be concerned with progress, with the advancement of people, and that it's probably about some kind of business. Did you ever notice how much people are like their names, especially in the titles of books? "Oliver Twist," "Ethan Frome," "Alice Adams," "Elsie Dinsmore," "Anthony Adverse," and all the rest.

Then there are the descriptive titles. Usually they tell you something about the place that is the locale of the book. Among the newer books that I can think of are, "Beyond Sing the Woods," "And Quiet Flows the Don," "Roll, River, Roll." But that doesn't mean that all these titles are new. "The Tale of Two Cities" certainly describes that one. From the very words "Barren Ground" you don't picture very happy lives. One of the better of these, I think, is "Drums Along the Mohawk." You get the idea just from the title, and that's the way it should be.

The other group I would divide titles into is the abstract. Usually these titles are provocative but they are chosen with the hope of piquing the prospective reader. When he hears the title he wants to know more about the book. In this class I would put "The Way of All Flesh." That tells you something, too. "Of Human Bondage," "Obscure Destinies," "The Thinking Reed." The reader says, 'How can a reed think?' "The Sheltered Life," "Gone With the Wind."

"I knew you couldn't leave that out—"

* * * *

But did you ever wonder where authors get their titles? Of course there are two infallible sources, the Bible and Shakespeare. Hemingway got "The Sun Also Rises" from Ecclesiastes. From Macbeth alone I can think of Tomlinson's "All Our Yesterdays," Aldous Huxley's "Brief Candles," Faulkner's "The Sound and the Fury" and Rose Macaulay's "Told by an Idiot" . . .

"I'd hate to admit that one—"

From Swinburne Sylvia Thompson took "The Hounds of Spring." Dickens got his "Cricket on the Hearth" from Milton's "Il Penseroso." Thomas Hardy's "Far From the Maddening Crowd" came from Gray's "Elegy In a Country Churchyard." It's the same with titles in the theater, and to a certain extent with titles in poetry. The newer poets, who aren't as thoughtful as the older ones, often go to their predecessors for titles.

And it's a curious thing about titles. Many a good book has gone comparatively unsold, which means comparatively unread, because its title didn't click. On the other hand some good titles have proven misleading because the author didn't live up to them. What authors should do is strike a neat balance, and they should never trick their readers. One or two deceptions from the same author, and the reader won't go back; there're too many others writing books. What it seems to me an author should do is write a good book and give it a good title and hope for the blessing of public favor. The poor devils who write them really are gambling a lot of work and a lot of time . . .

* * * *

The lady with red finger-nails leaned toward the studious man and whispered something. What she said was lost in the sound of the rain. The studious man turned around.

"By the way," he said, "I hear you're writing a book. What's it called?"

"I don't know," I answered. "I'm for a title."

Fair Enough

Louse—Opera.

THESE DISPATCHES return to the subject of burlesque and the strip-tease, a theatrical and social infection which recently received a quiet, if not necessarily respectful, hearing by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives in Washington in connection with a bill to impose on foreign actors the same restrictions that other nations set against American talent. These restrictions, incidentally, are industrial or economic, not esthetic or moral.

The Europeans ration employment to American crooners, fighters, magicians, naked women and comedians all alike. The industrial or economic restrictions come first, and after the American performers have met these regulations and the attendant taxes the matter of moral hygiene is turned over to their police who are comparatively prim. They have their limits.

Mostly the Europeans, whom Americans in the thirties and forties and upward have been taught to regard with a nasty-nice morality, are fairly decent. Not even in Barcelona or Madrid, a little more than a year ago, was it possible to buy into a public performance as wantonly and defiantly foul as the common American strip-tease which is now presented openly in the so-called burlesque houses. And certainly no scabby gutter-bum performing in a tourists' brothel in a Mediterannean port could delve any lower for his humor than some of the comedians engaged in the burlesque business.

• • • •

THE AMERICAN theatrical profession calls the burlesque show louse-opera, and it is impossible to repeat in a home newspaper the name which the profession applies to most burlesque comedians who deal in the vilest forms of filth.

Yet this is the form of theatrical entertainment which is blandly defended before a committee of the national legislature as native American art.

Burlesque has created a theatrical sewer in one New York street which formerly was a decent amusement center and made it a levee district which decent people have placed out of bounds. It is rapidly rotting Broadway—which is a hard trick for any conventional form of sin—and the respectable men and women of the stage have been compelled to stand by and accept as fellow-artists a corps of performers who in any other nation with a pretense of respectability would be segregated in a restricted district.

The strip-tease needs no explanation, and the only wonder is that nobody on the House Immigration Committee in Washington had the presence of mind or morals to challenge the claim that this is American art.

• • • •

PARIS for some years after the war was regarded as the theatrical bad-lands of the Western world. But nowhere in Paris today, outside the more or less restricted areas, may the tourist observe the spectacles which are publicly presented in American burlesque, and not even in the Paris joints are males commonly employed to make the dialogue.

After the war Rome was rotten with depravity, and after that Berlin went haywire. These extremes seem to be the usual forerunner of violent reform in which the decent feelings of the population explode in reprisals against the debauchery of national morals and the fouling of the very air. These violent reforms are as bad as the evils which they destroy—if not worse—but some people can't hear the wind until the roof blows off.

The corrosive influence of burlesque and the strip-tease has been so insidious that nowadays even the daily papers treat the subject casually, while the Representatives in Congress of young sons and daughters of the Americans sit by and utter no demurrer to the artistic pretensions of the meat show.

Housing Show

By Eugene Pharo.
Special Correspondence of The Post.

Philadelphia.

PERHAPS there doesn't seem to be any connection between a comely lass in a brief white rubber bathing suit, taking a dry shower-bath in the center of the convention hall where Franklin Delano Roosevelt was last nominated for the Presidency, and the collapse of a couple of slum houses in downtown Philadelphia last December, which killed seven persons. That there is, is just another of the ironies that at present make American life so horribly fascinating.

There is even a tenous connection between a white rubber mouse, placed realistically on the edge of an old tin tub, and the tragic event of last year.

These and other equally fantastic phenomena were recently part of the surge toward action after the collapse of the tenements emphasized tragically the need for more and better housing in Philadelphia.

Bathing Suit Lady Promoter For Plumber.

THE YOUNG LADY, who repeated her ablutions every five minutes in a glass-inclosed bath, to the accompaniment of a microphoned lecture by a benevolent representative of a Quaker plumbing concern, was merely intended to introduce—in a very clean way—a bit of sex appeal to the show. The white rubber mouse . . . well, that's a slightly different story.

S. Davis Wilson, who is the chief executive of the city, and intends to remain so in spite of what he considers fell designs of Gov. Earle to run the town from Harrisburg, wanted a record of the kind of conditions that caused the December collapse, and what he would see was done about them. So with the assistance of some WPA workers there was constructed a miniature block of houses of the ancient delapidated type, and nearby a quite insanitary bathroom of the kind provided in 1887 before the bathroom became our national shrine. Adjoining, there was constructed a block of model houses reconstructed from old slum dwellings, so that the original structures had been made to look solid and attractive.

In the ancient bathroom was a rubber mouse. And, according to the disappointed comments of some WPA youths who were showing off their handiwork to their girl friends when your correspondent was present, there had been a mongrel dog, contributing acidly to the delapidation of the tumble-down wooden fence surrounding the slum exhibit, when they prepared it for the show. Someone had taken away the indelicate toy dog, but the mouse had been left in suspense on the edge of the old tin tub. These exhibits were each signed in large gold letters with the mayor's name and were intended to emphasize his knowledge of slum conditions and his intention to change them.

Mayor Wilson Fights For Housing Authority.

TO THOSE who have been following housing events in the city and State, the show also related to the large electric signs that these nights shine from City Hall, demanding "Home Rule for Philadelphia." The latter signs, and some of the intention expressed in the show were designed to let Gov. Earle know that no matter how much trouble the mayor may have to kick up for Pennsylvania's and Philadelphia's New Deal, he will insist on being responsible for the appointment of his own Housing Authority, which is, under pending State legislation, to arrange for the planning, designing, construction and financing of low-cost housing in Philadephia.

One of the bills now being finally drafted for action gives the right of appointment of the Housing Authorities in Philadelphia and Allegheny to the Governor. It is expected that before long either one or two acts making it legally possible to go ahead with large-scale housing ventures, and to procure financial aid for that purpose from the source of universal wealth at Washington, will have been put through the legislative hopper. Threats of political reprisals are being counted upon by the mayor to insure the inclusion in them of safeguards of his own authority.

Evidence of the chief magistrate's passion for home rule, were, however, only part of the mixture of contrasts that the housing show produced. The rest included the somewhat differing aims of Federal and private financing plans and corporations; the simultaneous exhibition of heating systems that depended on coal, oil, and gas—making very vivid the warm competition that has produced the Pennsylvania bootleg coal impasse; a State booth in which, rather unaccountably, reams of publicity on unemployment insurance were handed out, simultaneously with the encouragement in nearby booths of 20 financing plans for attractive homes, that were offered to the insecurely employed, and an exhibit by the local Postoffice, with some stage props from Washington, that advertised the merits of postal savings bonds, and of air mail facilities.

The Federal Housing Administration, which co-operated with the Philadelphia Real Estate Board, and the Manufacturers' Housing Promotion Council in arranging the show, reported considerable interest and a large number of applications for mortgage insurance agreements from inquirers at its booth—which adjoined the site of operations of the bathing beauty. But aside from the throngs which gathered to watch the girl bathe, there were no greater jams of onlookers and inquirers than about a model house, moderately priced but luxuriously furnished, that was erected on the stage of the convention hall.

Show Demonstrated Interest In Building.

TAKEN ALL IN ALL, the show proved, what anyone might have suspected, that there are many thousands who would like nice homes, equipped with conveniences appropriate to 1937, either paid for outright, or financed so that they might procure them through no greater expenditures than those required for rent. There was a great willingness to ask questions, and to listen to answers, and if eager exhibitors argued from this a vastly augmented building and furnishing business this spring, there is no way—yet—to prove they were wrong.

But it cannot be forgotten that even today, when complete recovery has been proclaimed by Presidential fiat, important sales or contracts are not even expected to be concluded in the course of a passing conversation at a show. Nor that the Federal Housing Administration is unable to hand out without restraint, funds that desirous citizens think should be forthcoming automatically to enable them to satisfy ambitions which gigantic shows purposely have aroused in them. Yet even with the saltiest skepticism addressed to the statements of the managers and exhibitors, it seems safe to assume that there was more proof of buying and planning to buy or build, afforded by the show, than by any remotely similar event over the past few years. Many of the visitors indicated an ability to act by arriving in handsome cars which made parking spaces a problem.

That few of those who walked seemed to have trudged from the slums, was hardly worth mentioning.

Wheeler Attacks 45 N. Y. Bankers

By the Associated Press.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, has accused 45 New York bank officials of "accepting favors" from J. P. Morgan & Co. shortly before their firms participated in a $39,500,000 "rescue loan" to an important Morgan client, the vast Van Sweringen railway empire.

Wheeler, chairman of the Senate railroad finance inquiry, submitted evidence to show that all the participating banks lost sums ranging from $1,247,000 to $9,192,000 on the loan.

Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner, bluntly denied Wheeler's "insinuations."

"Not one of these 45 men would be influenced in the slightest by what you term favors," he declared. "Business isn't done that way in the circles in which we move."

Wheeler put in evidence a list of bank officers who he said had "accepted" stock in Alleghany Corporation—a Van Sweringen holding company—from Morgan at $20 a share, at about the time the stock was selling for $35 on the market.

Witnesses Called In Court Hearing

By the Associated Press.

Senator Ashurst, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which next Wednesday will begin hearings on the Supreme Court bill, has announced the list of witnesses for the first week as: Wednesday, Attorney General Cummings; Thursday, Assistant Attorney General Robert Jackson; Friday, former Senaotr Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, and Judge William Denman, of San Francisco.

The opposition will be given an equivalent number of days beginning the following Monday. Who its witnesses will be the opposing Senators have not disclosed, although they have sent invitations to prominent citizens, identified with labor, the farmers and the legal profession.

Time Lag

By Barnet Nover

THE HISTORIC doctrine of the freedom of the seas was not the only victim of the Senate's action in approving the Pittman bill. There was also the Kellogg pact. And there was also a century of previous efforts by the United States and the American people in the cause of world peace.

It was not so many years ago that the Kellogg pact was hailed as a great American contribution to the cause of international conciliation. Even today it remains, officially, an integral part of our foreign policy. Because of it we have refused to recognize the spurious independence of the puppet state of Manchukuo and Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. As recently as the Buenos Aires conference we proclaimed it one of the pillars of peace in this hemisphere.

Yet in the Senate debate on neutrality there was hardly a mention of the Kellogg pact which, at the instance of the United States, was approved by more than 60 nations. So far as the Pittman bill is concerned, no distinction of any kind is to be made between nations that live up to the pact and those who flout it. Aggressor and victim are to be treated alike. We shall only ask of nations involved in war: Have you the ships and have you the money? If they can answer in the affirmative, we shall continue to do business with them. If not, not.

THE JUICE of hope and idealism has been squeezed out of our attitude on world affairs; nothing is left but the leathery meat of complete pessimism. Yet, curiously, this spirit of black despair which appears to motivate Congress in legislating on neutrality fits in better with the facts of yesterday than with the facts of today.

Not long ago every international horizon appeared to be black with impending disaster. Manchuria had been conquered and the Japanese armies were pressing down into North China. Germany had torn up one section after another of the Treaty of Versailles and was proceeding to build up a formidable instrument of potential aggression. Italy, in cynical violation of solemn pledges, had invaded and conquered Ethiopia and in so doing had thumbed its nose both at Great Britain and the League of Nations.

It seemed only a matter of days or weeks before the outbreak of another world war. Those who suggested that the situation was not as bad as it seemed to be, that large-scale war would probably not occur in the near future and therefore, in view of that circumstance, it was still too early to throw in the sponge, were regarded as weak-minded optimists.

• • • •

NO WONDER, then, that, on this side of the water, panic became the order of the day. Since it was so generally believed that there was not the slightest possibility of averting war in Europe, the urge for isolation grew.

That urge still dominates our policy. The headlong flight from the anticipated conflagration continues. Yet in that flight we do not propose to abandon either our peace-time or our war-time foreign trade.

On the one hand Congress has agreed to continue for another three years the reciprocal trade program sponsored and assiduously carried out by Secretary Hull. On the other hand, the Senate has approved and the House may approve a scheme whereby, with the exception of arms, munitions and implements of war, we shall continue to sell anything and everything to the world, when war breaks out, provided the terms are spot cash and provided the foreign purchasers will themselves haul away the goods.

In other words, we propose to profit by disaster, while making no effort to avert it. We propose to cash in on the necessities of a mad world whose madness we repudiate. And we plan to act on the nonsensical presumption that it makes no difference to us whether war breaks out or not and who wins or loses.

Yet, oddly enough, this policy, which is based on complete pessimism regarding the present outlook for world peace, is being given permanence at a moment when the world situation is actually beginning to show signs of improvement.

• • • •

IT WOULD BE absurd to argue that the outlook for peace is rosy. It is not. But the feeling is growing that it is by no means hopeless.

"On the international outlook," writes Mrs. Anne O'Hare McCormick in the New York Times, following an interview with the French premier, "M. Blum, shares the view of every European leader the writer has seen. He is convinced the war danger has been greatly minimized in recent months. War fears, he says, have subsided in France, partly because the nation is strong and partly because proofs accumulate that no country is ready to take the responsibility for firing the first gun."

Certainly it is a hopeful sign that the dangers of a European conflict arising out of the Spanish civil war are now much less acute than they appeared to be some months ago. And it is equally significant that whereas until now it was the Fascist dictatorships that appeared to be taking the lead, the initiative is now being assumed by the democratic powers.

The French have a government so strong that their premier is in a position to talk quietly but firmly. The British, for their part, are now demonstrating that in the expensive game of bluff called re-armament they have no end of blue chips.

LOGICALLY this would seem to be the very moment for the United States to throw in its weight on the side of peace. Even so limited a step as our participation in the tripartite monetary accord with Great Britain and France had an extremely salutary effect on world affairs. Our reciprocal trade policy, however minor its gains may have been thus far, has nevertheless given enormous encouragement to those who for years have vainly urged the necessity of unblocking the channels of trade.

As sponsors of the Kellogg pact this would seem to be the right time for the strengthening of that agreement, making it a real force for peace in the world. Instead we now plan, in effect, to repudiate it; to act as though no hope was left in the world, so that the only policy for us to pursue is that of burying our heads in the sand.

Now the United States cannot really divest itself of its responsibilities as a great power. It cannot ignore the fact that a world war would have a disastrous effect on us whether we go in or stay out.

Those who have been urging mandatory neutrality as exemplified in the Pittman bill insist that the choice is between peace and war. If it were really as simple as that! That choice will have to be made, regardless of any laws, if and when the fighting begins. The choice now before us is between doing something to prevent war and doing nothing about it, or actually by our ill-conceived efforts giving aid and comfort to the war spirit. It is the latter policy which the Senate has approved.

For we have announced that, come what may, we shall in the name of neutrality become the silent war-time partner of the nation in command of the seas. At one fell swoop we give a new lease on life to the evil spirit of autarchy, a new encouragement to navalism and a valuable hostage to Mars. It is not the least cock-eyed aspect of this action that it is undertaken in the blessed name of peace!

Successful Play

By William Lyon Phelps

Family Life.

This is the title of one of the most successful plays now running on the New York stage, and I hope by the time these lines appear in print, secondary companies will be playing this same comedy in various towns throughout the country. For everybody ought to see this play.

The authors are Moss and George Kaufman. I regard them as public benefactors. This is not a farce, it is a comedy. But it is one of the most outrageously funny comedies I ever saw. The audience is in constant hilarity. It is original in its characters, situations and dialogue. The unexpected always happens.

• • • •

Now the first business of a play in the theater is to entertain the audience. The theater is not a preacher or a teacher. It is to represent human nature in various aspects and to do it in such a fashion that the attention of the audience will be seized and held from beginning to end. A dull play has the only inexcusable fault.

• • • •

Now "You Can't Take It With You" is enormously diverting without any obscenities, blasphemies, or vulgarities. I call the authors public benefactors because in a time when everybody has something to worry about, those who see this play will for two hours forget everything sad or troublesome, and authors who can increase our happiness by pure diversion are benefactors.

But in addition to the mirth and fun, there is something which will do good to every man and woman who sees this play. Remember its title and see I Timothy, vi: 7.

Compromise of Democracy, Fascism Advances in Poland

Col. Koc Announces New League Furthering Rydz-Smigly Reorganization.

By Webb Miller.
By the United Press.

Announcement by Col. Adam Koc of formation of the "League of National Union" recently marks the present regime's third step on its path toward reorganization of Poland's political life on a basis similar to the other totalitarion governments of Europe.

Other steps will follow in Marshal Edward Rydz-Smigly's carefully-planned scheme to replace peacefully, by evolutionary methods, the present political stagnation, which is neither democracy nor exactly a formal dictatorship, by a new order to be "guided by a single will."

The first step was taken last May when Rydz-Smigly asked Koc to formulate a program "suited to the present interests of the Polish state."

The second was taken February 21 when Koc, acting as a "stalking horse," broadcast a statement of general principles designed to test the nation's reaction to the idea.

New Strategy Noted.

The project is exceptionally interesting because it represents an effort by a regime actually already in power to form behind it a broad-based popular support on voluntary principles for an authoritarian regime.

This method differs from other authoritarian movements which either have forcibly seized power with a small determined party and then imposed their rule or first formed a large strong party sufficient to take over the government.

What degree of success Rydz-Smigly will have is still problematical, but its chief supporters profess satisfaction with the nation's first reactions and intend to proceed with the project.

In any event, the Rydz-Smigly regime, although hitherto lacking in mass popular support, is far stronger than any opposition because it is solidly backed by the army, the police and the government bureaucracy.

Keep Army Non-Political.

Thus, in case of eventual necessity, it could fall back upon a full-fledged military dictatorship; but Rydz-Smigly is known to be opposed to this idea. He said once: "The army must keep out of politics."

Poland has been brought to the cross-roads of political reformation by deterioration of the government's prestige, inherited from Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, and the consequent rising of the strength of the opposition, especially the Nationalists. Moreover, the pressure of the international situation has required a strong, popularly-supported government.

Rydz-Smigly's program is designed to draw support from all classes and parties on the wide basis of nationalism, military preparedness and agrarian and economic reform. This includes improvement of the condition of the peasants, who potentially are a strong political force, and the development of industry.

Six-Point Program Urged.

The principle points for this program thus far promulgated in a general way are:

1. To base national life on the 1935 constitution which limits the arbitrary powers of Parliament which have been a source of political disorder.

2. To concentrate the national will upon national defense.

3. To protect the Roman Catholic faith.

4. To reject all economic and political doctrines which serve the interests of only a single social class, including opposition to communism.

5. To retain the system of private property and individual initiative. However, the state must have the right to regulate production and protect industries having a usefulness for national defense.

6. To render impossible external influences which attempt to exert aliens pressure on the political and social life of Poland.

Blum to Seek Financial Aid By Huge Loan

Conservative Plan Adopted; Free Domestic Gold Market Offered.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 5.—Premier Leon Blum turned tonight to the most conservative instincts of the nation in a series of measures to rescue his Leftist government from financial difficulties.

To obtain support of wary French capital abroad, or in hiding at home, the Socialist premier offered restoration of a free domestic gold market, a sharp government program of economy and a guaranteed national defense loan, repayable either in francs, dollars or pounds.

By the loan, to be the only one in 1937, Blum seeks to procure some 30,000,000,000 francs.

Franc Price Guarded.

For the moment, the franc was expected to rest approximately at its present level, which is about 21.50 to the dollar and 105 to the pound. No definite pegging rate was announced, however.

A commission was appointed to guard the franc, its membership comprising Emile Labeyrie, governor of the Bank of France; Charles Rist, honorary governor; Paul Baudoin, director general of the Bank of Indo-China, and Jacques Rueff, director general of movement of funds in the French treasury.

Blum's announcements were greeted generally with praise on all sides in Parliament, and French stocks reacted favorably. The franc, however, sagged sharply against the dollar and pound in unofficial trading through banks after the close of the Paris exchange.

Uncertainty Reflected.

Dealers said the buying of dollars and pounds reflected some continued uncertainty over the new financial measures. The dollar touched 21.90 francs, and the pound 107 francs.

Although conservative financial circles have exhibited no great enthusiasm for the Popular Front government, many approved today's orthodox measures as one means of getting out of a one-way financial street.

Even sound money partisans like Joseph Caillaux, former minister of finance, have agreed to make week-end radio appeals to the country to subscribe to the new defense loan as a demonstration of patriotism.

Blum will explain his program by radio tomorrow, and President Lebrun will go on the air Sunday.

Hope for Gold Inflow.

The government admittedly, however, hopes that restored confidence will reverse the flow of gold, starting homeward, thereby making any export restrictions unnecessary.

Announcing his intention to enforce economy in government, Blum promised the "needs of the treasury will be brought to a figure which should not exceed the normal capacity of treasury placements or loans."

Improvement of economic conditions and "reabsorption" of the unemployed have lent a better tone to France's internal finances, the Premier continued, and "the government is resolved not to hinder a return to real equilibrium."

The lifting of gold trading restrictions will become effective Monday under a request to the Bank of France to give general authorization for free trading within the nation on that date.

U. S. Regrets Hitler Remark By LaGuardia

German Embassy Receives Formal Apology; Mayor Repeats Views.

For the third time, the United States Government has had to express its "regrets" to Nazi Germany because of anti-Nazi incidents in New York City.

The State Department yesterday apologized to the Berlin government for Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia's remark in a speech Wednesday night that a figure of Adolf Hitler should be placed in a "Chamber of Horrors" at the forthcoming New York exposition.

However, after James C. Dunn, chief of the State Department's division of western European affairs, told a German representative that LaGuardia's views "do not represent the attitude of this Government," the Mayor of New York said, according to the Associated Press:

"I still stand by what I said and repeat it again. A brown-shirted fanatic is menacing the peace of the world."

"Mr. Hitler's own government was quick to recognize that I meant him. I don't know whether it was a guilty conscience or my power of description, but in any case that becomes irrelevant now."

Previously, the United States was called upon to apologize similarly after an anti-Nazi group, on July 26, 1935, had boarded the liner Bremen in New York Harbor and had torn the Nazi emblem from the ship.

On September 14 of the year "regrets" were expressed again over remarks of Magistrate Louis B. Brodsky, of New York, who had criticized Germany when he released five of the six men held as a result of the rioting.

"The black flag of piracy" was one of the terms used by the magistrate in referring to the flag incident. The State Department at that time rebuked the magistrate for his comment, "which was not a relevant or legitimate part of his judicial decision."

LaGuardia criticized the Nazis at that time and later denied a German citizen a New York massage operator's license because, he said, the Nazis discriminated against Americans doing business in Germany.

After LaGuardia's "chamber of horrors" speech in New York Wednesday, there was a storm of protest in German newspapers.

Berlin dispatches said yesterday that attacks on LaGuardia and on conditions in New York, published in "Der Angriff," newspaper controlled by Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebels, have been clipped by the American Embassy and forwarded to Washington.

Dunn carried the formal regrets of the American Government to the German Embassy yesterday morning. Addressing Dr. Hans Thomsen, German counselor, Dunn said:

"In this country the right of freedom of speech is guaranteed by the Constitution to every citizen and is cherished as a part of the national heritage. This, however, does not lessen the regret of the Government when utterances either by private citizens or by public officials speaking in an individual capacity give offense to a government with which we have official relations.

"I very earnestly deprecate the utterances which have thus given offense to the German government. They do not represent the attitude of this Government toward the German government. It is our policy to conduct the officials relations with other nations upon a basis of complete and mutual respect for the rights and sensibilities of each other."

Farmers 6-4 Against Change In High Court

Gallup Poll Finds Urban Voters Less Hostile to Enlargement Plan.

What effect has President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan had on his following? And what does the country think Congress should do about the court? These questions are answered in part by another poll of public opinion to appear in The Washington Post Sunday.

By George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 5.—As President Roosevelt plans to "take to the air" next Tuesday, probably to mobilize support for his Supreme Court proposal, the American Institute of Public Opinion poll shows the farmers of the Nation voting approximately six to four against the court plan.

Farmers Favoring Court Change	42%
Farmers Opposed to Court Change	58%

The question used in the poll is this: "Are you in favor of President Roosevelt's proposal regarding the Supreme Court?"

Washington observers declare that if the President talks about the court change in his fireside chat, one of his prime objectives in doing so will be to try to swing farm opinion into line with his plan.

The National Grange, a large farm organization, has voiced opposition to the proposed court change. The American Farm Bureau Federation and the Farmers Union have remained neutral so far, but E. H. Everson, president of the Farmers Union, is personally opposed to the court expansion plan.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has been doing his bit toward lining up the farmers behind the court plan. In a recent press interview he intimated that the New Deal program for farm aid might not pass the inspection of the Supreme Court as it is now constituted.

The farm vote against the court plan in the Institute poll helps to explain why the New Deal is making its special effort to appeal to farmers. New Dealers believe, it is said, that if the President can line up the farm vote and the labor vote—two blocs in whose interest the New Deal has put through much legislation in the last four years—the court battle will be more than half won. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has already come out in favor of the President's plan to enlarge the high judiciary.

Urban Voters Less Opposed.

In contrast to farm opinions, the urban vote in the Institute poll is much less opposed to the court change. Ballots received from city voters indicate an almost even division against the plan. The vote is as follows:

Urban Voters Favoring Court Change	48%
Urban Voters Opposed to Court Change	52%

Following the President's fireside chat next Tuesday the Institute of Public Opinion will make another report showing the extent to which the address changes public opinion regarding the court plan.

Poll Standings.

American Institute of Public Opinion polls provide the following picture to date of national sentiment on the President's measure to reorganize the Supreme Court:

	Favor Court Change	Oppose Court Change

New Talking Clock Tells Its Owners The Time of Day

Big Laurel, Va., March 5 (AP).—Dobie Griffith, who turned to watch repairing after suffering an injury in a mining accident 19 years ago, said today he had perfected a "talking clock" which speaks the time of day instead of striking it.

Operating with a phonographic arrangement and regulating itself, the clock, Griffith said, might be substituted for train and bus callers.

A model, 12 by 18 inches, not only announces the hours, but heralds their approach at five-minute intervals from 15 minutes before "striking time."

Griffith said his clock could be manufactured in any size desired ranging from the proportions of a watch to that of a grandfather clock.

Court Attack By Roosevelt Spurs Enemies

approved. He predicted that if the plan is pressed, Democrats will lose upward of 75 House seats in the next election in those districts that are hostile or closely divided on the plan.

Senate opponents at yesterday's strategy conference were reported to have decided on the witness they will first put before the Senate Judiciary Committee on Monday, March 15, to oppose the program, but carefully concealed his identity. Only one opposition witness as yet has been definitely scheduled to testify, and he was granted permission by Chairman Henry F. Ashurst of the Senate committee. He is Francis Kinnicutt, president of the Allied Patriotic Societies.

While most of his colleagues on the opposition talked only "not for quotes" on the President's speech, Senator Burke, loyal follower of Mr. Roosevelt on most issues, and whose definition of the New Deal in 1934 was accepted by the President as his own, spoke out frankly at a press conference.

Burke said he did not regard this as a party issue. He said his colleagues of the opposition were prepared to combat every move for the plan.

"We will fight it out to the bitter end," he said, "but it will not be a 'bitter end' for those who oppose the program."

"I think if the President puts his plan across, there will be a new alignment of parties in this country, and it will come before 1940," said Burke. "If the President succeeds in this, that fact alone would not result in a new alignment. But it would be immediately followed by passage of a class of legislation, sustained by the new court, and affecting agriculture, labor and business, that many Democrats could not support. It will be a class of legislation the people never dreamed of. I don't think it would be possible for anyone who believed in States' rights to go along."

Believes Roosevelt Mistaken.

The Nebraskan said the President's speech convinced him Mr. Roosevelt is interested only in "changing the complexion of the Supreme Court," and if that fails, other proposed judiciary reforms will be dropped, unless Congress takes them up. He said he thought the President had failed to appraise "the nonpartisan depths" of the opposition to the court feature.

"If the President really believes what he said last night, that the opposition is coming from those who opposed him in the campaign, including 'defeatist lawyers,' he is making a very serious error," added Burke. "The bitterest opposition comes from those who supported him in the last campaign."

Senator Wheeler observed that "the Democratic platform, dictated by the President himself, provided for meeting New Deal reforms by Constitutional processes. The conditions which exist in the Ohio River Valley and the dust bowl are identical with those which prevailed at the time the platform was adopted."

Messages Favor Speech.

Only two references to his Thursday night speech were made by the President at his press conference yesterday. Mr. Roosevelt said letters and telegrams received at the White House were running 7 to 1 in approval of the speech.

The President told reporters he referred to a decision by Federal Judge Gore, of Tennessee, when he asked in his speech how TVA projects could be completed or extended to other areas "while the lowest courts have not hesitated to paralyze its operations by sweeping injunctions." TVA was enjoined by Judge Gore from building new transmission lines and serving new customers.

Hillman, in his radio appeal for the President's plan last night, called on friends of labor "to do everything in your power to let your representatives know that in this emergency you expect Congress to stand by the expressed will of the people."

Charges Prejudice.

He said the Supreme Court has "nullified" much New Deal legislation because of the "personal prejudices" of the court majority.

Senator McAdoo, in his second radio appeal for the President's plan, declared an analysis of his mail on the court issue" reveals that virtually all of the denunciations come from Republicans."

"It is my firm conviction that to make the Supreme Court more representative of all classes of our people will enhance their respect for it and will conduce to the wise development of that essential elasticity of our Constitution, without which it would not have proved the shelter of our liberties for the past 148 years."

McAdoo's speech was entitled "The President Is Right."

Gen. Johnson said of the President's plan: "According to its enemies, it couldn't be worse if it were a bill to abolish mothers, change the flag to red and burn the Bible.

"According to some of its friends, it is Moses coming round the mountain with the tables of the law—not intended to influence the court at all, but only to sort of goose it along so it can get its spring chores done before next winter's snows fly.

"As usual, the truth lies in between the extreme ballyhoo on both sides. While I am for the proposal and usually like to lay into it hard in a speech, I'm going to try not to get het up on this one. It's too serious."

Grand Council Finds Italy's Finances Sound

Rome, March 5 (AP).—The Fascist Grand Council, the highest body in the nation's single political party, declared itself satisfied with Italy's financial situation tonight.

An announcement, after the grand council's third meeting this week, said the Bank of Italy had a gold reserve of 4,021,000,000 lire (about $201,050,000) on February 20 against a circulation of 15,677,000,000 lire (about $783,850,000).

These crusaders against tuberculosis yesterday inspected construction progress on the children's health camp to be opened this summer. With framework of the administration building in the background, members of the group are (left to right) Willard C. Smith, Walter S. Pratt, Dr. James G. Townsend, Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, Dr. J. A. Murphy, Dr. William Charles White and Dr. Numa Adams.

Officers of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association yesterday inspected construction progress on the children's health camp in Anacostia which is scheduled for completion in June.

Accommodating 125 boys and girls, twice the capacity of the Upshur street camp which it replaces, the new summer institution is on Bald Eagle Hill overlooking the Potomac. Its three dormitories, administration building and infirmary are being erected as a $79,000 WPA project.

Led by Dr. James G. Townsend, president, the tuberculosis association group found the dormitory buildings nearly finished and the administration quarters still in the framework stage. The concrete piles on which the infirmary will rest were in place, but work on the superstructure has not been started.

Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, managing director of the association, said funds are yet to be obtained for equipping the camp with a cook stove, refrigeration units, cots, bed linen and other essentials. She expressed optimism that all arrangements will be made in time to open the three-month camp late in June.

Other members of the inspection party were Walter S. Pratt, jr., treasurer; Willard C. Smith, second vice president, and Dr. William Charles White, former president and member of the executive committee; also Dr. Numa P. G. Adams, of Howard University Medical School, and Dr. J. A. Murphy, of the District Health Department.

Wallace Urges Crippling Tax On Crops Exceeding Quotas

Wallace's action raises directly the issue of constitutionality, of special significance with the President's court program a major political issue.

"Suppose the first three steps under the granary program," Tolley said yesterday, "won't hold this growing reserve (of stored commodities), and another Federal Farm Board collapse threatens. Suppose, finally, we have, say, 1,000,000,000 bushels of wheat piled up in the country.

To Prevent Recurrence.

"The Government would be loaded up, on the one hand, and, on the other, prices would be sliding and the farmers in a bad way.

"Then, just to be sure that the farm board experience wasn't repeated, it was the Secretary's proposal for some form of definite control of production.

"Regulation under the interstate commerce clause has been proposed. That is all right to start with, we believe, but some concrete form of control, it was clear, is needed. Then the State compact idea was advanced, but our experience with State compacts in relation to tobacco has shown this not satisfactory.

"Thus we are pushed back to some form of taxation."

First Three Steps.

The three "steps" in Wallace's program which would precede invocation of the punitive tax include continuance of the present Soil Conservation Act program with its benefits for diversion of land from uneconomic uses, placing of a "plank" under prices through commodity loans which would fix a base price, and stabilization of supplies through storage of the commodities which the Government accumulates in this way.

Probability that this provision will be included in the granary bill which the Agriculture Department will suggest to Congress was indicated in the statement of Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to The Post last night, that he and other farm leaders already have indorsed such a proposal to Congressional committees.

O'Neil is a member of the committee entrusted by a January conference of farm leaders with the task of drafting a program embracing all major aims of principal farm organizations. This committee was in session all day yesterday. It expects to report within a week or ten days.

"Basic Problem" Cited.

"What we are working on now," said O'Neal, "is the major thing in agriculture—assurance to all agricultural producers in the United States of parity of income and parity of price. Farm tenancy, crop insurance and the other things the President has recommended are all right, but what we are working on now is the basic problem.

"The solution should be some form of Federal aid to give the farmer control of production and distribution of agricultural commodities."

O'Neal said the recommendations now being drafted are very incomplete as yet, pointing out that a great many diverse objectives must be embraced if all groups are to indorse the program.

"But the program will go beyond the 'ever-normal granary' proposals," he concluded emphatically.

off of the lights wouldn't have mattered.

The President's budget message asked $562,425,709 for the Navy. Apparent reductions total $45,870,281. All but a small portion of this last sum, however, is merely a deferred appropriation in connection with new ship appropriation, and does not represent any sweeping reductions in the prepared Navy budget.

The budget estimates do not go beyond the defunct restrictions of the naval treaties of Washington, 1922, and of London, 1930, in ordering replacement vessels or other elements of the Navy, but tend to bring the Navy nearer those standards.

Navy personnel, in enlisted men, is to be expanded by 5,000 men. The building program of 81 vessels, including 2 battleships, 11 cruisers, 48 destroyers and 17 submarines is to receive an appropriation of $130,000,000.

By this time the Administration wheelhorses had been informed, and in a short time the leader, Rayburn, after paying tribute to Umstead's sincerity, suggested that inquiry among the Administration's departments should be taken before such a proposal was offered.

President to See Governors on Aid

By the Associated Press.

A decisive development appeared in the offing yesterday in the tug-of-war between the Federal Government and the States over the financing of relief.

Governors of six populous States prepared to take a protest to President Roosevelt today against reduction of Federal spending for work relief. They said they would suggest an "efficient and sound" solution.

On the eve of the President's conference with these chief executives from New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Rhode Island, latest WPA figures showed a drop, from $26,610,000 in January to $16,880,00 in September in State relief spending which accompanied virtual cessation of Federal expenditures for direct relief.

WPA officials said in some States "the shortage of public funds available for general relief purposes compelled a reduction in the existing relief standards."

Rev. O. F. Blackwelder Will Present Lecture

The Rev. Oscar F. Blackwelder, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, will preach the fourth of the Lenten lectures given in the Mayflower Hotel Monday morning. The lectures are under the general direction of Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Blackwelder, speaking at 11 a. m., will have as his subject, "The Difference Jesus Makes."

House Rushes Compromise to Bar Sea Strike

Provides Sailors Need Not Carry U. S. Continuous Discharge Books.

Acting swiftly to halt increasing possibilities of another maritime strike, the House Merchant Marine Committee yesterday found an acceptable compromise in the situation created by the seamen's insistence that they will not carry the Government continuous discharge books.

Hereafter seamen may or may not carry the books, at their own option. If they so desire, they may carry instead a Government certificate of identification.

The seamen's objection to the books has been that in the books were recorded such matters as whether they had previously been out on strike on other jobs. They claimed that these books were used to blacklist them from holding new jobs.

The new certificates will carry all information required in the continuous discharge books except character references, ability standards and the continuous service record.

Harry Lundeberg, the chief of the Sailors Union of the Pacific, told the committee and, later, reporters, that he thought the solution was entirely acceptable.

Joseph B. Curran, leader in the East Coast seamen's unions, similarly held the compromise to be sound.

Child Labor Ratification Plea Made by Lehman

Albany, N. Y., March 5 (AP).—Gov. Lehman carried his fight for New York State ratification of the Federal child labor amendment direct to the people tonight with a radio appeal in which he asserted "this is the only practical way to end exploitation of children in industry throughout America."

The governor's appeal came as members of the State Assembly of 75 Republicans and 75 Democrats prepared to vote Tuesday. The Democratic Senate ratified four weeks ago.

Man, 79, Becomes Father.

Tampa, Fla., March 5 (AP).—Alfred O. Knapp, retired printer who waited 79 years to become a father, realized his ambition today. A six and one-half-pound daughter was born to Mrs. Knapp, "much younger," at a Tampa hospital. The parents met and were married here two years ago.

HE FEELS ready and eager for work this morning. Ready to make decisions, interview salesmen, do anything else the day's work brings up. Yet last night he was too tired to dictate, to see anyone, to consider any new projects. He just didn't seem to be able to get his mind on his work around quitting time last night—yet this morning he is alert and sure of himself.

Your prospects may be businessmen or housewives, but they're all alike on this point: The day is for action; the evening for relaxation. The tired housewife doesn't want to think about a new car, moving to another apartment, hiring a maid or buying used porch furniture in the evening. She saves that time of the day for mental, as well as physical, relaxation. But appeal to her in the morning and she's a different woman, fresh, alert, untired, ready to make buying decisions.

Religious Liberty, Adventists' Topic

The eight Seventh Day Adventist Churches of Washington and Takoma Park will join denominational churches throughout the United States today in celebration of their national religious liberty day.

A program suggested by the religious liberty department of the world's general conference of the organization, with headquarters in Washington, will be used as basis for the day's service. Two of the readings that will be given are entitled "Living in Ominous Times," by the Rev. Heber H. Votaw, and "The Sword Versus the Cross," by the Rev. C. S. Longacre.

Members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church will be urged today to work for the principles of freedom, and to warn their friends and neighbors that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

Mr. Longacre will speak in the Takoma Park Church at 10:45 a. m. Services in all the churches will begin at that hour.

Russian to Speak.

Paul Voronaeff, young Russian evangelist who spent 13 years in Soviet Russia, will speak at Fourth Presbyterian Church tomorrow night on "How Do You Know 'It Can't Happen Here?'" Following the lecture the Rev. James H. Miers, pastor, will give a 15-minute talk on "Communism and World Conditions in the Light of Prophecy."

Alexander Speaks.

Will C. Alexander, United States Federal Housing Administrator, will speak at the forty-sixth annual banquet of the Vaughn class of Calvary Baptist Church Sunday School at the church next Friday. William E. Harward, president of the class, announced Dr. Allan A. Stockdale, former pastor of First Congregational Church, will also be a speaker.

Saturday Sermonette

By the Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, Ph. D., D. D.

Matthew 16:18, "Upon this rock I will build my church."

The church of which I am pastor is celebrating its 135th anniversary this week. As I have been studying the history of this particular church I have naturally been wondering about the future of the Christian church as a whole. The church has played a significant part in days past; it is exerting a tremendous influence for good today; but does the church have any future? I am sure it has. As a young man, deeply interested in life at its best, I would hardly dedicate myself to the service of the church if I did not possess a genuine confidence in the future of the church.

I will go even further than that. Not only do I believe the church has a future, but I believe the future of the church is to be even more glorious than its past or present. This conviction is based not only upon my faith in the divine origin, the divine mission, and the scriptural prediction of the ultimate triumph of the church, but also upon the general tendencies of the world in which we live. A mere casual observance might lead us to a very different conclusion. However, a closer and more discerning insight into modern trends reveals a growing appreciation for justice, opportunity, the abundant life, interracial and international good will, honesty, truth and goodness. Now these things are simply phases of the tremendous program that Christ set in motion during his earthly ministry. He knew that a program for intelligent, happy, constructive living would be worthless without putting behind it an organized group of capable, consecrated men and women. And the bond that unites this group is common devotion for and loyalty to a person, and that person is Christ. "Upon this rock I will build my church." Herein lies the secret of the mighty past, the effective present, and the triumphant future of the Christian church.

Young People to Hold Service At Mt. Vernon Place Church

Young people of the congregation will take charge of evening services at Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, South, tomorrow. Walter A. 'Man' Is Subject Of Lesson-Sermon

"Man" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Isaiah 43:10: "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord, and my servant whom I have chosen."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." (John 17:3).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind."

RADIO SERVICES.

Walk-Out or Sit-Down May Be Called Tuesday in Pittsburgh Only.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, March 5.—Representatives of the management and workers of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. kept a tight-lipped silence tonight over reports of a threatened strike unless a wage increase is granted to the 8,000 employes at the Pittsburgh plant.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph said it learned the walkout, or a "sit-down" protest, may be called Tuesday to enforce the demands submitted by employe representatives in conjunction with Local 601, United Electrical and Radio Workers of America.

Workers said a 20 per cent hike in wages had been asked. This request was originally expressed last November.

Would Keep Bonuses.

Representatives of the employes seek extension of the company's voluntary plan of bonuses. They have received between 8 and 14 per cent bonuses at the end of each month since last May under the company's share-earnings plan. At Christmas, the workers were voted a bonus of $1 for each year of service and an additional $5 each.

The bonus affected 12,000 employes in Pittsburgh and its suburbs and 45,000 in the country. The new wage demands involves only workers at the Pittsburgh plant.

No Chrysler Ultimatum.

Detroit, March 5 (AP).—Lester L. Colbert, resident attorney for the Chrysler Corporation, said after a conference with officials of the United Automobile Workers of America late today that Homer Martin, union president, had not presented an ultimatum on the demand for recognition as sole bargaining agency.

Martin earlier today said the union would demand an immediate answer on the recognition question, one of the points before the conference.

When Martin emerged from the conference room, he said the negotiators were "much closer together" on recognition, and that the discussion will be resumed Monday.

Richard T. Frankensteen, U. A. W. A. organizational director, said "we have received our answer." He would not amplify that statement.

Woolworth Strikers Win.

Detroit, March 5 (U.P.).—Twelve hundred "5 and 10" workers in 40 metropolitan stores of the F. W. Woolworth Co. were granted wage increases and maximum hour demands in a strike settlement signed tonight. The agreement ended a week-long sit-down strike of 150 girls in the company's main Detroit store and a branch.

Chicago Taxi Strike.

Chicago, March 5 (U.P.).—Taxi drivers for the Yellow and Checker Cab companies voted a city-wide strike late today at a joint meeting attended by 600. They spread immediately through the city to notify the remainder of Chicago's 6,000 drivers of the strike vote.

Soldiers May Be Sent To End Monks' Strike

Cairo, Egypt, March 5 (AP).—Advices reaching here tonight indicated a group of Coptic monks—"stay-in" strikers—still were holding their desert monastery despite arbitration moves by authorities.

The chief magistrate of Assiut, surrounded by a formidable police escort, set out for the monastery today in an effort to end the strike. Lacking news from the magistrate, authorities expressed the opinion the conferences with the monks had reached a deadlock and troops may have to be dispatched tomorrow. The monks became "stay-in" strikers to enforce demands for a new abbot and increased social privileges.

Empress of Japan, 34, Observes Her Birthday

The Empress had with her for the day 3-year-old Crown Prince Akihito Tsugu. He was returned from the seaside palace at Hayama for the occasion. High school girls throughout the empire were granted a special holiday.

County Session Asked.

Topeka, Kans., March 5 (AP).—Representative James J. Wilson introduced in the House today a petition asking permission for his home county, Cherokee County, to secede and join Missouri if 3.2 beer is outlawed in Kansas.

Countess Barbara Ends 2-Year Vow, 'Pens More Poetry

COUNTESS VON HAUGWITZ-REVENTLOW.

New York, March 5 (AP).—A vow by the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, the former Barbara Hutton, that none of her poetry would ever be published again has been broken.

The heiress made the vow two years ago.

Now a 20-line poem, entitled "Bowl of Jade," appears under her name on the dedication page of a new book by John Goette, recording the history of Chinese jade through 3,000 years.

It runs thus:

"I bring you a bowl of jade
For your slender hands to hold,
Green as the mountain waters,
And infinitely old.

"I pray you to place it gently
On a table of gold brocade,
Like an emerald glowing
In either sun or shade.

"Then should you strike it softly,
The music that you will hear
Will be clear as bells of heaven
Ringing in your ear.

"The texture is smooth as petals
And cool beneath your touch;
It will soothe away all sorrow
Should you caress it much.

"I bring you my poor dreams
Caught in a green jade bowl,
Carved untold years ago
Out of a Chinese soul."

Read and 2 Pals Indicted in Killing Of Elderly Farmer

William Read, Lawrence Gingell and War Joseph Kirby yesterday were indicted by a Montgomery County grand jury for the murder of Elwood Matthews, elderly Silver Spring, Md., farmer, on November 21, last year.

The trio also was indicted on several charges of robbery with a deadly weapon, assault with attempt to murder, housebreaking and larceny and receiving stolen goods in connection with the depredations of the "Read gang" in the county over a period of four years.

The grand jury returned indictments against Milburn, Read and Richard Stockton, other members of the gang, for robbery, housebreaking, conspiracy to murder, concealed weapons and receiving stolen goods.

Milburn Read, known as "Peewee," was arraigned in the Circuit Court. He pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for Thursday. Gingell and Kirby, who are being held with William Read at Charleston, W. Va., on charges of murdering a salesman and burning his body in his car, will be brought here to testify at the trial.

Bea Gottlieb Was a Wildcat, Defendant Says

Phelan Asserts He Was Seized, Kissed, Bitten in Ladies' Room.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 5.—The defense explanation of what happened in the ladies' room of a seaside hotel the Labor Day night Bea Gottlieb, former golfing partner of the former Prince of Wales, claims she was criminally attacked, was offered by Defendant Carey Phelan today in County Court.

Phelan, gray-haired, 44, former boxer and well known on Broadway, said:

"We went to a 'dirty picture' show in the hotel. It was 3 o'clock in the morning. We stayed about 30 minutes. Miss Gottlieb was the only woman in the place."

"Then we went to the veranda for some more Scotch and sodas.

"Then Miss Gottlieb asked me to show her where the ladies' room was, and I did. Then she asked me to show her where the light switch was. I turned on the light and she grabbed me.

"When she kissed me, she bit me, and I grabbed her by the arms and shoved her away from me and left the room. I told her: 'You're a blankety blank wildcat.'"

Miss Gottlieb, before the State rested its case today, testified that Phelan followed her to the ladies' room and attacked her, inflicting injuries that included a cracked wrist.

Phelan's defense opened with his charge, from the stand, that Mrs. Hymie Bushel, Miss Gottlieb's attorney, called him to her office and demanded $50,000 on threat of serious consequences.

Phelan, proprietor of a New York restaurant and concessionaire at the Seaside Hotel bar, said he told her he didn't have that kind of money, whereupon she told him to get it from Harold Keays, middle-aged Wall Street broker, who was host to Miss Gottlieb and two other women at the hotel over the holiday week-end last year.

"You're going to be locked up if you don't get some money yourself or get it from Keays," he quoted Mrs. Bushel as saying.

Phelan said he served the party many drinks over the week-end, that Miss Gottlieb threw water over him when he tried to awaken her the morning preceding Labor Day, but later came to the bar and told him "it was all in fun."

He denied vigorously any attempt to attack her, and said Miss Virginia Forsythe, a member of the party, told him after Miss Gottlieb packed a bag and started screaming:

Edward to Marry Soon After April 27

London, March 5 (U.P.).—Edward, Duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson will be married immediately after her divorce decree becomes final April 27, a close friend of the former British monarch revealed tonight.

The friend received a letter from Edward saying his honeymoon would be spent near Arnoldstein, Austria. Edward visited there recently. Mrs. Simpson plans to have her effects transferred late this month from Cannes to Enzesfeld; Edward's temporary home.

Reich to Adulterate Wheat Bread With Corn

Berlin, March 5 (AP).—Striving to conserve all available breadstuffs, Germany today ordered bakers to put a 7 per cent admixture of corn meal in all wheat bread.

The order, effective March 15, says the quality of bread will not suffer, and reminds the people it was often used for mixing bread flour before the World War.

'Dual Sunset' Eclipse.

Lima, Peru, March 5 (AP).—Peru will witness a "double sunset" on June 8. It will be caused by a 7-minute eclipse of the sun, the longest in 1,200 years.

Layton Sentenced To One to 2 Years In Pershing Fraud

Justice James M. Proctor, in District Court, yesterday sentenced Alfred M. Layton to an indeterminate prison sentence of from one to two years as a result of his plea two weeks ago that he was guilty of using the mails to defraud.

Layton, for almost two years a fugitive, and whose $10,000 bond was forfeited only a short time before he was apprehended in Atlantic City, was the promoter of the Pershing Memorial Bust Committee that was to have obtained by popular subscription from amongst Gen. Pershing's friends funds with which to purchase a bust of the war-time leader and present it to the Nation as a memorial.

Some $11,000 was collected by the committee, and when the heads of the organization found Layton had gone far beyond their plans and had solicited scores of the country's leading businessmen and civic leaders, a complaint was made. Upon his arrest it was found that little of the money he had collected was available.

He was indicted on six counts of use of the mails to defraud, but was allowed to plead on only two counts. On each he was given the same sentence, but Judge Proctor ordered them to be counted concurrently.

Tearful Jimmy Forgets Baseball and the Nats When Mother's Near Collapse Forces Return

By a Staff Correspondent.

Palatka, Fla., March 5.—The Brady family suddenly forsook Florida today ere little Jimmy Brady could crown his run-away trip from Washington by watching the Senators in training at Orlando.

Mrs. James Brady, sr., wife of the U. S. Veterans Bureau solicitor whose son's runaway caused a police search throughout the East, this morning was near collapse from the excitement attending the developments, and thus the Bradys decided to return to Washington immediately.

And tears came to the eyes of the chubby 12-year-old whose secret expedition to Florida five days ago had been spurred by the burning desire to be near his baseball idols.

But the watery-eyed lad's sadness was not the consequence of his parents' failure to take him to Orlando on this, his long-anticipated day when he was to watch the Senators train with the added comfort of parental consent.

For the first time, Jimmy, who had found his way to Orlando strictly on his own, who had submitted calmly to reprimands and retained a cherubic expression, appeared to realize the consequences of his runaway.

"Gee, mom," he said, "I didn't think you'd take it that way. I don't care if you want to take me home. I can see the ball players any time in Washington. Can't I, dad?" Jimmy was fully penitent.

The developments in her son's disappearance, and the persistence with which the Brady family attract curious crowds who wanted a glimpse of the much-publicized boy, contributed to Mrs. Brady's near breakdown.

It had been the intention of the family to remain a week in Florida after hastening to the side of Jimmy, but prospects of calm vacation rapidly faded. And sadly it was that they took their leave from a friend's home here this morning.

3,000 Chinese Die In 2-Month Famine

Peiping (Saturday), March 6 (U.P.).

More than 3,000 people starved to death in Szechuan Province, western China, during January and Feburary, Chu Ching-lan, chairman of the national famine relief commission, said today.

Unless immediate measures are taken to improve grain distribution, famine conditions may rival the scourge of ten years ago when more than 500,000 people died in Shenshi Province alone, he said.

Dorothy Glassford Fights Charge of Being Intoxicated

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP).—Charges of being intoxicated, to which a male companion pleaded guilty, were denied today by Dorothy Glassford, daughter of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former Washington, D. C., police superintendent.

"I definitely was not drunk," she said as she awaited jury trial March 11 to "clear myself."

"I recovered only recently from an illness and, in my weakened condition, must have fallen asleep after we parked the car to admire the view."

The young society woman, an official police report said, was found asleep in an automobile in Hollywood yesterday. Her companion, James J. Madden, pleaded guilty to drunkenness and asked probation.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

If you want to air a man's character git him out in the open air. That's the reason why, before you make an important business deal with a man, you oughta take him out huntin', fishin' or golfin'. There's somethin' about the open spaces that seem to bring out their true nature.

A city man come down home one time and he started courtin' my Cousin Artella. She thought he was jest grand because he had such polished manners. There wasn't nothing about etiquette he didn't know. She was so fascinated by his parlor manners, that she was jest sure he would make her a wonderful husband.

So one day, they went on a picnic and while they were eatin' their basket lunch under a tree, she looked up and saw a bull runnin' towards 'em. She jumped to her feet and screamed. He jumped to her side and says, "What's the matter, honey?" and she says, "Here comes the worst bull in the country!" And he says, "Well, don't stand there, doin' nothin'—help me up this tree"

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

While County Agent Rosson regards with experienced eye the broad acres of Washington County, Tenn., ancient truths arise from the soil, register on his senses, and these he records in one of the county's weekly papers . . . Agricultural Department has copies of his column which note impressions as follows:

"Let us endeavor so to farm that when we come to die even the soil will be sorry" . . . "If farms could choose their owners, would your farm choose you?" . . . "In the faces of men, women and children we see good or bad land" . . . "What kind of cows will the heifers be?" . . . "Hens and cows are rainy-day cash registers."

Interior Doodads.

The active Interior press people have told you all about the new Interior Building, told everything from the first day's cafeteria menu to the inner-secret color scheme of Secretary Ickes' bathroom . . . The doormats have been the only neglected items, so hear of these and keep in mind that they may be the means of more than pocket change for nine Indian boys and girls . . .

The mats, of gay, brilliant, patterns, were selected by Ickes from designs submitted by Indian students in several schools . . . Sixty-four, in all, were submitted, and Ickes chose nine, to be placed at the nine entrances of the building . . . It was coincidental that the designs chosen by the Secretary were all done by Haskell Institute students; it was coincidental; politics had nothing whatever to do with it . . . The producing mat corporation has signed a contract with the nine students whereby the designer will receive a dollar for each mat sold . . . Consequence: Poor Lo will be watching the mat market from right now on.

Holidays.

The schedule of holidays affecting Government employes during the remainder of the year has been approved by the President . . . Since Decoration Day and the Fourth of July occur on Sundays, the Mondays following, May 31 and July 5, have been declared holidays . . . Others are Labor Day, September 6; Thanksgiving Day, November 25, and at Christmas time, both Friday and Saturday, December 24 and 25.

FCA reports the following new appointments in the Washington office: Thomas H. Gondesen, Brooklyn, N. Y., appointed to the mail room . . . Mrs. Kathryn L. Vance, Scranton, Pa., appointed to the Administrative Division, General Files Section . . . Mrs. Beulah E. Watson, San Antonio, Tex., appointed to the Administrative Division, Stenographic Section.

Crooks' Faces.

Recent surveys of parts of FBI's fingerprint files showed that approximately 17.3 per cent of all fingerprint cards on file lack the signature of the prisoner or subject represented . . . Also, many agencies have failed to furnish photographs of subjects when transmitting cards to the bureau for search and filing . . . Official comment: Necessity of having available the signature and photograph of criminals has been evidenced, especially in cases of forgery, extortion and bank robbery . . . In these, sometimes, the criminal is not identified, but nevertheless is seen by the victims who might later identify his photograph . . . Law enforcement agencies are urged to co-operate in this respect.

Programs in Thumbnail.

A program to encourage domestic consumption of filberts produced in Oregon and Washington is approved by Secretary Wallace . . . Acres and acres of tall, straight pine trees stretch for miles and miles through the South Atlantic States; here will be the scene of a new type of Federal Land Bank activity . . . to exterminate rats, rapidly increasing during the last few years in Wood County, Wis., County Agent H. R. Lathrope led a community campaign which resulted in assassination of 75,000 rats in one day, the Agriculture Department reports.

"There are many . . . legislative proposals, the most of which are good but few of which will ever see the light of the legislative day. All in all, we are passing through a peculiar situation on Capitol Hill and the wisest prophets with whom I confer can only say we hope for 'fair weather.'"—Col. Charles I. Stengle, President, A. F. G. E.

Reorganization Group Starts Work

Hand-Set Phone Charge Banned After New Year

P. U. C. Orders Extra Fee Discontinued Here After Dec. 31.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. was given ten-months grace to continue imposition of extra charges for use of its hand set telephones under terms of an order issued by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

The Commission ordered the company to eliminate the extra hand set fee of 15 cents per month for 12 months or $1.50 flat after next December 31.

Until the end of the year the company will be allowed to charge 15 cents a month for new hand set instruments which it installs.

Extra charges for hand set telephones recently were the subject of an investigation by the Federal Communications Commission and have been a controversial issue before the P. U. C. for several years.

Originally the company charged 25 cents per month for as long as the customer used the hand set. Later the P. U. C. issued an order requiring the company to drop the charge after the customer had paid $4.50.

In its order yesterday the commission directed the telephone company to reduce its charge of $1.50 for replacing an old fashioned instrument with a hand set to $1. The P. U. C. sanctioned continuance of a $1.50 charge for moving the location of a telephone.

Deal Dooms Old Church Of Friends

Meeting House, Built 1808, Will Be Razed for Hospital.

Sold yesterday to make room for a new general hospital, the historic Friends Meeting House, built in 1808, and the Sidwell Friends School, founded in 1883, are soon to be razed.

The school, attended through the years by Charles A. Lindbergh, Herbert Hoover, jr., Archibald Roosevelt and sons and daughters of many persons distinguished in public life, together with the Meeting House and the parking lots adjoining them in the 1800 block of I street northwest, was bought by the Columbia Holding Company, an association of District doctors.

Signed contracts, sealing negotiations begun last November, were yesterday in the hands of Dr. Oscar B. Hunter, a company official. Approximately $200,000 was paid for the property.

Founded when Washington was a mere village, the school and meeting house had seen a growing business district close in around them. Though plans for the erection of new buildings are not definite, it is expected that the 17 acres adjacent to and opposite the Friends Suburban School, 3901 Wisconsin avenue, will be used.

The school, established 54 years ago by the late Thomas W. Sidwell, grew until it became the largest private coeducational institution of secondary education in the city. Sidwell, also the schools' first principal, died April 11, 1936.

The school's removal to Wisconsin avenue was described yesterday by Albert E. Rogers, principal, as the fulfilment of Sidwell's greatest dream. Sidwell bought the property there in 1914. Used as a playground until 1922, it at present houses eight primary grades and a kindergarten.

The meeting house, built in 1808 and rebuilt in 1880, has been attended by, among others, Herbert Hoover, Henry Clay and John Quincy Adams.

Dr. Elisha Dick, who was called in at George Washington's last illness, was a member of the original meeting. He is buried in the now unused Queen Street Cemetery in Alexandria, resting place for many Washington Friends.

The I street property was purchased from the estate of Thomas Sidwell. Acting for the school were the board of trustees, headed by J. Austin Stone, local lawyer and executor of Sidwell's estate.

Dr. Charles Stanley White, president, and Dr. Oscar B. Hunter acted for the Columbia Holding Co.

Under the terms of the contract the school does not give up possession of the land until next year.

Rep. Duncan, Missouri, Reports Auto Stolen

Representative Richard M. Duncan, of Missouri, reported to police yesterday that his sedan had been stolen from a garage at the Broadmoor Apartments, 3601 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Family Salary Limits for U. S. Workers Hit

Rep. Caroline O'Day, of New York, Speaks to Federal Group.

Representative Caroline O'Day (Democrat), New York, principal speaker before a mass meeting of the United Government Employes, in the Garnet-Patterson auditorium last night, deplored new developments in Congress with reference to the Section 213, marriage clause for Government employes, which provide that husband or wife must leave the service if their combined salaries are more than $4,000.

"This proposed amendment to the law," she declared, "is most unfair. I feel that a man or a woman has the right to work, if he or she desires to work, and this $4,000 amendment is all wrong, and a great injustice. It is most difficult for married couples to give children the proper education on low salaries. Where people have struggled to buy their homes, in face of adversities of depression, and have their children in college, it is too much to ask that mother or father shall retire from work.

"Time was when women did the baking, the canning, the brewing, and the making of clothing in the home. Man put this work in factories, and it was natural for women to follow it there. In most cases of employment of women, they are not doing the work formerly done by men, but that done by women. In the Government service, I know of no worthy woman who is not supporting someone else, and whose earnings are not used for a good cause. It is, indeed, unwise, for us to talk of a minimum wage of $1,500 for employes, on the one hand, in interest of social security, and break down that security on the other hand by any form of section 213."

A detailed account of her peace trip to Buenos Aires, and the work of the women of South America in effecting a closer relationship between that continent and the United States, was received with applause, as was the expression by Representative O'Day that the passage of a Federal anti-lynching bill by Congress was probable at an early date. Edgar G. Brown presided.

Tribute Paid Memory Of Two Missionaries

Sponsored by the Presbytery of Washington and the Fairmount Height Presbyterian Church, memorial exercises were held at the church last night in honor of Elder Theodore F. Sargent and Mrs. Sargent, connected with the First Presbyterian Church for more than 57 years. Their last missionary efforts were in behalf of establishment of the Fairmount Heights Presbyterian Church, which now is located at Fifty-first and Grant streets northeast.

Participating in the exercises were the Rev. Halley B. Taylor, the Rev. Henry B. Wooding, Dr. R. A. Fairley, the Rev. D. Hobart Evans, Dr. George M. Cummings, Dr. Alfred E. Barrows and Miss Virginia Sargent. It has been proposed, because of the removal of the church from Fairmount Heights, Md., that its name be changed to the Sargent Memorial Church.

Mother Dies, Father Vanishes; 2 Children Sent to D. C. Home

Two destitute sisters were taken to the Receiving Home late yesterday afternoon, after having lived with neighbors since their father disappeared a fortnight ago and their mother died last Friday.

The children are Barbara Moore, 4, and Veronica Moore, 13. They will remain at the institution, under the care of Grady Leonard, the director, until the Division of Child Welfare finds homes for them.

Mrs. Grace Moore, the mother, had been in Gallinger Hospital, desperately ill of tuberculosis, since September. Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Wilson had helped care for the children and became attached to them. They moved away from the neighborhood with their father several weeks ago, but after he disappeared, Mrs. Kelley said a taxi stopped in front of her home and Barbara and Veronica got out, carrying odds and ends of clothing, cooking utensils and some dishes.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Kelley took Veronica to see her mother at the hospital, and Mrs. Moore asked where their father was. The child replied he was ill with influenza.

Authorities have been unable to get in touch with the husband or relatives.

The mother was buried Tuesday in Mount Olivet Cemetery with the assistance of a Catholic priest and the W. W. Chambers undertaking establishment.

D. C. Group Studies Cost Of Libraries

House Body Has Plan to Unify School Systems.

Commissioners' Unit to Study Plans for Broader Powers.

As a committee of District citizens launched an independent study of the need for reorganization of the District government yesterday, Chairman Collins of the House District Committee studied a proposal to place all school libraries under the public library system.

Legislative proposals to broaden the powers of the District Commissioners will be the first subject tackled by the Commissioners' reorganization committee, it was announced after the group conferred for two hours with Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel, was named chairman of the committee comprising 18 businessmen, bankers, public utility officials and civic leaders.

Eight Transfers Discussed.

Representative Collins discussed the transfer of eight librarians in the school service and control of all library books to the Public Library administration, with Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Dr. George F. Bowerman, public librarian, it was learned.

The proposed transfer is in line with Collins' desire to consolidate as many District services as possible and to eliminate overlapping. It arose out of a request of the Wilson Teachers College for an additional appropriation to modernize its library.

It is understood that Dr. Ballou and Dr. Bowerman could not agree on the plan at the conference. The House sub-committee would have authority to force the transfer, it is believed.

The citizens reorganization committee plans to make a thorough study of every department of the municipal government to determine whether there is overlapping or inefficiency. The committee will meet again March 18 at 8 p. m. to divide into sub-committees.

Action Is Sought.

Decision to act first on proposals to broaden the powers of the District Commissioners was reached by the committee because of its desire to submit recommendations in time for action at this session of Congress, Commissioner Hazen explained.

Bankers, public utility officials, business men and civic leaders comprising the reorganization committee will be assigned to sub-committees studying the subjects with which they are most familiar, Commissioner Hazen said.

The committee will be entirely free of domination by District officials, Hazen emphasized. The Commissioners will sit with the committee only when they are called in for questioning, Hazen said.

Representative Engle (Republican), of Michigan, only minority member of the House District Appropriations Committee, declared he believed inadequate appropriations are responsible for the futile battle the local health department has been waging against the spread of contagious and communicable diseases.

He expressed the opinion that Health Officer George C. Ruhland, whose work he praised, should be given funds to eradicate the breeding places of communicable diseases.

Pointing out that Washington has one of the highest mortality rates from tuberculosis in the country, Engel said that he believed more money should be spent in eliminating conditions that breed disease.

"Get rid of the slums," he said, "and the mortality rate will be reduced and appropriations for large hospitals to cure disease can be reduced."

Rock Creek Park's Old Pierce Mill To Operate Today

Beginning today, old Pierce Mill in Rock Creek Park will be in operation and open to visitors on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, Capt. F. W. Hoover, general manager of the Welfare and Recreational Association, said yesterday.

Its restoration made possible by a PWA grant, the historic grain mill will operate for the public from 1 to 4:30 p. m. on Saturdays and from 1 to 5 p. m. on Sundays. Parks Superintendent C. Marshall Finnan has arranged to provide guides for visitors.

Finnan also arranged, in co-operation with David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, a tour of the United States Botanic Gardens between 1:30 and 4 p. m. tomorrow. William J. Padget, assistant director of the garden, and William A. Frederick, assistant to Mr. Lynn, will take small groups through at 15-minute intervals.

MRS. LAURA BOULTON.

Mrs. Boulton, in Lecture Here, Describes Life of African Ants; Tells of Narrow Escape From Leopard; Outlines Tribal Life.

Empire building among the termites of Africa is a matter of chance, being, so to speak, in the lap of the insect gods.

For, according to Mrs. Laura Boulton, noted woman explorer, who lectured last night before the National Geographic Society, the termites, akin to those which attack America's wooden buildings, see daylight only once a year, when some of them grow wings and emerge from underground.

Later, the wings drop off, and if a male and a female happen to lose their wings at the same moment in the same place, they start a new colony, becoming its king and queen.

Took 2 Days to Pass.

Mrs. Boulton described armies of ants so large that a column four inches wide took two days to pass a given point.

She told of strange African tribes, among which someone is convicted of murder every time a person dies.

These tribesmen exist in the villages in Angola. When anyone dies, the body is carried about the village until it "points" to someone. The witch doctor then decides what shall be the fate of the luckless one.

Has Close Call.

In Angola, she added, the profession of blacksmith is highly honored, and the smelting of iron is [illegible]. Mrs. Boulton likes Africa despite [illegible]cy, with ceremonies no woman is permitted to witness on pain of death.

Mrs. Boulton, in an interview earlier in the day, told of finding leopard tracks inside her tent, not a foot from her bed.

"I had a pet crane one of the natives caught for me," she said.

"The rope around its leg was tied to the leg of my bed at night. The morning the leopard tracks were in my tent, the crane was gone.

"Outside, 10 feet away, we found the bones picked clean. That's the closest call I ever had."

Mrs. Bolton likes Africa despite leopards, however.

"I like to visit sections where ancient customs still are followed and ancient songs still sung," she said.

Testimonial Banquet Set To Honor Hazen, Allen

A testimonial banquet to celebrate the reappointment of Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and George E. Allen will be given by department heads and employes of the District government at the Mayflower Hotel March 22 at 7:30 p. m.

Former Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman will be toastmaster. Other speakers will be Senators King, of Utah; Capper, of Kansas, and Thomas, of Oklahoma, and Representatives Norton, of New Jersey, and Collins, of Mississippi.

Takoma Park's Trinity Church Will Be Opened

$50,000 Edifice Finished Ahead of Schedule; Services Set.

Hundreds of persons are expected to attend the formal opening of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, Piney Branch road and Dahlia street northwest, Takoma Park, D. C., tomorrow.

The Rev. Reno S. Harp, jr., rector, will be the preacher at the Holy Communion service at 11 a. m. He will be assisted by the Rev. C. S. Young, rector emeritus of the church.

Church dignitaries will attend the evening worship at 8 o'clock, when the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will officiate assisted by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, D. D., of the Washington Cathedral; the Rev. ZeeBarney T. Phillips, D. D., rector of the Church of the Epiphany, and the Rev. Charles T. Warner, D. D., rector of St. Albans.

Many memorials have been given to the church, which was built at a cost of $50,000. The carved stone altar of Indiana buff limestone, designed by Philip Hubert Frohman, architect of the church, is in memory of the Rev. Marcus Lafayette Little. The altar window is in altar of Indiana buff limestone, de memory of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Whitney, former citizens of Takoma Park, Mr. Whitney having been prominent in Government affairs. The carved oak pulpit was given in memory of Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor and Elizabeth Taylor Copping. Other memorials are in memory of Francis Walker Cady, Jane Elizabeth Lee, Ivy Herriot Shade, Homer Guerry, Mary Noyes, Mary Landon Bacon and the Rev. and Mrs. Josiah R. Ellis.

Carl A. Hoglund, chairman of the building committee, said that the church was completed almost a month ahead of schedule. It is of early Gothic design and is built of native granite. It will seat 250 persons. Martin Brothers are the contractors.

District Bar Offers Legal Aid to Needy

Free Advice to Be Given by 25 Lawyers in City Court.

Experimental Period of 3 to 6 Months Set [illegible]r Scheme.

A free clinic of law within the Municipal Court, where persons unable to pay may obtain legal services in those civil actions falling under the court's jurisdiction, soon will become a reality for the District.

The District Bar Association, in session at the Mayflower Hotel last night, voted to appoint a committee of 25 of its members to represent poor but worthy persons in the court.

Through Henry I. Quinn, president of the Association, and Austin F. Canfield, it was announced the Association had been promised space for desks in the court.

Here the Association proposes to place a full-time employe to handle the affairs of indigents.

Co-operating with the Bar Association will be the Legal Aid Society. A list of lawyers will be drawn periodically.

The scheme will be tried for an experimental period of from three to six months. Announcement then was made by Leo McGuire, a member of the committee, that Presiding Judge George Aukam had agreed on the desk space by a court order.

By a vote of 68 to 31, the association agreed to permit the use of its law library in the District Courthouse to any member of the Women's Bar Association for a fee of $10.

A committee report suggesting that this fee be only $5 was voted down.

The association refused to recommend to Congress any proposed amendment that the hours for selling liquor in the District be extended from midnight Saturday to 2 a. m. Sunday.

Man Pleads Guilty In Police Shooting

Accused of having shot through the door of his apartment at two policeman who sought to placate him, Carl King in District Court Thursday pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon, though his attractive wife, Mrs. Ruby King, had sought to have him freed because she said she still loved him.

King engaged in an argument with his wife last Thanksgiving Day. He cut her on the hand and when she fled and sought help, Policemen Raymond E. Maust and Ralph F. Edwards responded. In the company of Mrs. King they went to the second-floor apartment where the husband had barricaded himself and demanded his surrender.

The order was met with two bullet shots which splintered the door behind which the policemen were standing. In Police Court the next day, the wife refused to prosecute, but in an indictment both officers were named as complaining witnesses. King was eventually subdued when he was threatened with a tear gas barrage.

Soon after her husband had entered his plea and had been committed to the District Jail to await sentence, Mrs. King fainted and was carried to the matron's room for first aid.

Man Kills Himself Here With Rifle

Leaving suicide notes to police and his wife, Elzie C. White, 35, shot himself fatally late yesterday in his room at 926 Twenty-third street northwest.

White was found on his bed by a maid. Beside him was a .22-caliber rifle. Dr. R. B. Howard, of the Emergency Hospital staff, pronounced him dead.

A Grace Moore Hit Is on View At the Earle

"WHEN YOU'RE IN LOVE." Columbia Pictures dramatization of a story by Ethel Hill and Cedric Worth, adapted to the screen and directed by Robert Riskin, starring Grace Moore, with Cary Grant, Aline MacMahon, Henry Stephenson, Thomas Mitchell, Catherine Doucet, Luis Alberni, Gerald Oliver Smith, Emma Dunne, George Pearce and Frank Puglia. Reviewed at the Earle Theater Friday afternoon by Mary Harris.

Though dance and comedy furnish the trimmings, it is beautiful music that makes the show go 'round breathlessly at the Earle this week.

In deference to the music lovers who will crowd to hear Grace Moore in "When You're in Love," the Earle management has also provided a rousing musical treat on the stage, Lester Cole and his Midshipmen. It was hard to say which the audience liked the better. They demanded encores from the Midshipmen until the act ran considerably over its allotted time. But you know how music lovers are. If they really want encores, they cannot be denied.

Grace Moore gallantly sets out to prove that she can suit every musical taste in her latest picture. She runs the gamut from Puccini to Cab Calloway with stop-offs for Jerome Kern and Schubert. If you have a weakness for any particular musical genre, be prepared to have Miss Moore serve it sweet and low or hot and smoking.

Catholicity of Taste.

But those with fairly catholic tastes will find undiluted and special delight alike in "Siboney," Schubert's "Serenade" and "Minnie the Moocher." The musical settings of these numbers are all highly appropriate and enhance the beauty of the Moore voice. Nor is this a far-fetched statement even when applied to low-down "Minnie." For with the aid of a hot bunch of tootlers, Grace turns out one of the lowest-downest "Minnies" you've ever heard and also manages to toss in her famous high notes at the same time.

Plotters of the picture are to be commended for the various ways in which they bring in the Moore songs and make them add to the story build-up. Miss Moore takes a walk in the woods with Cary Grant and sings to the birds and bunnies; Cary plays one of her records on the phonograph when he is down on his luck and in hock in a Mexican hotel; she sings at a great music festival; she does an impromptu number at a big Mexican party; she sings to Cary both in her apartment and in his shack in the woods. And every song is an integral part of the action.

We have said so much about the Moore songs that a hurried about-face is due on the story. For "When You're in Love" is a good and sharp light comedy, aside from music. Cary Grant adds to his stature by turning out a first-rate interpretation of a fellow who is both a funny guy and a great lover. It would seem that Mr. Grant is following in the path of Gary Cooper who graduated into top billing on the same formula in "Mr. Deeds."

Is a Marital Plot.

The leverage of the plot is obtained on a twisty idea about a prima donna marrying a perfect stranger to outwit the immigration laws. But getting unmarried is not so simple.

The principals have it all their own way by sheer merit of good acting. There is no "picture-stealing" in this one, although Aline MacMahon and fine old Henry Stephenson turn in excellent performances.

If there is a fault in the show it is in certain inept and overdone acting in the lesser roles, together with a few sequences of unforgivably banal dialogue.

The newsreel includes some of the lighter aspects of the sit-down strikes which seem to be enjoyed by all except employers.

Lester Cole and his Midshipmen, a husky bunch of carolers, thoroughly delighted the audience. Among their more ringing numbers were the "Serenade" from "The Student Prince" and the "mounties' song from "Rose Marie."

The Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee, coming after the Midshipmen, had their time crowded by the middies yesterday. But their dance numbers were among the smoothest and most amusing seen for too many weeks.

Style Show to Feature Dance of D. C. Group

The Congressional Country Club will hold its annual dinner dance and fashion show tonight. The entertainment committee consisting of Mrs. Verna P. Simmons, Mrs. Frank L. Yates, Mrs. Elmer B. Collins and Mrs. J. H. Nichols, have arranged a fashion show by Lansburgh's as the high spot of the evening's entertainment.

Music for the fashion show and for the dancing will be furnished by the Congressional Country Club's Orchestra.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

By Nelson B. Bell.

"MAID OF SALEM." Paramount picturization of a story by Bradley King, adapted to the screen by Walter Ferris, Bradley King and Durward Grinstead, costarring Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, with Harvey Stephens, Gale Sondergaard, Louise Dresser, Bennie Bartlett, Edward Ellis, Beulah Bondi, Bonita Granville and Virginia Weidler, Donald Meek, E. E. Clive, Halliwell Hobbes, Pedro de Cordoba, Mme. Sul-Te-Wan, Henry Kolker, William Farnum, Ivan Simpson, Brandon Hurst, Sterling Holloway, Mary Treen, J. Farrell MacDonald, Stanley Fields, Lionel Belmore and Guy Bates Post. Directed by Frank Lloyd. Previewed Tuesday, March 2.

It is a vivid revelation of the pernicious exercise of the bigotry, intolerance and persecution that were practiced in the days of witchcraft in Salem, Mass., that forms the basis of this engrossing screen play of life among the Puritans in 1692.

BELL.

Launcing its story with a deliberate recitatio.. of the simple activities of the New England colonists, "Maid of Salem" progresses to climaxes that are poignant, powerful and genuinely thrilling. The drama is threaded with a vein of bitter condemnation of the distorted point of view that subjected the performer of the gentlest acts of human kindness to the charge of supernatural powers calculated to place a curse upon the objects of his kindliness and compassion.

A strong element of romance also is woven into the warp and woof of the play and it is this ramification of the plot that finally absolves the victims of the superstitious frenzies of the vindictive zealots of the Salem settlement from the charges that have been lodged against them and from the threat of cold-blooded execution at the hangmen's tree on Gallows Hill.

Has Tranquil Opening.

The early sequences of the action concern themselves principally with the tranquil pursuits of a colony that has not yet learned to mistrust the simplest deeds of kindness. The spectator observes the placid pursuits of a primitive life in a wilderness where it still is expedient to carry a blunderbus to circumvent the sly ambuscades of the Indians; he sees the conduct of the village church service, a house-raising for the parson and the other innocent pursuits of a community dedicated to the normal processes of rational living.

Then there begin to creep in the sinister implications of witchcraft and the casting of spells over men, women and children by figures in the village whose occult powers are magnified by the abortive thought of spiteful and vengeful colonists with axes to grind. Much of the fomenting of personal hatreds and subtle and sinister plots against persons who are wholly innocent of anything but a willingness to be compassionate in their relationships with their fellowmen is engineered by the children of the settlement—especially a small boy and a scheming young girl, with an infinite capacity for making trouble among her elders.

From these sparks of inflammatory agitation there bursts into flame the full fury of a village's profound ability to misconstrue every decent human impulse and impute to it all of the evil potentialities of the Devil incarnate. Innocent and defenseless victims of this wild lust for purging the town of a non-existent threat are hanged, burned at the stake and otherwise made the victims of a conscienceless surrender to the basest of human passions.

Reaches Thrilling Climax.

The manner in which Barbara Clarke escapes the supreme penalty for deeds she had never done and Roger Coverman is restored to citizenship after a period of social and political ostracism as a refugee from Virginia justice forms the crux of the drama and brings it to a final scene that is as moving as it is spectacular and melodramatic.

The whole tale has been fabricated with an eye single to cumulative and convincing effect. In every visual aspect "Maid of Salem" is authentic, picturesque and compelling. The leading roles are played by Claudette Colbert, who never has been more emotionally effective, and Fred MacMurray, who here perhaps turns in the best performance he has brought to the screen. The juvenile roles are in the competent and destestable hands of Master Bennie Bartlett and that prodigy of frenzy, tantrums and handsome rages, Bonita Granville, daughter of the late Bernard (Bunny) Granville, of musical comery and revue fame, who seems liable to unseat her mind by the violence of her portrayals of obnoxious youngsters. It was she, you will recall, who played the "brat" in "These Three," the film transcription of the Hellman stage play of "The Children's Hour."

There are so many others of note in the cast that to enumerate their individual excellences is impossible. Foremost among them, I should say, are Beulah Bondi, William Farnum, Harvey Stephens, E. E. Clive, Gale Sondergaard, Louise Dresser, Pedro de Cordoba, Donald Meek and Sterling Holloway.

"Red" Scores Hit.

On the stage at Loew's Capitol this week, "Red" Skelton proves himself worthy of all the nice things that were said about him before his arrival in Washington. He is an elongated young man, endowed with tremendous versatility and that ingratiating sort of personality that makes everything he does seem perhaps better than it is. He monologues, burlesques, leads the orchestra, after the manner of Reginald Gardiner, and introduces his supporting acts with a facility and wit that are rare. The lad was a hit yesterday.

Among the acts he introduced were—and still are, as a matter of fact—Edna Stillwell, singer; Jay and Lou Seiler, two agile dancing comedians who wind up their act on those crazy semicircular skiis; Sue Ryan, a singing comedienne of the first water; Marilyn Marlowe, who is crowding Eleanor Powell, Ginger Rogers and Ruby Keeler close for top tap-dancing honors; Jack Powell, that wizard of syncopation with the drumsticks, and the Four Kraddocks, gymnasts whose like has not been seen here in years.

Scores With Screen's First Diva

Cary Grant, pictured above, who has been slightly in eclipse on the local screen these past few months, comes into his own as leading man with Grace Moore in "When You're in Love," current at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. This is the first time these two able players ever have appeared together and Mr. Grant's work is such as to add appreciably to his stature as an actor of the first rank.

Palace

"THE LAST OF MRS. CHEYNEY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the play by Frederic Lonsdale, adapted to the screen by Leon Gordon, Samuel Raphaelson and Monckton Hoffe, starring Joan Crawford, Robert Montgomery and William Powell, supported by Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce, Lumsden Hare, Ralph Forbes, Benita Hume, Aileen Pringle, Colleen Clare and Sara Haden. Directed in part by the late Richard Boleslawski and completed by George Fitzmaurice. Reviewed (second week) by T. Johnson Williams.

With Joan Crawford depicting Frederick Lonsdale's Lady Raffles, supported by Robert Montgomery and William Powell, with a distinguished company of lesser players, "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" continues to delight the patrons of Loew's Palace Theater. And well it might, for here are three of the screen's most facile workers in the lighter rubrics and playing in a work known for its delightful content.

In following the remarks in these columns last week, there remains nothing more than the above to be said anent the picture. What was said then and these essential facts of production and casting are alone their own sufficient notice.

The Silly Symphony, "Mother Pluto," with the famed Disney hound mothering a brood of chicks, tops the supplementary program, which also includes "What Do You Think?" a so-so essay on the discredited topic of telepathy, and a release of "News of the Day."

Metropolitan

"GREEN LIGHT." Warner Brothers picturization of the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas, adapted to the screen by Mildred Krims, featuring Errol Flynn, Anita Louise and Margaret Lindsay, supported by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Walter Abel, Henry O'Neill, Spring Byington, Erin O'Brien-Moore, Henry Kolker, Pierre Watkin, Granville Bates, Russell Simpson and Myrtle Stedman. Directed by Frank Borzage. Reviewed (return engagement) by Richard Q. Jones.

Presenting meritorious qualities none too frequent upon the screen, "Green Light," that profoundly philosophical drama of medicine, centering on the development of a serum for spotted fever, justly returns to the Metropolitan Theater for a week.

For those who found in "Arrowsmith" and "The Story of Louis Pasteur" cinema fare out of the ordinary, who reveled in the authentic science and quasi-historical aspects of them—for these, as well as all who like the unusual, dramatically and effectively presented, "Green Light" will surely be the "go" signal.

Errol Flynn, supported by those whose names are mentioned in the italicized paragraph above is finely cast in this story which, however fictional, is consistently engrossing and believable.

The principal subsidiary is "Under Southern Skies," the Technicolor historical sketch of the latter days of Gen. Thomas Jonathan (Stonewall) Jackson and the battle of Chancellorsville. Here is a superb subject, quite worthy of joining the company of "The Song of a Nation" and "Give Me Liberty." A cartoon, "Hot Air Salesman," and the combined releases of the Paramount and Universal newsreels complete the bill.

Columbia

"LOVE IS NEWS." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by William Lipman and Frederick Stephanie, adapted to the screen by Harry Tugent and Jack Yellen, featuring Loretta Young, Don Ameche and Tyrone Power, with "Slim" Summerville, Dudley Digges, Walter Catlett, Jane Darwell, Stepin Fetchit, George Sanders and Elisha Cook, jr. Directed by Tay Garnett. Reviewed, return engagement, Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud.

"Love Is News" is not news to those cynical folk who like an element of the unexpected with their light romances. Everything is a bit too pat; the lines, the situations and the reactions. And would any city editor give so much front page space to the doings and misdoings of a giddy young heiress as Editor Don Ameche does in this bit of froth?

However, for those who laugh easily, who like beauteous young women with an oh-so-devilish sense of humor this is the dish. Even the most artery-hardened should get a couple of guffaws, thanks to able comedians Slim Summerville, Stepin Fetchit and Walter Catlett. They portray, respectively, a hick judge, a chauffeur and a checker-playing reporter.

Concerning itself with what happens when a much-headlined heiress gets weary of having her pranks played up in streamer heads, the plot shows how she turns the tables, journalistically speaking, on the reporter chiefly responsible for her undesired publicity.

Recommended for those who use six adjectives to describe the cherry blossoms.

"The Second Step," a miniature showing the struggles of young Jane Barnes, extra player in Hollywood, is intriguing and disillusioning to yearning would-be Garbos. Jefferson Machamer, who draws those luscious gals, is present in a neat comedy, in which his facile pen turns out some of his famed sketches.

New York, March 5 (AP).—Richie Ling, 70, veteran actor, who appeared in many Broadway successes, was found dead today in his bed at the Lambs Club, to which he had belonged for 40 years.

Ling's last play was appropriately titled "And Now Good-by." The piece, in which Philip Merivale was starred, closed on February 22. Previously he had appeared as leading man with Lillian Russell, Fritzie Scheff and Christie Macdonald.

Dentists Warned Against Fake Advertising Book

The Better Business Bureau yesterday issued a warning to members of the dental profession to be on guard against entering into any contract or agreement to pay for advertising in a dental appointment book before they make proper investigation.

The bureau declared that an operator who promoted like enterprises in several other large cities is currently active here.

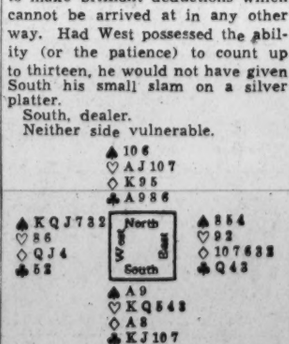
Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Detective Work.

Counting is an invaluable aid to the bridge player. It is a fascinating practice since it enables a player to make brilliant deductions which cannot be arrived at in any other way. Had West possessed the ability (or the patience) to count up to thirteen, he would not have given South his small slam on a silver platter.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	3 ♡	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 N T	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the King of spades, and South won with the Ace. The slam apparently depended upon guessing which player had the Queen of clubs, but South thought of a way to give the opponents a chance to go wrong.

Two rounds of trumps were taken, followed by three rounds of diamonds. South trumping the last. Then a spade was led and West had to win the trick.

Fearing that a spade lead would enable South to ruff in one hand and discard in the other, West led a club, and declarer made the rest of the tricks with ease.

While West's club lead was apparently necessary, a closer inspection of the hand would have revealed its absurdity. South had showed up with only two diamonds, and was marked with only five trumps from the fact that both West and East followed to two rounds of trumps. This left him with six cards in the black suits. If he had a third spade, a spade lead by West would not give South a ruff and a discard, whereas if he had four clubs and only two spades, the discard he could get could do him no good.

West, therefore, should have led a third round of spades on being thrown in. South could have ruffed in dummy and discarded a club from his own hand, but he would still have had to guess which player had the Queen of clubs. It is true that he might have guessed correctly and made the slam, but at least West could have made it more difficult for him.

D.C. Symphony Drive Is Aided By Miss Perkins

Labor Secretary to Head Committee of 100 in Campaign.

With Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins as its head, a committee of more than 100 Government officials is organized to help the National Symphony Orchestra raise its $110,000 fund to sustain next year's season.

Secretary Perkins, conferring with campaign leaders yesterday, assured them that Government workers are keenly interested in the orchestra and want its future assured. The campaign gets under way next Wednesday and will continue through an eight-day period.

"It is a splendid thing for the thousands of Washington residents identified with the Government departments that symphony concerts are made available to all the people at such nominal cost that no one need deny himself the satisfaction of hearing good music," said Miss Perkins.

"I am glad to assist your efforts by helping to organize a committee which will accept financial contributions to your sustaining fund from those Government officials and employees who may care to help support the work. We are deeply interested in the success of this movement and will do all we can to further it."

Richardson Saunders, assistant to Miss Perkins, is assisting her in organization of the Government committee, and Mrs. W. S. Kunkel is acting as secretary of the group.

Members of the Government committee for the campaign include Mrs. Ruth Shipley, Harry A. LaFargo, Ugo Carusi, Floyd E. Dotson, Dr. W. W. Stockberger, E. W. Libbey, William C. Hull, Lillian K. Stamm, Mary H. Wilbur, Harold M. Brown, Otis B. Johnson, Mrs. Lillian A. Bowman, Robert C. Tracy, Ollie Floyd, Mrs. Alice Lawrence, W. C. Black, H. W. Soviet Industrial Report Indicates Gain in Business

Moscow, March 5 (AP).—Improved financial and industrial conditions in the Soviet Union were interpreted last night from the trade figures for 1936. Announced today, they showed an increase of industrial exports, although the favorable balance of trade was the lowest in years.

The small balance, newspaper commentators said, was explained by the fact Russia no longer is as hard pressed for foreign exchange as formerly and, therefore, has been able to reduce previously heavy exports of food products and consumers' goods. Such a decline, they said, has made possible increased sales of agricultural products domestically.

The changed situation was said to have been brought about by the Soviet's diminishing need for foreign exchange since the era of the first five-year plan when Russia was making huge outlays for industrial machinery and foreign services to put it in operation.

During the year, the U. S. S. R. exported goods worth 1,359,000,000 rubles ($271,800,000 at the official exchange rate of 5 rubles to the dollar) and imported 1,352,000,000 rubles (worth $270,400,000).

Air Express Revenues Reveal Decided Gains

More than 2,023 tons of air express were flown by the Railway Express Agency in the first full year of expanded service, ended January 31, it was announced yesterday. A substantial portion of the tonnage was handled in and out of Washington.

Gross revenue from air express for the 12-month period increased 67 per cent over the gross revenues of the old and new contract airlines for the corresponding period of 1935-1936. A total of 487,299 consignments were carried by 500 regularly scheduled planes.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

Miami Beach, March 5.

THE WINTER colony's entertainment whirl was climaxed when the presence of 40 millionaries featured the annual Artists' and Writers' Dinner at the Royal Palms. When all the guests had assembled the curtains draping the dais were thrown back—revealing the long horse-shoe dais for the guests of honor. The curtains immediately were drawn and the dais dismantled—because three of the notables who were to grace it were too drunk even to sit down . . . Joe Widener, the multi-millionaire sportsman, was invited to take a fling at the dice tables. "What for?" he shrugged. "What can I win—a hundred thousand dollars?"

• • • •

HARVEY FIRESTONE, JR., who never has thrown a pair of dice, asked for an introduction to the game. Seymour Weiss then suggested that Firestone and Mrs. Happy Flanagan chip in $33 each with him, and then he'd explain the game . . . With this $99 fund, the Louisiana politician rolled the cubes—explained each bet to his partners—and in less than a half hour won $5,000 . . . Mickey Cochrane, who wanted to be master of ceremonies, was rebuffed by Harry Richman. "How would you like it," Richman announced from the floor, "if I were to go to the Detroit ball park, put on that catcher's glove, and yell: 'Put it right in here?' . . . But I won't do that—and you won't be an M. C."

• • • •

ERSKINE GWYNNE brought Norma Taylor to the party. When Gwynne was introduced to take a bow, the spotlight was turned to his table and Miss Taylor held up her Pekingese! . . . The closing of Ira's Supper Club Sunday night stranded the musicians of one of New York's name-bands. Half of them were able to leave for New York after a collection was made here for their benefit. The others are still stranded . . . Ted Husing was somewhat perplexed when he received wires from the Columbia Broadcasting System, urging him to accompany Dick Merrill on that transatlantic flight. Husing still wonders whether that urging has any relation to the fact that he has a life-long contract of employment by C. B. S.!

MONTE PROSER, the French Casino publicist, left here the other day to return to New York. Proser placed his bags in the compartment, removed his jacket—his train tickets were in one of the pockets—and stepped off the train. "Before I go," he explained, "I want to have just one more fling at the slot machines." He had his fling—won $2.40—and missed his train.

J. EDGAR HOOVER applied his talents to the gee-gees at Hialeah—and had six winners . . . Hoover also discovered the identity of that practical joker who had phoned him: "This is the Mob. We give you just 20 minutes to get out of town." The jokester immediately left Miami . . . Two hours after Mrs. Georgie Price had her tonsils removed, she went parading in front of her Roney-Plaza cabana . . . Two sight-seers spied Dave Wilentz and moved closer to him to catch a wisp of conversation. "So I rolled the 30,000, and my point came up," Wilentz told his companion. When the sightseers had gone, Wilentz was asked: "You didn't really roll $30,000, did you?" He answered: "Of course not. But I wanted to be nice to those two who were listening to us. They didn't want to hear small talk."

MAJOR ALBERT WARNER stationed himself at the roulette table and remained there for 20 minutes without making a play. "Aren't you playing?" he was asked . . . "Sure. I got a great system for roulette," Warner explained. "There are 36 numbers on the table. I want to play No. 24, so I watch it, and when it doesn't come up after 35 spins of the wheel, then I put my dough on it. It should come up about then" . . . "But suppose it comes up the thirty-fourth time, or the thirty-third? It means you practically can stay here all night without playing once" . . . "That's it, exactly," Warner replied. "That's the whole idea of the system."

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, March 5—Idol chatter: Since Jean Harlow took up with William Powell she is seldom seen at her old night club haunts. Some day I expect a fox to leap from C. Aubrey Smith's bushy eyebrows. Share and share alike note: The baby adopted by Ruby Keeler and Al Jolson is half Irish, half Jewish. It is silly for Myrna Loy to give herself the worst of it by appearing in public sans makeup. Typical boy-hero name: Buck Jones. Every time I order grapefruit, I think of Jimmy Cagney and Mae Clarke.

MYRNA LOY.

Have numerologists decided how far Joan Crawford might have gone using her original nom de theater, Joan Arden? Edward Arnold has that well-fed, coupon-clipping, retired banker look. As nonplaying extras, musicians are paid $7.50 a day, but when they record they receive $10. Charles Ray used to make movie-magazine news; now he writes it. If June Knight and Sunny O'Dea really do that vaudeville tour, their billing will be amusing; O'Dea and Knight.

The honeymoon will be over the first time Jeanette MacDonald sees Gene Raymond with his wave in shampoo. It no longer seems important that Richard Arlen was once an Arrow Collar ad. I never see Ethel barrymore but what I think of Lionel in a wig. Incomplete records compiled by a studio indicate that 10,000 babies were named Shirley last year—and after whom, do you suppose? Both Pat O'Brien and Spencer Tracy ran away from Milwaukee homes at 17 to join the navy. Add Hollywoodese: "I'm on the short line," which among extras means "I've had no call for work this week."

After dinner at Jean Harlow's the other night, we boarded the conversational merry-go-round and talk turned to ages. Bill Powell told of the actress (he made me promise not to reveal her name) who changed the birth year in her studio biography to make her younger husband happy. Jean merely cracked about certain "juvenile" leading men who wear toupees, and got her laugh. I told my favorite story, and perhaps you will want to hear it:

At one of those too ultra Cocoanut Grove dinners, Joan Crawford, then 23, was seated beside a producer's wife who seemed rudely interested in nothing but stars' ages. As various actresses danced past, this woman would demand "How old is she?" and Joan would answer truthfully, "About 22." Then Mrs. Producer would sneer, "I'll drop dead if she ever sees 30 again!"

This amused Joan, until the woman finally purred, "You know, darling, you and I must be about the same age." Joan looked long at Mrs. Producer's well-kept, obviously-in-its-late-thirties face, and replied, "Yes, I think we are." To which the woman beamed, "And just how old are you, my dear?" "I'm 40," smiled Joan without a quiver.

An editor who had never believed stories about Mae West's "mirrored bedroom" gained admission to that sanctum when he went to interview the blonde star, who Cook's-toured him through her apartment. The mirrors were there all right; so set that the editor could see not only Mae West, but a dozen reflections. After an awed moment, he turned to her and muttered, "Gee, you really mean it when you say 'come up and see me.'"

Girl Dead After Crash While Filming Picture

Hollywood, March 5 (U.P.).—Two film players were recovering tonight from injuries resulting from a movie "thrill chase" which ended when a light roadster overturned, killing Marcella Arnold, 28, "Miss Los Angeles" of the 1926 national bathing beauty contest.

Miss Arnold, an extra, suffered a broken neck and skull fracture as the car swerved to avoid striking a camera and overturned. The driver, Gordon Craveth, 32, veteran stunt man, and Loretta Rush, 30, who was doubling for a star, were thrown clear. Miss Arnold was pinned under the wreckage.

Spite Ties Annuled.

Los Angeles, March 5 (AP).—A young and pretty newcomer to the screen, Helen Burgess, won an annulment of her marriage today after testifying Herbert Rutherford, piano instructor, told her he wed her January 27 only to spite another woman.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

After Two Years' Ardent Courtship of One Girl, Man Unpredictably Marries Another He Has Just Met.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two years ago, when I was 17, I fell in love for the first time, with a boy one year older. Up to that time I actually hated boys and never associated with them. Then I started going with a very nice crowd of boys and girls and it was through this crowd we met. I liked him at once as he treated me very respectfully. After our first date we saw a lot of each other and were always together when we went with the crowd.

* * * *

Some time later he told me he had been wanting to make by acquaintance for nearly a year, but didn't dare as all his friends told him I was a man-hater. He said, "Now that we are friends, we shall be friends forever." I was happy then, seeing him, going places with him and knowing he cared for me. He told me I was the only girl he could ever love. Our friends were startled and surprised to find us still going together after 18 months, as he was the type who formerly never paid any attention to girls and kept as far away from them as possible.

* * * *

During the years we went together he had to leave town several times to visit his family and during the weeks and sometimes months he was away he would write constantly, telling me everything he did and how much he missed me, expressing his love for me through those letters as he did when we were together. He said he didn't want me to stay home but to go out with others, as he trusted me. He had much trust and confidence in me, telling me his troubles as well as his ambitions. We always consulted each other about everything that puzzled us.

* * * *

So I started going with other boys when he was away. I went out with every boy who asked for a date and really enjoyed myself in their company. I had many flirtations and good times. When he returned I went back to him and I knew that no matter what good times other boys could show me and no matter how much I enjoyed their company, no one could take his place with me, as I loved him dearly and he proved in many ways that he loved me, too. It always happened when he came to see me that other boys would be around. But when I saw him I would leave the other boys and go to him.

* * * *

He wanted me to meet his brothers and sisters, as he had told them all about me as well as the fact that he intended to marry me in a couple of years. I heard many times that he was constantly telling others how wonderful I was and how much he loved me. He seldom went out with other girls while visiting his family and was as true to me as a boy could be.

* * * *

Three months ago he was leaving to study, and expected to be gone for several years. He had been saving money and wished to study so that we could afford to marry. He asked me to marry him before leaving and I told him we must wait as we were both young and he didn't have a steady job. The day before he left he actually begged me to marry him and keep it a secret. He said he loved me and couldn't stay away that long without being sure I was his. Again I told him we must wait and that I would always be true to him.

* * * *

He wrote to me. Very sweet letters, longing letters, expressing his love and telling how he missed me. Then all of a sudden I didn't hear from him for three weeks; only to learn that three weeks ago he had married someone else. I tried to take it on the chin and never show how hurt I was. When I am with others I never speak of him and manage to have a good time. But when I'm alone all I can think of is how could he do such a thing to me. Only three weeks ago he wrote telling of his love and how he would some day prove it. And yet a few days later he married another girl. He knew her only a month. She is very attractive. I have seen her pictures.

* * * *

Why did he marry? What happened? How could he? They are coming back soon and I know that I shall have to see them together. I will watch another girl standing where I should be, at the side of the man I love—her husband. What am I to do? If he is happy I'd be the last person on earth to come between them. But I can't face him knowing that I love him and always will. Please help me to solve this problem. Thank you.

BROKEN HEARTED.

What to Believe.

DEAR BROKEN HEARTED: Perhaps the boy found in the girl he married someone who greatly resembles you, yet someone with less scruples about marrying on impulse. Perhaps he was so heart hungry and forlorn away from you that he was defenceless prey for the first attractive girl who happened to come along and want him. Or perhaps he married her while under the spell of an overwhelmingly urgent physical infatuation. There is a vast difference between the calm, deep, understanding love which is compounded of mental, spiritual and physical attraction; and that erotic sickness called passion. But the latter is always a dangerous rival to love. Or perhaps he found in her real true love, the girl he has always wanted and dreamed of, his ideal in every aspect, the girl he had been making-believe you were during the past two years.

* * * *

Although no one save the boy himself can say precisely why he did this shocking thing, I would stake much on the opinion that he married on an impulse of passion. Why? Because that and that alone is the driving power behind the majority of marriages contracted by youth on the spur of the moment after short acquaintance. If the union had more to recommend and substantiate it, both he and the girl who is now his wife would have stopped long enough to consider your rights and your feelings. If they did not marry as complete strangers, the girl would have known he was engaged to someone else and he would have insisted it was only fair that you be notified of his change of heart. It seems logical to suppose he married entirely on impulse, although the girl may have been gunning for him from the moment she saw him and her determination to conquer may have been intensified by hearing he was engaged to another girl. She may have surmised that if he ever took time to think things over, he would never go through with marriage to her.

* * * *

My advice to you is to buckle on the armor of your pride and face them with quiet contempt when they come to town. Everyone knows you loved the boy; he knows you love him; but the thing to do is be proud and unflinching in the face of what has happened. They have done a contemptible, treacherous thing. Therefore they do not deserve to be met with hypocritical graciousness from you. But neither should they be conceded the power to drive you into the background. Keep your head high and your heartbreak hidden; and if you have other beaux, for heaven's sake muster them to your support during the time the boy and his bride will be visiting your town. Don't move an inch, daytime or evening, without one or more at your elbow.

* * * *

Don't despair. Don't suppose your life is laid waste. Around the corner there are other and finer men, one of whom you will learn to love as dearly, perhaps more dearly, than this one—if he is lost to you forever. And yet he may not be. It is a painful thing to say, but marriages made in haste are most frequently repented at leisure, and these runaway marriages more often end in the divorce courts than not. In the meantime, go on with your life as though this boy had died, for so far as you know, he is dead to you. And whatever may develope, that is the only saving tactic to adopt. M.H.

Modern Man 'Eats' Dust by the Pound

You would not think of going into a restaurant and ordering a pound of dust for lunch, yet that, in effect, is what city residents do at least once during the year.

According to a study made public by the Temperature Research Foundation of Kelvinator Corporation, there is precipitated in the lungs of the average man during the course of a single year more than 1.2 pounds of various dusts.

The average dust fall in a large city is approximately 230 tons per square mile per month, according to the study. An adult takes into his lungs more than 500 cupic feet of air each day. This air, in passing through the respiratory organs, which are constructed as a perfect filter, precipitates practically all of its dust with the incidental germs.

Be an Atlas Traveler

FIRESIDE travel with the help of a trusty atlas will keep you alert and well informed.

You can talk knowingly with seasoned travelers even though you've never seen the strange and interesting places you read about and locate on your maps. And what fun to map the route you'd like to travel!

You'll want to see America first, of course. The huge Carlsbad Caverns of New Mexico, large enough for half the people of the United States to sand in. The last surviving volcano in the United States, Mount Lasser in California. Quaint Williamsburg, Va., restored to the glory of colonial days.

Do you know, as all good atlas-travelers do, that the Pacific Ocean covers 35 per cent of the earth's surface? That there's a regular air passenger and mail service between New York and Lima, Peru, yet much of transportation within Peru is by llamas and Indians as in the days before Columbus?

Youthful Hats for the Matron, in Latest 1937 Versions

Since the modern hat is ageless, the matron may wear any of the current styles, from the smallest to the largest versions. The 1937 pillbox (left), with nose veil and flowers, is especially smart for the older woman. The soft, rolled curls in back of coiffure support the flowers in the hat. The cartwheel (below), also youthful, requires the hair arranged softly at sides and low in back. Both hats designed by Marion Vallee for the international beauty and fashion show in New York. Coiffures by Mlle. Reif.

Hats No Longer Tell Their Ages: Suited to Maid and Matron Alike

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

THE WOMAN with glasses need no longer hesitate to wear a brimless hat, says Marion Valle, American hat designer, who was in Washington yesterday as hat consultant in a local store. The current lines of even the smallest hats are not only becoming but flattering to the woman who wears glasses, and the popular veil also aids, particularly the type which extends out from the hat.

Miss Valle, who is widely known as an exponent of youthful lines in hats for all ages, has designed all the hats to be worn at the International Beauty and Fashion Show in New York next week.

For Round Faces.

For the round-faced woman, Miss Valle suggests the muffin-shaped hat, as it promotes a youthful appearance. The forward lines are also ideal for this type of face, giving a smart angle to the rounded features. "The day is past," she said, "when a woman seeing a hat in a shop window exclaims, 'I wish I could wear that hat'; or 'I wish there was some occasion where a hat like that would be appropriate.' Women in these modern times are so busy going places that their hat wardrobes are as extensive as those of their frocks."

"There is no age limit to the modern hat," Miss Valle explained. "The hats I design for the older woman," she said, "have the same lines as those created for the younger one—the same is true of trimming and color combinations. All women look well in the chic new hats and know how to select headgear correctly, it is usually some member of the family who doesn't like the selection and starts all of the trouble about hat problems."

The matron, Miss Valle maintains, can wear the brimless hat as well as the extreme seven-inch cartwheel, with equal smartness—the main consideration is, it should be flattering, regardless of shape.

Blue Is Popular.

"The forward thrust of 1907 is appearing in the 1937 hats," Miss Valle said, "due to the old-fashioned influences in clothes. In fact, the entire decade is interpreted in the wardrobe this spring. Due to this important trend, blue, in all of its hues and tints, is one of the most outstanding colors of the season." The small flower toque, this expert believes, is especially attractive for dress-up occasions and a grand type of hat for weddings; those developed in hyacinth blue and other soft tones are particularly lovely, she thinks.

It is a fallacy that it takes a "type" to wear a strictly tailored hat, according to Miss Valle, who points out that if a woman is wearing simple or tailored clothes, her hat should harmonize. To lessen the severity of the classic tailor, Miss Valle combines materials and softens lines to make the hat becoming to all facial contours. Hats with a splash of color are more attractive for spring, she thinks, than monotone versions, the color accent being repeated in one other accessory, such as handbag, gloves, scarf or blouse.

FAVORITE FOODS of FAMOUS FOLK

Wife of Alfred E. Smith Gives Recipe for His Favorite Dish—Sweetbreads.

IN COMMON with other great men past and present, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York has his favorite foods and to his way of thinking the best of them all are those prepared by his wife. Mrs. Smith has many recipes, it is said, but when she searched about among them to find one to send to the Congressional Club Cook Book, the selection was an often tried one for "Casserole of Sweetbreads and Mushrooms."

It is a dish that often graces the Sunday supper table at the Smith home and it always wins applause when it appears on the menu. The Smith cook has learned to make it very well, but when a special treat is wanted Mrs. Smith herself superintends its making.

This is the way in which it is prepared:

Casserole of Sweetbreads and Mushrooms.

Soak one pair of sweetbreads in cold water for one hour and cook for 15 minutes in slightly acidulated and salted boiling water; remove and break into small pieces, removing the membranes; skin and slice 1 cupful of mushrooms and stew them for 5 minutes in 4 tablespoonfuls of butter; make 1 pint of well-seasoned white sauce and add the sweetbreads and mushrooms to it; in the bottom of a buttered casserole place 1 pint of green peas with a few small balls of potatoes and carrots which have been cooked and seasoned with butter; season with salt and add a pinch of sugar; over these pour the mushrooms and sweetbreads and set, covered, in the oven for about ½ hour. Serve as an entree with brown bread and butter sandwiches.

Scientists Blast Freak Diet Fad By Tests on Rats

Freak diets are a starvation course to physical destruction, according to Dr. Milton A. Bridges, of Columbia University. Just as a generation ago fish was believed to be a brain food, lettuce a sleep producer, celery a soother of the nerves, so today there are believers in the ability of an odd diet as a cure for all ills and in certain foods as weight reducers.

Scientists who test and classify food for their contributions to good nutrition observe the reactions of white rats through many generations. By experiments they have found that it is only on a mixed diet that better than adequate nutrition is maintained. It also has been found that a diet which may furnish materials for growth and maintenance for one generation is not always adequate for the reproduction of healthy offspring. After these observations are complete, there is a call for volunteers of groups of men and women who are willing to lend themselves as experimental material.

The scientists have proved that a varied diet containing plenty of milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables, meats and cheese and enough sweets, cereals, butter and other fats to supply energy, is the best recipe for good nutrition.

Gibson Girl Coiffures Return to Popularity

The new millinery styles, which revert to the Gibson Girl era, are bringing the old-fashioned pompadour back again. Several of the arrangements featured in a coiffure style show at the Miami Biltmore Country Club tended definitely to pompadours. The hair stylists call the new arrangement "padded hair," but it actually is nothing more nor less than the pompadour of the early century.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Factors in Constipation Cases

Predisposing factors in case of constipation are:

1. Improper food and drink. One of the simplest causes is starvation. Many physicians believe that almost as many people undereat as overeat. This is especially true in school children, who rush off with inadequate breakfast, and go through the day with concentrated and inadequate food. The home where there is no individual assigned to the duty of housekeeping, where the mother and father both work and all the children go to school, is the prize example of this sort of a situation.

Adequate bulk is the most important requirement in the diet of this type of constipation. People who change their diet from time to time, or take for a time less amounts than they are accustomed to, as in traveling, visiting or taking a sea voyage, are apt to have irregular action, which is a common experience.

Appetites Big Factors.

Fussy and capricious appetites are another cause which lead to diminished total bulk in the diet. This creates a vicious circle. The patient is constantly worried about digestive upsets, particularly constipation, and therefore avoids food or changes food so that the condition is made worse.

Some people have stomachs which react poorly to roughage in food, and for them it is worth while pointing out that the laxative principle in many foods with roughage is not necessarily the roughage. For instance, the juices of prunes or sauerkraut and of grapefruit have definite laxative principles; in fact, they probably do more of the work than the roughage itself. Molasses and honey are other articles which are not rough, but which have laxative effects.

Cathartics Cause Constipation.

2. The medicine habit. Long use of laxative and cathartic drugs is often more potent in causing constipation than curing it. Not only that, but they bring many serious complications, such as hemorrhoids, fissures, mucous colitis and even ulceration. Many a chronic case of constipation has been cured, and this includes attendant symptoms of heaviness and discomfort in the abdomen, simply by stopping the use of cathartics. The enema habit is just as bad. It means that the individual is consciously taking over the functions of the lower bowel. Colonic lavage is equally to be criticized.

3. Habit time. A normal movement or wave action of the large intestine occurs only at intervals, and is much more active during the day than at night. As soon as we wake up in the morning these waves begin, and they are augmented by the first meal that is put into the stomach. Neglect of the call at this time, due to business pressure or lack of facilities, is certain to result in a chronic condition.

4. Occupation. Sedentary occupation is liable to cause lax habits about physical exercise and exertion.

5. Emotion. Depressing emotion, such as worry, fear and anger, will cause temporary constipation. Much worse, however, is the habit of hurry—doing everything on the run; the whole system wound up tight like a clock.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Hosiery Goes Berserk As Skirts Rise an Inch

Hollywood . . . As skirts edge up another inch hosiery goes more berserk. Contrasting heels appear again, colors blossom out, and clocks are struggling for a foothold. Marcia Ralston leads the parade wearing neutral gray hose with high, square blue heels. Considering that the rest of her costume is navy blue except for a wide sash striped in Indian colors, the hose are smart as a whip. But, as an early warning, we'll have to be careful about the rest of our costume when we indulge in spectacular hosiery.

Lounging Suits Worry.

Because movie stars never go out during the week when they are working on a picture they give their lounging clothes lots and lots of thought. Bette Davis had ankle-high satin booties made up for herself to wear around the house evenings. They are as soft as those a baby wears, but still outrageously chic, done in wine to contrast with a housecoat of turquoise blue taffeta.

Japanese Girls Demanding Wigs For Ceremonials

Tokyo (AP).—Wig-makers in Japan these days are doing a thriving business to supply the modern Japanese woman with a classically dressed wig which she can wear for ceremonial occasions over her own bobbed hair.

The widespread adoption of Western clothes caused the elaborate old styles of coiffure to undergo an equally unprecedented change.

The city miss who has learned how to dress from watching Miriam Hopkins or Joan Crawford on the screen has been fast copying the rolled "bob" or the empire "bangs" of one of her favorite movie stars.

She skates, she skiis, she plays tennis and lives generally with this modish bob which she has waved and curled regularly at beauty parlors with Hollywood-trained operators.

But when it comes to weddings, christenings and funerals she shares the Oriental zest for making such occasions a grand ceremony.

Skin Cleansing Routine Offered By Screen Star

Second Soap Application Allowed to Dry on Face to Stimulate Color.

By Carolyn Abbott.

OF COURSE you all have your own beauty secrets. But are your results as becoming and as attractive as they should be? Do you admire Mary Smith's skin or Sally's hair but don't know how they achieve these flawless features? And do you wonder how the women in moving pictures always appear flawlessly groomed? (At least when you see them). Their beauty tricks really aren't difficult to carry out. They do require constant rehearsing and practice but the results are well worth your efforts and your time is well spent.

One star says she has discovered a splendid way of cleansing the skin. She washes her face thoroughly with her favorite soap, rinses it and then puts on another application of soap which she lets dry. She leaves it on while she bathes and when she takes it off she says her face tingles and it gives the same effect that an elaborate facial mask gives her.

Another also has a skin trick which helps account for her flower-petal complexion. She uses melting cleansing cream generously. However, instead of wiping it off with cleansing tissue, she uses little cotton pads soaked in witch hazel or some serviceable astringent. This leaves the face more refreshed than the old way of doing it.

Another much envied star gives us her nightly rite for brushing her long golden bob. She does this nightly because it gives a sheen to her hair and it develops the muscles of her arms and back. She uses the right arm for 50 strokes and then the left. As a consequence her back and arms are so beautiful she doesn't need to hesitate over the most daring decolletage

Shoreham Swimming Party Is New Departure As Congressional Wives Organize 75th Club

Bridge Parties and Teas Not Only Interests of New Group.

Women of Capitol Hill Plan to Continue Their Hobbies.

A swimming party at the Shoreham preceding the luncheon at which the wives of new members of Congress formally organized the Seventy-fifth Club yesterday, was the first of a series of occasions which will vary the usual program of teas and bridge parties. The wives in the new group have decided to devote themselves to other activities in which they are especially interested.

Mrs. John R. Murdock, of Arizona, took the lead by announcing she likes archery, horseback riding and study better than teas. The 34 other wives present immediately elected her president.

Instead of the usual social doings, they'll meet in nearby Alexandria and study old houses—or go to Rock Creek Park for a hike if they feel like it.

To plan a campaign for continuing their hobbies, the women investigated each other's talents by brief introductions around the table.

"I'm going to devote an afternoon to just things I want to do," said Mrs. Murdock, a trim, gray-haired woman in a smart sailor hat. "I'm going to ride horseback. If any of you want to go with me, fine." Several wanted to ride.

"I've made all my first calls very properly," said Mrs. Ed V. Izak, of California. "I'll be glad to teach anyone to swim."

"And I'd be delighted to have you all swim as my guests here at the hotel," offered Mrs. Harold G. Mosier, of Ohio.

Mrs. Charles R. Clason, of Massachusetts, revealed that she enjoys contract bridge; Mrs. Albert Thomas, of Texas, that she is associated with an antique shop here; Mrs. John McSweeny, of Ohio, that she collects hobnail glass.

Others were interested in art, music and child welfare.

Officers of the club, in addition to Mrs. Murdock, are Mrs. John Sparkman, of Alabama, secretary; Mrs. Jerry O'Connell, wife of the Representative from Montana, treasurer; Mrs. Frank Towey, of New Jersey; Mrs. Vincent Harrington, of Iowa; Mrs. Clason, of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Harold Cluett, of New York, vice presidents. Mrs. Harold Mosier, of Ohio, was named chairman of hospitality; Mrs. John Coffee, of Washington, chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. Jerry Voorhis, of California, chairman of publicity.

Underwood & Underwood.

Club's Officers To Be Honored

Women's Democratic Group to Entertain New Heads This Afternoon.

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the Woman's National Democratic Club, and the other newly elected officers will be the guests of honor this afternoon at a tea at the clubhouse at 1526 New Hampshire avenue.

Mrs. Edward B. Meigs, retiring president, will preside at the tea table, as will Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Mrs. Basil Manley, Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler and Miss Eleanor Connolly, officers who served with her during her administration.

The other newly elected officers who are guests of honor are Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, jr., Mrs. J. Brent Clarke, Mrs. Albert A. Jones, Mrs. William E. Fort, Mrs. Frank S. Bright, Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin and Mrs. Henry Clement.

The new administration, headed by Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, has formed a clearing house committee which, among other things, is rounding up recipes from members of dishes famous in the different sections of the country. Meals at the clubhouse from time to time will feature these dishes.

On Monday Mr. John T. Lambert will be the guest speaker at the forum luncheon which inaugurates a series of current events discussions by outstanding commentators chosen from the Washington newspaper corps. Plans for a founders' dinner are also under way.

Senator Hugo Black, of Alabama, one of the supporters of President Roosevelt's proposed changes in the judiciary, will be the first dinner speaker on Friday, March 12.

On Thursday at 11 a. m., Mrs. Wade Hampton and the Minister of Paraguay, Senor Buck Codas, will give a program which discusses an experiment which the government of Paraguay is making with the Indians of that country. In the evening Miss Katherine Lenroot, director of the Children's Bureau, will discuss the progress of the child labor amendment before the business and professional group of the club.

Philippines Official Entertains at Dinner

Mr. Leon Quinto, Commissioner of Public Safety of the Philippine Islands, entertained at dinner last evening a small company of friends in the Pall Mall room of the Raleigh Hotel.

Included among his guests were Maj. A. Natividad, military aide to President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine Islands; Dr. and Mrs. Diosdada M. Yap, Miss Celia Costa, Miss Rose Palucha, Mr. Proferio Sevilla and Mr. Parla R. Johnson.

Capt. and Mrs. H. K. Lewis, of Long Island, who are in Washington and have taken an apartment at the Roosevelt Hotel, were joined yesterday by Mr. Lewis' sister-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Lewis, of Chicago.

Queen Mary Guest Of Lady Granard At London Dinner

Of interest to Washington is the news that Queen Mary of England was a dinner guest Thursday evening of Lady Granard, wife of the Earl of Granard. This is one of the first times the Queen has accepted a private invitation since the death of King George.

Lady Granard is a sister of Mr. Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury. The London Evening Standard said of her in commenting on the dinner, "Probably the most notable American-born hostess in London, Lady Granard is noted for her dinner parties and for her bridge. Queen Mary, the late King George and other dinner guests have frequently been entertained at her home."

Mrs. Margaret Cantwell Leaves for New York.

Warrenton's Annual Hunt Plans Made

Point-to-Point Races Set for March 13 by Committee.

Society of the Capital is attracted by announcement of the fourth annual old-fashioned, point-to-point races of the Warrenton Hunt of Virginia March 13.

Although the day has been set, the hour and place of the races are being kept secret by the committee in charge, Mr. Amory Carhart, Capt. R. J. Kilpatrick and Mr. W. Henry Pool, until March 12.

The first race, for individuals, about five miles over Warrenton countryside, and the second race for teams, over six miles of the same territory, have been arranged.

They are to be open to members of the hunt, landowners and their guests. Hunters that have been used at least six times during the current season, ridden by their owners either with the Warrenton or another recognized hunt, may be entered. For these races, however, the owner may designate another qualified rider for his mount.

Qualifications and rules for riders are numerous. They must wear regular hunting clothes and use regulation equipment. A contestant must not ride a road for more than a quarter mile at one time and must close all gates and put up all bars. Newly-seeded fields must not be crossed.

Partners will be drawn by lot for the team race. Both members must finish, and the lowest time total draws first place.

Mr. Frederick H. Prince, jr., again has presented trophies: For the first race, a challenge cup to be won twice by the same rider; and a plate to be given the first rider finishing. In the second race two pieces of plate will be awarded the winning team.

The entry fees are to be contributed to the Warrenton Hunt panelling fund.

Envoy and Mme. Saito To Honor the Binghams

Complete Japanese Dinner Planned for Oriental Historian and Wife, Making Short Visit Here Before Going South.

By Dudley Harmon.

A real Japanese dinner, complete with sake, the national drink, and rice, the national dish, will be served this evening by the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Saito. Honor guests at the party will be Dr. and Mrs. Woodbridge Bingham, who are spending a few days in Washington at the Lafayette Hotel before going South.

Dr. Bingham recently returned to this country after a long stay in Japan, where he made a study of Oriental history. A professor at Yale University, he is the son of former Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, who also will be in Washington for the party.

Dr. Bingham is well known in Washington, as his father was Senator for several terms. Another son, Mr. Hiram Bingham, jr., is third secretary of the United States Embassy in Paris, while two other brothers have taken up dairy farming in Connecticut, their native State.

Japanese Food Planned.

Tonight's 16 guests are all persons who are authorities on or take an unusual interest in Japan. Among the dishes they will sample, besides the indispensable rice, are pieces of fish prepared in the Japanese manner, sliced paper-thin in the shape of a crescent, and sake, a wine made of rice, served in tiny, delicate cups.

The Japanese, of course, sit on the floor when they eat, and use chopsticks, but the Ambassador and Mme. Saito make a concession to Western ideas and guests at their Japanese dinners, and sit at the usual table.

Tonight's party at the embassy is a prelude to a series of dinners planned this month by Washington officials and members of the Diplomatic Corps. Thursday evening, March 11, the dean of ministers in Washington, Mr. Marc Peter, of Switzerland, will entertain at dinner for the newest envoy, Mr. Georges Bonnet, the French Ambassador, and Mme. Bonnet. Last evening Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were guests of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edge at their home on Eighteenth street. Their acquaintance with M. and Mme. Bonnet dates back to the days when Mr. Edge was United States Ambassador to France.

Count Potocki to Return.

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, will return tomorrow from Cuba, where he has been in his capacity as Minister. He will be accompanied by his mother, Countess Roman Potocka, and his brother, Count Alfred Potocki, who have been visiting in Nassau and Palm Beach.

Countess Potocka, wife of the Ambassador, will return to Washington in time for a dinner Thursday evening, March 18, at which she and the Ambassador will be hosts. She has been visiting in Virginia since leaving Washington several weeks ago.

Other dinners planned in the near future are the one at which the Canadian Minister and Lady Marler will entertain Saturday evening, March 20, and that of the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Manuel Trucco, Wednesday evening, March 24.

Representative O'Day Giving Tea.

Representative Caroline O'Day is entertaining at a tea Sunday, March 14, in honor of Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. The latter, who is staying at the Anchorage, will move to her new home on R street tomorrow. Mrs. O'Day lives in Georgetown in the house formerly occupied by the Secretary of Labor, Miss Frances Perkins.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, will be guest of honor at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Thursday, March 18.

That week-end also there will be entertaining when Mr. Carl H. Hanna, grandson of the late Mark Hanna, and Mrs. Hanna, come to Washington to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thad Brown. Representative and Mrs. Ralph Church will give a dinner in their honor March 20, and Mr. and Mrs. Brown also plan a dinner and other less formal entertaining for them.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Hayne Ellis will be here the same week-end from their Great Lakes station for the wedding of their son, Mr. Robert Alexander Long Ellis, and Miss Mary McDowell, at St. Thomas Church March 20, with a reception following at the Sulgrave Club. They are to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Owsley during their stay.

Mme. Saito received at the last of her "at homes" of the season yesterday afternoon at the Japanese Embassy. She wore a gown of blue uncut velvet, with a short train, and a triple strand of pearls around her neck. The small salon off the drawing room, where she received was decorated with bouquets of white and red and yellow tulips. In the drawing room were tall vases, one with Japanese iris and another with sprays of salmon-colored gladioli, while on the tea table was a bowl of pink carnations.

Early in the afternoon there was a crush of callers, people coming in such numbers that even the spacious rooms of the embassy were crowded. Later there were not so many guests and those who were there seemed chiefly of the official and diplomatic sets.

Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, was in animated conversation with Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis. Nearby were Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslavian Minister, and Mrs. Thomas Burke, who came together after having spent the earlier part of the afternoon practicing piano selections in preparation for some two-piano work. Mme. Fotitch wore a wine-colored costume suit with a gray fox cape, and Mrs. Burke was in a chic black outfit. With them was Mme. Coppola, wife of the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy, also in black. Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, wore a gay little turban of British tan with her costume and a brooch in a palm-tree design at the neck of her blouse, a souvenir of her recent trip to Florida.

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie and Mrs. James Frederick Healey, of Missouri, were there together, Mrs. Imbrie wearing a black dress with deep white cuffs on the sleeves, braided in black. Baroness von Below was wearing a gown of black with a black hat; Mrs. Amos A. Fries was there accompanied by her daughter; Mrs. Sam Wassell, Miss Frances Clark, Mrs. Paul Maloney and Mrs. Eugene Sykes had come together as had Mrs. Fred Biermann, Mrs. C. W. Turner and Mrs. John Gwynne, with Mrs. Gwynne's sister, Mrs. George Lichty, who is here from Waterloo, Iowa, for a short visit. Mrs. Daniel C. Reed and Mrs. Harry Englebright were also there from the Congressional group.

Mme. Rajamaitri was one of the later guests to arrive and joined a group having tea in the drawing room toward the end of the party, when Mme. Saito left the small salon in which she had been receiving and visited with her guests over the teacups.

Mme. Fotitch Gives Luncheon

Turkish Ambassador's Wife Heads List of Guests at Affair.

Mme Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at which Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, was the ranking guest.

The other guests were Mrs. Malin Craig, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Louis Caldwell, Mrs. Allen Chantry and her daughter, Miss Carolyn Chantry, Miss Mabel Boardman, Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. Thomas Burke.

Also present were Mrs. Carl Fisher, Baroness von Below, Mrs. Hamilton Wright, Mrs. Frank Simmonds, Mlle. Simone Gaucheron, Mme. Nicolas Perazic and Miss Sibilla Skidelsky.

Miss Arley Pistor And Mr. Olin Timm Engaged to Marry

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. J. Pistor, of Upper Montclair, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Arley Pistor, to Mr. Olin Henry Timm, son of Mrs. Henry Timm and the late Mr. Timm, of Dixon, Calif. Mr. Timm, a graduate of Leland Stanford University, with a master's degree from Cornell, is an assistant economist with the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

John Clagett Proctor To Judge Prize Polka

Mr. John Clagett Proctor will head the judges for a prize polka in which guests will participate at the gala gay nineties costume ball, to take place in the Willard Hotel on Friday evening, March 12. Proceeds of the ball will go toward the expenses of the 1937 President's Cup Regatta next September.

Miss Alice Louise Hounter will head the group of young women serving as ushers and program girls, and will be assisted by Miss Marjorie Beall, Miss Joan Beadle, Miss Beverley Bennett, Miss Jean Davidson, Miss Gertrude Elmendorf, Miss Louise Fulton, Miss Eileen Jordan and Miss Marjorie McGann.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Ambassador William Bullitt has blown into town, a few days ahead of his schedule. Walking into the Carlton Hotel yesterday whom should one see across the lobby but the Ambassador who had only that morning landed in New York aboard the S. S. Washington.

My goodness, the changes that are continuing to take their toll of our favorite diplomats here, are almost as bad as the Navy's annual spring ordering away! Carlos Blanco of the Cuban Embassy, who loves music and dancing, will be "quietly folding up his tent and stealing off" to London, where he will have his next post. His successor is Robert Mendoza, of the famous Havana family, tall, dark and with a mustache. He will be arriving here ere long.

More about Cuba—the embassy in Mexico which will be the home of Senor Dr. Guillermo Patterson for the next few years—is really a palace. It was designed and built by one of the richest families of the southern republic and then—as the story goes—they suffered a reversal in fortunes and in attenmping to recoup, sold their mansion to the Cuban government. The house is immense and rambles over a wide area in a most hospitable manner. There are also a swimming pool, a stable, a small playground which will delight the hearts of the Ambassador's grandchildren, to say nothing of the expansive surrounding grounds.

The Walter Smiths—who make their home on Cathedral avenue—recently scoured the Motor Boat Show in New York, having in mind the purchase of a new craft, theirs having fallen victim to a fire last autumn. They looked and looked but nary a boat did they find to suit them so well as their old one. They returned home and had work started on their old boat, which is being entirely rebuilt. It will be completed and as good as new in time for the warmer months and the gay parties they are famous for giving on board.

Congratulations are quite in order at the Dominican Legation. Emilio Garcia Godoy, formerly First Secretary, is now Counselor, and a very able one, we assure you, while Sebastian Valverde, who has been studying the diplomatic world and its doings while visiting his uncle and aunt, the Minister and Mme. Pastoriza, has been appointed Attache. Congratulations, senors!

Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr topped off her otherwise black ensemble with a purple, brimless hat yesterday morning at the very interesting lecture which Dr. Frank Bohn gave in the Chinese room of the Mayflower Hotel.

A very energetic little being at the meeting was a small yellow kitten, which had entered the room "unbeknownst" to anyone and apparently remained hidden behind palms or something until after the members of the audience were all seated—then it started its reign of terror. You can well imagine the surprise and shock caused by this furry little creature, when it stalked beneath the pale blue chairs and then when the spirit moved it would playfully pounce upon an unprotected ankle. Sitting in the back row, it was an easy matter for us to chart the progress of Mr. Kitty by the startled jumps of ladies intently listening to Dr. Bohn—then bent heads investigating the cause.

Among those we saw there were Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster in black and silver fox, her small hat developed in a shoulder-length veil; Mrs. William Jennings Price, smart as usual, her hair in soft waves; Grace Roper Bohn, in eel gray with a touch of henna atop her beret, and Sibilla Skidelsky in black, her turban encircled with a braid of jade green.

Supper Club Members Assemble at Sulgrave

Miss Mary Bradley Attends Party With Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, Miss Elizabeth Shouse and Others; Mrs. Merrill Present.

Another in the series of Friday Supper Club dances was held last evening at the Sulgrave Club. William was on hand as usual to open the door, and call the cars. A popular orchestra played from a platform in the ballroom.

Guests did not arrive in full force until almost midnight, although the invitations read "10:30." Dancing continued until 2:30, and during the supper hour guests sat at small tables in the hall and ballroom. The buffet supper consisted of bouillon cold meats.

Miss Mary Bradley was in the party which included Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, Miss Elizabeth Shouse, in a black crepe gown with a halter neck and belt of cerise; Mr. Joseph Morgan, of Philadelphia, who is spending the week in Washington; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. C. Smith, the latter in a white brocade gown and a diamond necklace, and Mr. George Thompson.

Mrs. Keith Merrill was an early arrival, wearing a gown of changeable blue taffeta. Mrs. Duncan Phillips was also in blue and her dress had a square neck and a very full skirt.

Miss Florence Harris, who wore a spring print dress, sat at a table which included Mrs. Patterson Roberts, in a silver lame gown; Mr. Henry Whitney and Mr. Osgood Nichols.

Members of the diplomatic set present included Mlle. Nora de With, who wore a white taffeta gown with gardenias in her hair, and Miss Rebecca Trucco, daughter of the Chilean Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Trucco. Mrs. William T. Mann was among the many guests who chose black. She was in a party which included Mr. William Briggs and Mrs. Enid Snow.

Others present were Miss Laura Tuckerman, in a blue taffeta gown with a full skirt and square decolletage; Mr. Gibbs Baker, Miss Suzanne Wilson, daughter of the Secretary of Labor, who wore a green flowered print in green and black; Mr. Wolcott Waggaman, Miss Nancy Brereton, Miss Alice Tuckerman, in white; the Minister of Siam and Mme. Rajamaitri; Mr. Merritt Cootes, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Clark, Miss Kate Hyde Scully, Mr. Denys Smith and Miss Mary Cootes.

Mrs. Olmsead Peter, in white taffeta; Miss Martha Bacon, Miss Katherine DuBoise, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, Mrs. Wilson in a blue brocaded gown; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chappel, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Moore, and Miss Virginia Colt, in a white pleated silk gown, and Miss Nancy Ordway.

Cousin of President Marries.

Miss Leila Delano, a cousin of President Roosevelt, was married at the Church of the Incarnation yesterday to Mr. Arthur Willing Patterson, of Philadelphia.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mr. Lyman Delano, of New York and Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson. Her father is chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Haroldo T. Valladas, of Rio de Janerio, Brazil, is stopping at the Carlton Hotel during his stay in Washington.

Mrs. Imbrie Hostess To 9 at Luncheon

Entertainment Follows Dr. Rauth's Lecture.

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie entertained at a luncheon yesterday after the first in a series of lectures on child psychology given in the morning at the Carlton Hotel by Dr. Edmund Rauth.

The luncheon was held in the main dining room of the hotel. A floral decoration of spring flowers centered the table.

The guests were Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, wife of Senator Robinson; Mrs. Dennis Chavez, wife of Senator Chavez; Mrs. Lee Phillips, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. Joseph Frederick Healy, Mrs. Royal McKenna, Mrs. Arthur Mullins, Mrs. Newton Brewer and Mrs. Pere Wilmer.

Others who entertained at luncheons at the Carlton following the lecture were Mrs. Raymond Francis Garrity, Mrs. Francis Murray and Mrs. Phillip A. Caulfield.

Manuel Quezon Given Reception By Mr. Paredes

Envoys and U. S. Officials Attend Function for Island President.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps and officials of the Government were among those at the reception given yesterday afternoon by Mr. Quintin Paredes, Philippine Commissioner, in honor of Mr. Manuel Quezon, president of the island commonwealth. Music for the party, which was held in the dragon room of the Wardman Park Hotel, was furnished by a Filipino orchestra from Philadelphia, which played from a bandstand decorated with the American flag, the Philippine flag and the President's flag.

Among those present were the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Hirosi Saito; the Secretary of War, Mr. Harry H. Woodring; Senator William H. King, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Mr. Dwight Davis, former Governor General of the Philippine Islands, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, former Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

Mrs. Quezon, who reached Honolulu yesterday on her voyage to this country, will embark shortly on the liner Lurline for San Francisco, and then will come by train to Washington.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

ALICE HUGHES.

THE OTHER DAY I assumed a somewhat barytone voice and attended a masculine style show, featuring the eighteenth annual meeting of the New York Cutters Club, an association of high-class custom tailors. And I got both eyes full of the latest stylish drapes.

I found a spokesman for cutters in the person of Mr. Frank C. Nagel, eloquent, but slightly revolutionary from the ordinary male point of view.

For instance, Mr. Nagel says the well-dressed man should budget one day's pay a week for his raiment. Therefore, a youngster battling through life at $25 a week should put $4.15 a week on his back, while a tycoon struggling along on $25,000 a year should contribute no less than $80 a week, or $4,160 a year, to his tailor, his haberdasher and his shoe dealer.

The tailors, however, let up on the boys in the $100 bracket. They slash them to 10 per cent, feeling that the hundred-dollar boys should allot a bit more to just having fun, which I consider white.

Women will be interested to learn that the fancier tailors are going color-crazy. In their own words, they are trying to give men "The beautiful and becoming colors they have always loved."

I reserve comment on this crack. I merely suggest that you read it aloud to father after he has digested his dinner. My own old man made unpleasant comments, and then took to his bed.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Glad to hear that Mary Pickford is out of her bed of pain, and will be ready to sail for London about the 10th. Then she'll marry her Buddy, who is over there making a picture . . .

* * * *

Winni Shaw, "The Lady in Red," has finished a long and successful tour of duty in our night clubs, and is off for Hollywood and more movies . . .

* * * *

This is news! An author has made a snoot at the money-bags of Hollywood! The lady is Sarah Gertrude Millin, whose autobiography of the Boer, General Smuts, is a brilliant job. Her reason is that the movies massacre biographies and murder history. And she has courage to take such a stand . . .

Antonia Brica, our famed lady conductor, gave a difficult and elaborate concert a few nights ago with the New York Women's Orchestra—and seven men were noted sawing and tootin, in Antonia's band! Ah—spies! . . .

* * * *

The silliest stories are coming from England about our author of "Gone With the Wind." Some of our London neighbors report that she is totally blind; others, that she wrote the wonder book "while in a plaster cast." Meantime, the House of McMillan are scotching these silly rumors as fast as they can—whispering meanwhile that to date they have printed 1,250,000, which is a tolerable lot of books . . .

* * * *

Dorothy Mackaill, sables and all, has sailed back to England, where she will appear in a play. Few realize, so long has lovely Dot adorned the American scene, that she is a Britisher by birth, having been born in the fine old town of Hull. This will be her debut on her native heath.

* * * *

I was delighted beyond measure to read that the new Queen of England, as soon as she had moved the little girls into Bukingham Palace, rushed out and bought a new nightie. How truly feminine! It's peach-colored velvet silk, high-waisted and belted in the empire style, with three-quarter sleeves. As we funny Americans would say—Attagirl, Elizabeth! Some Queen!

Evening Fashions Exotic.

"Go native after dark" is the new decree for spring and summer evening styles. Several of the most interesting gowns noted at late February festivities at the British Colonial Tennis Club in Nassau were of linen, printed in exotic South Sea Island patterns. One outstanding frock was of linen in a design inspired by a primitive painting.

Bread and Jam—a Treat for Children

When the children come home from school or in from play and clamber to the kitchen to find a bit of cake—and the cupboard is bare—get out your jars of jellies and jams and spread these sweets on plain bread. Bread and jelly will be welcomed by the little ones, served with a glass of wholesome milk.

Jams and Jellies Add Much To Tastiness of Daily Snack

Winter Supply Requires Many Hours of Work, but the Happy Result Makes it Well Worthwhile.

JAMS AND JELLIES seem like such a waste of money but what a lot they add to a simple piece of bread. The difference between plain bread and bread spread with jelly or preserves is as great as the difference between dark and light.

When the children come home from school and look for a bite to eat, they aren't contented with a piece of bread and butter and a glass of milk, but ask mother if they may have some cake or cookies. These delicacies aren't always convenient but it is a simple matter to have a jar of marmalade or a glass of jam in the refrigerator and with some of this sweet on the bread they will feel like they have a treat. Or if you want to have a quick luncheon of sandwiches and soup, you can quickly make a new sandwich filling by spreading jelly between the layers of bread or combining it with some other filling as cottage cheese or mashed ripe bananas. These spreads are frequently used on toast, muffin and biscuits for breakfast.

Differ Greatly.

Every one is familiar with prepared jams, jellies and preserves, yet if someone asked you to distinguish the difference between these three popular food products, you might experience some difficulty in arriving at a satisfactory definition.

Try to explain the difference right now and then see how your explanation compares with the following, which is given by a noted food authority, "Jam; the title of 'jam' is generally applied to that class of preserves in which the whole fruit pulp is cooked together with water and sugar, without regard to the preservation of the shape of the fruit—differing from preserved fruits or 'preserves,' which retain in some measure the original forms, and from 'jellies' which are distinguished by the removal of the pulp tissues and are also generally more solid in body."

Store Brands Tasty.

A winter's supply of jams, jellies and preserves, if prepared in the home, represents many hours of work and expense but often different flavors may be obtained. However, satisfactory porducts may be purchased ready-made from your grocer and it is difficult to distinguish some of the brands from the home-made products.

If you are not familiar with all of the tasty sandwich combinations you may want to try some of the ones listed below. They will prove most popular with the children and also as impromptu refreshments at informal parties:

Peanut butter with jam or jelly.

Cottage cheese with preserves or jams.

Creamed cheese with preserves or jams.

Creamed cheese mixed with jam, jelly or preserves.

Mashed ripe banana with preserves.

French toast with jelly or preserves.

Jelly from Apple Skins.

When paring apples for pie, sauce, etc., discard stem and blossom ends and bad bits. Put skins and cores in saucepan. Add 1 cup cold water, put on low heat, cook 25 minutes and strain juice into cup. From 4 apples there should be ¼ cup. If there is too much juice, boil it down to ¼ cup; if too little, add water to the skins until just ¼ cup juice is secured. Return juice to saucepan and add 3 tablespoons sugar, stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved, then boil 1 to 2 minutes, testing constantly until the 2 drop jelly test is secured or until it sheets from the spoon. Turn into a glass, or use as glaze for an open tartlet or pie.

Golden State Jam.

2 cups uncooked prunes
½ medium sized orange (rind included)
6 cups water
2 cups granulated sugar
¼ teapoon salt

Rinse prunes and cut from pits in small pieces. Cut orange into very thin slices, then into small pieces and combine in a large kettle with water, sugar and salt. Bring to a boil and continue boiling 10 minutes. Add prunes and boil 20 minutes, stirring continuously to prevent scorching. Pour into glasses and seal with paraffin. Sufficient for three 7-ounce glasses.

Pecan Pie Makes Scrumptious Dish

Delicious Dessert Delights Even the Die-Hards.

Pecan pie—all glossy and brown, nutty sweet and scrumptious! It's irresistible to those who have an insatiable sweet tooth—and even the "I don't-care-for-dessert" die-hards will rave about this one.

Pecan Pie.

3 eggs
½ cup granulated sugar
1 cup dark Karo syrup
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 tablespoon Angostura
1¼ cups pecans (whole or broken)
1 nine-inch pie plate lined with short pastry

Beat eggs, add sugar, then syrup, salt, butter, and Angostura. Blend thoroughly. Sprinkle pecans in the lined pie tin, pour over the egg mixture. Bake at 400 degrees Fahrenheit for ten minutes, then at 375 degrees Fahrenheit for 30 minutes.

The pecans will rise to the top and underneath will be a rich and tasty custard filling.

Serve with or without whipped cream—and be sure to have lots of piping-hot coffee ready.

If part of your family likes chocolate pie and the other part prefers lemon pie, bake two kinds in one crust. As meringue pies should be eaten the day they are baked, this eliminates waste. In the middle of the baked shell, place a strip of cardboard wrapped with waxed paper. On one side pour lemon filling and on the other chocolate, using half a recipe for each. Then a meringue is placed over the entire pie.

You can keep corsages about two weeks in summer and much longer in winter if, after wearing them, you remove the ribbon, place the flowers in a shallow dish, cover the botjom with water, and put them into an air-conditioned ice refrigerator.

To take shortening out of a can, hold the spoon over a low flame for a second before dipping it into the can. The shortening then slides into the spoon and out again easily.

When building a grate fire, lay one or two short ends of used-up candles among the kindling, or in the coal. Then ignite it, and in a short time the fire is burning merrily.

Turn into refrigerator tray and freeze without stirring.

Marshmallows Perfect to Serve At Club Meetings

Marshmallows mean a party! And this chocolate marshmallow loaf is perfect to serve when the club meets at your house. Particularly on these winter afternoons when a nipping wind outside makes a cheery room and delicious food seem all the more grateful. This cake is easy, too!

Chocolate Marshmallow Loaf.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Marshmallows

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well, then add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8 by 8 by 2 inches, in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) one hour. Turn from pan, and while still warm, cover bottom with marshmallows that have been rinsed with cold water and cut in halves crosswise. When cake is almost cold, cover with chocolate coating.

Chocolate Coating.

2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 egg, well beaten
1 tablespoon butter

Add chocolate and sugar to water in top of double boiler, place over rapidly boiling water, and cook ten minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from boiling water. Add egg, beating thoroughly; then beat in butter. Cool. Makes one cup coating.

Canned Cherries Good Foundation For Gelatine Dish

To make this simple dessert, drain the liquid from the can and if desired remove the pits from the cherries. Choose a lemon flavored prepared gelatine. Add enough water to make up the liquid from the can to two cups, or whatever the amount is designated on the box of gelatine. Make the gelatine, following the directions on the package and when the mixture begins to set, add the cherries. A few chopped almonds are good to add to the gelatine mixture. Chill thoroughly. Unmold the gelatine and serve with whipped cream or a soft custard.

This same gelatine mixture makes an excellent salad. Arrange it on lettuce and serve with a dash of mayonnaise. The gelatine is pleasing if molded in an attractive shape, as a ring mold or in a round basin.

You can also make this same kind of a gelatine mixture using either the white Royal Anne cherries or the pitted red cherries. The pits are left in the white cherries and like the black cherries, the pits may be left in the dessert, or removed beforehand. If you would like to make the dessert or salad extra festive, remove each pit and replace with a piece of almond or walnut. Cream cheese mixed with chopped nuts makes a tasty filling for the cherries, and if it is used, arrange the cherries in a shallow pan and pour the gelatine mixture over them when it has begun to set. Do not stir, or the fillings will loosen from the fruit.

In case the pitted red cherries are used instead of the white or black ones, an extra amount of sugar may be desired, depending upon how sweet a mixture you prefer.

Spring Flower Basket in Cross Stitch Gives Design for Bedspread.

By Alice Brooks.

HOW LONG since your bed's looked really dressed up? Then spring's the time to come forth with a gaily embroidered bedspread—the product of your own nimble fingers. Transfer this pretty flower-basket motif on old or new bedspread, and work its beautifully shaded effect in 10 and 5-to-the-inch cross stitch. Floss or cotton's the thing to use, in any glorious color combination you desire. In pattern 5798 you will find a transfer pattern of a basket 16½ x 21½ inches; two and two reverse sprays 4¾ x 5¼ inches; color suggestions; illustrations of all stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Cooks Are Urged To Give Recipes For Cauliflower

CAULIFLOWER is the subject for the new recipe contest. Though this vegetable has not been recognized as many years as some of our other vegetables, it has fast come into its own and now reigns as one of the favorites.

You may have cauliflower creamed, curried, cauliflower au gratin, with hollandaise sauce, cauliflower polanaise, cauliflower salad or pickled cauliflower as an appetizer. Or you may like to serve cauliflower snow, stuffed cauliflower, cauliflower with nuts or souffle. What ever it is, do you have a pet recipe that you think deserves a prize?

The cash awards for this contest are $3 for first prize, $2 for second, and $1 for each of the remaining three prizes.

Write neatly or type your favorite recipe for cauliflower and send it to Rebekah Blake, The Post Food Editor, in time for it to reach her not later than Saturday noon. Write your name and address clearly on your recipe.

Serve hot cereal to children in various interesting ways—with a piece of butter in the center, with stewed raisins or other fruit, with sweetened fruit juice, applesauce, or with maple sirup and cream. They love it.

Heinz 57

BEANS FOLKS YEARN FOR

WE MIGHT paraphrase the old saw to read "Show me a person who doesn't like Heinz, and I'll show you one who doesn't like home-baked beans!" For Heinz beans are the sort bean-wise folks yearn for! You can't tell Heinz from home-baked because they're baked the home way!

Take, for instance, our Boston-style oven-baked beans with pork. We get the very finest beans. Sort and re-sort them. Soak 'em. Bake them in hot, dry ovens, till each bean is mealy, meaty and tender. Then they are drenched with a rich, luscious sauce of molasses and fine spices. Um-m-m!

4 KINDS

Boston-style, with pork and molasses sauce. Pork-and-tomato-sauce, in Mid-West fashion. Vegetarian, with tomato sauce; no meat. Red Kidney Beans, baked in their own sweet sauce.

Lent Season Offers Dishes Free of Meat

Macaroni and Cheese Is an Old Standby for This Period.

By Rebekah Blake.

THE LENTEN SEASON may put the homemaker in a turmoil, trying to find attractive suggestions for meatless dishes to serve during this period. As old friends are said to be best friends, macaroni and cheese are turned to as old faithfuls. With a new twist to its preparation, or a new accompaniment with it, this favorite will gain new friends with every entrance on the meatless menus.

Macaroni, as egg noodles and spaghetti, is an energy food, high in its proportion of carbohydrates. When combined with fruits, vegetables and high protein foods such as cheese and eggs, it offers a well-balanced meal base.

In preparing macaroni, purchase a reliable variety of the food and follow carefully the directions given for cooking it. Use the correct amount of boiling salted water, cook only until tender, use low heat, and use either hot or cold water for blanching the cooked product.

Wine Sauce Helps.

Get a new flavor from your macaroni by serving it with a cheese wine sauce. The mild flavor of the macaroni takes on tingling good taste when accompanied by this sauce. It is a simple garnish made with domestic sherry wine and will do wonders in stimulating your appetite for more. Wine served with the delicious macaroni dish offers atmosphere as well as appropriateness. It is essentially well suited for informal buffet service.

A relish tray, served by the macaroni casserole will add an even more piquant flavor to the meal. Put ripe and green olives, sweet and dill pickles, celery curls and tomato slices on the tray and a cup of creamy cottage cheese in the center.

When you serve this macaroni dish, accompany it with mushroom cocktail, jellied vegetable salad, green asparagus tips and pineapple upside-down cake or cherry pie for dessert.

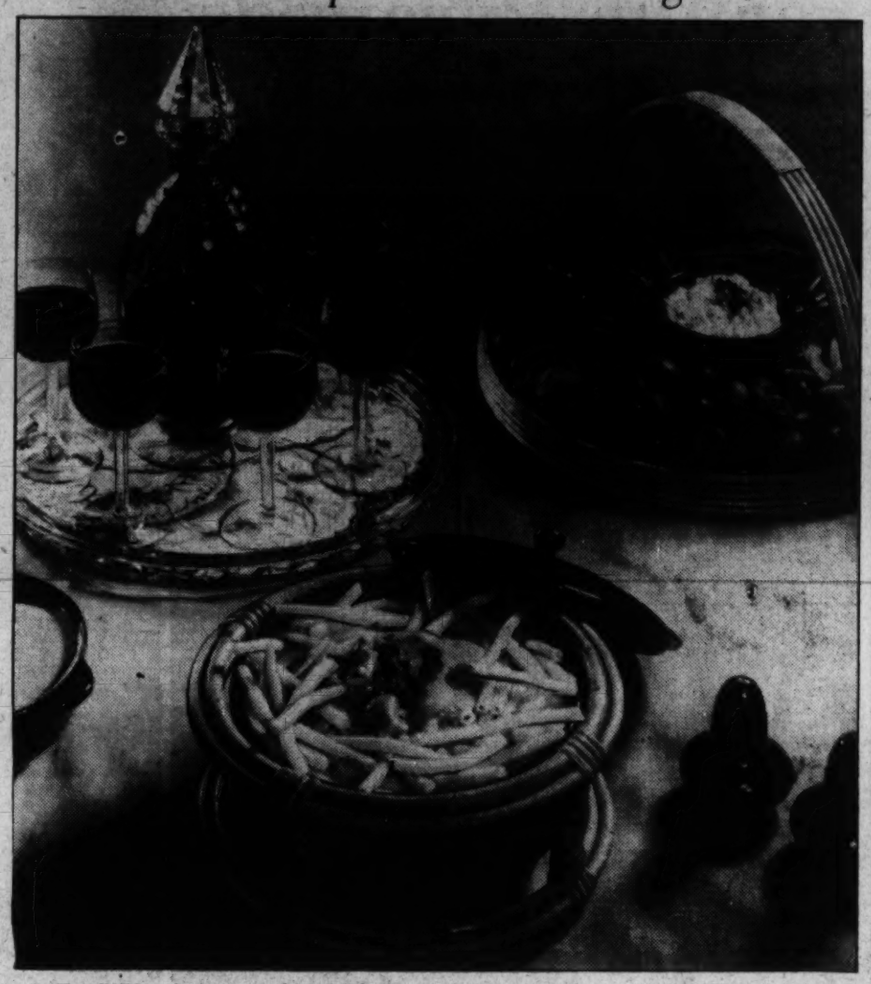
Macaroni With Cheese.

4 cups cooked macaroni
1 medium onion minced
2 medium tomatoes, or ½ cup tomato juice
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons butter
2 hard-cooked eggs
½ pound creamy mild packaged yellow cheese
¼ cup domestic sherry wine

Cook until tender, but not browned, the onion, green pepper, sliced tomatoes or tomato juice with the butter. Combine with the cooked macaroni and sliced hard-cooked eggs and place in baking dish. Melt in the top of a double boiler the cheese, when soft add the sherry wine and mix well. Pour the cheese wine sauce over the macaroni mixture. Bake one-half hour in moderate oven—350 degrees. Serves 8.

If you care for a more pronounced cheese flavor—prepare additional cheese wine sauce and serve as an accompaniment to the macaroni.

Macaroni Replaces Meat During Lent



MENU makers will not have a difficult time finding meat substitutes for Lenten meals if they will resort to macaroni and its many variations. When served with cheese-wine sauce it has an entirely different flavor than the ordinary macaroni and cheese. Serve a tray of assorted relishes with this energy-giving food and you will give an even more piquant flavor to the meal

Muscle Faddists Are Attacked By Professor

Setting-up exercises such as the army gives its recruits are "very poor forms of physical activity" and the way the army teaches you to stand and walk is incorrect, says Dr. Jesse Feiring Williams, professor of physical education of Teachers College, Columbia University.

With a gibe at "big-muscle-faddists" whose "sign is an overdeveloped torso wrapped in a leopard skin," Dr. Williams says:

"The fact is that exercise has nothing to do with longevity * * * when one considers some of the exercises recommended for man, an early death would indeed be preferable to the daily practice of them."

Exercise for the ordinary person, according to Dr. Williams, ought to consist mostly of natural activities or modifications of them, such as walking, running, jumping, lifting, climbing, running, striking, throwing, swimming, dancing and games of various kinds. He gives a series of such exercises for "physical illiterates," among whom he numbers "the captain of industry" * * * who "may have played football in college but is still a physical illiterate if he has no motor skills that he uses in a recreative way."

Dr. Williams, whose chief occupation is training physical instructors for schools, also lists various sports which he condemns for girls, and others which he recommends as suitable. He classifies his list as follows:

Condemned:

Doubtful:

For immature girls: basketball.

For immature girls: climbing dancing, jumping (in moderation), running (in moderation), skating, swimming, tennis and walking.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

I'M DEEP in the business of re-creating our old home place built by my great-grandfather in 1823-25," writes Mrs. Lansing A. Dickson.

"It's really going to be interest- when it's finished. The great living room is being papered with old maps that I've collected. And the dining-room walls will be covered with pages from an old county atlas which shows pictures of county homes and towns in 1860. And of course I'm accumulating as many things as I can that belong all through the nineteenth century, when this house was in its heyday. (It's made of brick molded and burned right on the farm near the house.)

"So far the floor coverings are hand braided, crocheted or hooked rugs and I'm trying to keep the other furnishings in the mood of the house. I wish you could drive up to see it sometime."

Wouldn't we like to, though! And if ever we are in Mrs. Dickson's neighborhood we certainly will. We're thinking how charming some of the old Victorian things would be in that house—a Brussels carpet, for instance. And lace curtains . . . and wax flowers under glass, a horsehair sofa, a whatnot and a velvet bound family album.

Remember that the Victorian period in decoration had its own charm and much very beautiful furniture was made during that time. We treasure in our own home some marble top tables, several rosewood carved chairs and a love seat, along with an old bureau.

Victorian colors and fabrics suggest fascinating ideas for today's decorating, too. There is an abundant heartiness about them that we enjoy.

* * * In fixing over old houses, slip covers always seem to be the recipe, so maybe this bulletin will be handy; "How to Make a Slip Cover That Won't Wrinkle or Bag." It will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hot Cross Buns Recipes Listed For Lent Period

"HOT CROSS BUNS, Hot Cross Buns,
One-a-penny, two-apenny, Hot Cross Buns."

The shape and decoration is the great difference between these buns and other sweet bread.

Hot Cross Buns.

1 cup scalded milk
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
½ cup shortening
1 yeast cake softened in
¼ cup luke warm water
4 to 4½ cups flour
3 egg yolks

Add scalded milk to salt, sugar and shortening. When luke warm add yeast and 1½ cups flour. Beat well and let rise until very light. Add egg yolks and the remaining flour. Knead lightly and let rise until double in bulk. Roll out dough to one-inch thickness and cut into rounds. Set these close together on a greased pan and let rise. Glaze the surface of each bun with a little egg white diluted with water. With a sharp knife cut a cross on top of each bun. Bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven (400 F.). Just before removing from the oven brush with sugar and water. Fill the cross with plain frosting. A cup of raisins may be added to the dough if desired. You may also add finely chopped glazed fruit, as orange, lemon or grapefruit peel or pineapple, citron or cherries.

Refrigerator Hot Cross Buns.

½ yeast cake
¼ cup luke warm water
1-3 cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup mashed potato
½ cup scalded milk
1 egg
4 cups flour
¼ cup seedless raisins

Mash potatoes, add shortening, sugar, salt and eggs. Cream well. Dissolve yeast cake in luke warm water and add to luke warm milk, then add potato mixture. Add sifted flour and raisins, enough to make a stiff dough. Toss on floured board and knead well. Put into large bowl and let rise until double in bulk. Knead slightly, brush top with melted butter, cover tightly and store in refrigerator. When ready to use, pinch off pieces of dough as large as walnuts. Place on greased baking sheet and let rise until very light. With a sharp knife cut cross on top of each roll. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in hot oven 15 to 20 minutes. If desired, cross may be made with confectioner's icing after buns are baked.

Western's Great Defense Throttles Eastern, 22-13, for Its First Title

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 5.
J. W. Riseling,
City Editor,
The Post,
Washington, D. C.

Dear John:

Drat you and your Brady boy. If the little tyke had to run away from home, why did he have to pick Florida, especially this part of Florida? I speak not only for myself, but for every other Washington baseball writer with the Nats.

POVICH.

That little guy has raised hob with the vacations of us baseball writers down here. He may be human interest in Washington, but, metaphorically speaking, he's a full-blown pain in the neck to us guys who are supposed to be reporters.

Nothing against the boy personally, you know. It's a fine upstanding lad that he is, indeed, and you can go for him, as we say in our set. But the rub is, John, that he has given you city editors a legitimate excuse to interrupt our delightful calm down here with your telegraphic demands for news and more news about Little Jimmy.

• • • •

Talk about his parents being frantic! Why, they couldn't have been anything but mild cases, compared to the frenzy you city editors have caused among us baseball writers down here, with your demands to know—and know quickly—how Little Jimmy ran away, and why, what he wore, what he ate, how he skipped the cops, where he got the dough, what he thought of the Nats' pennant chances, who is his favorite movie actor—and actress—would he do it again, and stuff like that.

• • • •

That little guy wasn't really dropped in our laps, like you city editors apparently think. He did come to Orlando, sure enough, but he didn't stay an hour before they took him to Palatka. If you think Palatka is around the corner, well, take a gander at that mileage bill I'm submitting herewith for daily trips to Palatka—200 miles by the speedometer.

• • • •

Some Chase, John!

As far as we baseball writers are concerned, nobody wanted to see Little Jimmy have his day at the Washington training camp any more than we did.

• • • •

For four days now we've been traipsing up and down Florida looking for the kid, who has alternately been staying with friends here, at Deland, and Palatka. To visit him yesterday we had to go to the East Coast, a few miles south of St. Augustine, where Little Jimmy was sunning himself on the beach as punishment for his runaway.

• • • •

That little fellow permitted us only one day of leisure here after the training camp opened. Just as we were about to settle down for a long siege of late-morning sleep, 18 holes of golf in the afternoon and a little baseball reporting on the side, we get your wires that Little Jimmy was seen in Jacksonville and headed this way.

• • • •

Puttin' Me to Work?

That was all very cute about him running away and making his way here all by himself and ducking the police and having that great consuming love for baseball, but it's cuteness ended, as far as we were concerned, when the office began to realize that we had a nice yarn dropped in our laps, so to speak.

• • • •

Personally, I detected something of a fiendish delight on your part in those messages that came streaming over the wire nose to tail and tail to nose, urging quicker, more complete details about Little Jimmy and his actions. You wouldn't, by chance, get a secret thump out of putting me to work, would you?

• • • •

As I was saying, John, Little Jimmy has gone his way and that swishing sound in the orange belt was not the rustle of the north wind through the blossoms, but the echo of five baseball writers heaving an audible sigh of relief.

I'm only hoping that Brady kid hasn't started a fad among Washington's younger set. At least while I'm down here. Yours in sport,

Tarheels, W. & L. In Cage Play Final

Raleigh, N. C., March 5 (U.P.).—The University of North Carolina and Washington and Lee moved into the finals of the Southern Conference Basketball Tournament here tonight by close victories over strong opponents.

Carolina, defending the conference title, defeated Wake Forest College in a 37-to-35 thriller after Washington and Lee had eliminated a stubborn North Carolina State College five 27 to 23.

Wake Forest, trailing 15 points with the final period half gone, suddenly opened fire with a series of field goals that demoralized the Carolina defense and brought them within two points of a tie.

By John R. Vosburgh.

Smoothly but cold bloodedly—like a firing squad—Western High shot Eastern off its three-year perch as the king-pin of inter-high basketball last night, 22 to 13, while a full house of 4,000 in Tech's gymnasium looked on in mingled surprise, chagrin and satisfaction.

It was a very high-class exhibition, to say the least, with which the gents from Georgetown gave Western its first basketball championship in the 21 years of the inter-high series history, and Coach Michael J. Kelley, of Eastern, was among the first to speak in such terms after the playoff was finished.

"They deserved to win," Mr. Kelley permitted himself to be quoted. "There isn't any question about that."

Western, though it held the title-holders to five baskets, went about knocking Eastern off in rather deceiving style—particularly to Western followers. The champs started off by taking a 6-0 lead which had Western looking as though it had been quarantined from scoring.

Lombardy's First and Last.

Russ Lombardy, the Eastern All-high forward, opened the game with a set shot of about 20 feet which marked his first and last basket. Mr. Hugo Schulze, who plays guard for Western, was assigned to the troublesome Lombardy, and with the exception of that first basket, the blond bomber of the champs was a dud so far as scoring was concerned, Schulze shadowing him like a Pinkerton detective.

With the start of the second period, Eastern uncorked a brief scoring punch which swept the champs to a 6-0 lead as Clint Quantrille and Farmer Colley scored in succession. Obviously disturbed at this turn of events, George DeWitt, sensational Western center, tossed a one-hand shot from the side for Western's first basket and his first bid for high-scoring honors with which he eventually walked off with nine points.

Eastern Takes Lead.

Lomax followed with a similar piece of magic from the side, added a foul shot and DeWitt then tied the score at 7-7 after Colley made good a free shot, with another swisher from the side. The thunder-packed Eastern stands cut loose with a roar a minute later when Quantrille sank a long shot but that 9-7 count was Eastern's last lead.

Capt. Gerald Burns, of Western, scored two under the basket in quick succession and the Red Raiders had an 11-9 lead at the half.

The third period was a tragic chapter for Eastern, with Western zooming to a 20-10 lead as Burns, Heil, DeWitt and Schulze scored in that order, DeWitt's being fouls. Meanwhile, Eastern was being held to 1 point as the Georgetowners displayed a great defensive game which had the Southeast sharpshooters missing the bull's-eye the few times they were allowed to shoot.

Coach Cliff Moore smilingly admitted after it was all over that, yes, he guessed Western's next stop is the South Atlantic tournament at Washington and Lee University. Coach Moore then posed with his gleeful team but failed to jump completely under the showers with the players.

Eagles, News and Sports Center Fives Move Up in Post Tourney.

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover's G-men of Bureau of Investigation lost no time in rubbing Potomac Power and Electric Company out of The Post's A. A. U. basketball tournament last night at the Heurich gym, doing a very workmanlike job, 85 to 9. Joe Robinson, Investigation center, set a new individual scoring mark of 25 points to lead the strongly favored G-men into the second round of the unlimited division.

In the only other unlimited game, the Flying Eagles stamped out the Tennis Shop, 45 to 28, with a second half drive which saw them extend a 23-19 lead to 17 points.

The Washngton Daily News barged into the second round of the 145-pound class by swamping Pincus Grill, 34-14. The newspapermen were led by Raedy, who piled up 14 points. In the other 145-pound collision, Sport Center disposed of Takoma Motor Co., 40 to 26, to keep up pace with the News, as it were.

450 of East's, South's Best Toe Mark Tonight

Georgetown's Mile Relay Team Will Run Against Temple, Rams in Quest for Record; Olympic Star, Conference Champs Entered.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

More than 450 of the finest legmen in the East and South Atlantic sectors will toe the mark tonight at Baltimore in the first annual renewal of the indoor track and field games sponsored jointly by the University of Maryland and Fifth Regiment. The contests will be staged in the regiment's gym starting at 7:30 o'clock and probably will last about three hours.

A delegation of at least 500 fans from Washington and vicinity is expected to see the games, which promise to be better and more colorful than anything of their kind held in this vicinity in recent years. Georgetown and Maryland have entered sizable teams, and all four leading high schools will be represented.

Maryland's outstanding are Coleman Headley, who will oppose a brilliant field in the Governor's mile, and Frank Cronin, Southern Conference champion and record holder, indoors and out, in the quarter mile. Both are expected to make strong bids for the laurels in their specialties.

Georgetown, however, is the team to be watched, for the Hoyas' mile relayers are conceded to be one of the Nation's best and are striving for a new world mark. The Armory track may prove to be ideal for their purposes, for it is eight laps to the mile, instead of the customary 10, which may enable Coach Jim Mulligan's men to get up more steam in less time than usual. The squareness of the track appears to be its lone bad feature. Longer straightaways would make for faster time, but even this is not expected to impede the Hilltoppers appreciably.

The team will be comprised of Vincent Healy, LeRoy Green, George Bogan and Jim McPoland, running in that order. The boys have done very well thus far this winter, having won two of their three races—one in record time for the particular meet.

A star-studded field will compete in the games, including all Southern Conference champions crowned last week in the annual indoor meet at Chapel Hill. Other topnotch spike artists entered are Joe McCluskey, of Olympic fame; Bill Harding, Yale pole-vaulter; Bill Hopkins, Virginia's brilliant sprinter; Joe Lumpkin, Richmond middle-distance runner, and Graham Gammon, North Carolina miler.

Madison, Wis., March 5.—The University of Wisconsin boxers handed Duke University its first dual match loss since 1933 tonight, winning 5 to 3.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 5.—George T. Dunlap, former national amateur champion, and R. P. Davidson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., won the thirty-third annual spring best ball match play golf tournament here today with a 2 and 1 victory over Francis T. Keating and R. V. Ostrander, of New York.

Hamilton, Bermuda, March 5.—Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto, defeated Dorothy Jones, of Detroit, 2 up today in the semifinals of the Bermuda Women's Golf Championship.

Cleveland, March 5.—C. C. Slapnicka, business manager of the Cleveland Indians, asserted tonight Johnny Allen, the club's holdout pitcher, had rejected the club's final offer by telegram.

Austin, Texas, March 5.—Strategy of legislators opposing repeal of the State law which in 1933 legalized betting on horse racing centered today on a point of order that the method of a Senate move toward repeal violated the rules. Should the Senate finally pass the McKee bill with the repeal amendment it would go to the House again for concurrence.

New York, March 5.—Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del., took the lead over Ralph Greenleaf, of Chicago, in their pocket billiards match tonight by winning two blocks by big margins. Caras took the afternoon session 125 to 51 in 18 innings then repeated tonight, 125 to 93 in 14 innings.

New York, March 5.—Despite Zoel Radner's two first places, the Johns Hopkins University swimming team lost a dual meet to City College of New York, 46 to 29, tonight.

Storm Addles Rich Widener Race Choices

Record Field of 19 to Go to Post in $50,000 Event; Finance Liked.

most successful season. As was expected, Trainer Bert. S. Michell, who has dominated the meeting with the horses in his charge, named Finance and Two Bob, the property of Mrs. Denemark and Floradora, owned by Elmer Dale Shaffer.

The famed "luck" of the Denemark horses will have to vie with the new-found luck of Townsend B. Martin, the Long Island sportsman. In a surprise move, he purchased White Cockade, hero of the Withers Stakes at Belmont last May, from Ogden Phipps, of New York, this morning.

Finance May Be Choice.

Last Saturday, Martin gave John Hay Whitney his check for $7,500 and acquired the colt Court Scandal. A few hours later, the unknown colt, wearing his new owner's colors, scampered to the wire ahead of his field in the $20,000 added Flamingo Stakes.

White Cockade, a 4-year-old son of Diavolo, is one of the several members of the field who "move up in mud," as the horsemen say.

It was rumored that Martin might make a deal for Columbiana, owned by W. J. Hirsch, and couple the horse that worked sensationally here early in the week with White Cockade.

Despite conditions, Finance may lead the Denemark-Shaffer entry into favoritism. Finance has won four of six races here and equalled the mile track record of 1:35 1-5. He won the McLennan Memorial Handicap and came within a fifth of a second of Brevity's track mark of 1:48 2-5 for a mile and an eighth last Saturday.

Top weight in the mile and a quarter test, will be borne by F. M. Alger's Azucar, which competed as a steeplechaser before returning to flat racing to win the first running of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap, as was the case when he triumphed on the West Coast. Azucar will be a long shot tomorrow.

Betting of $700,000 Seen.

The Maemere Farm's Maeriel will not lack backers should the track be off. He has known closing ability and was defeated by a scant nose by Finance a week ago. Col. E. R. Bradley will send Bow and Arrow after the big money. Hal Price Headley's Whopper, a brick worker, lost some caste through poor racing but will have a following.

Although the Widener was run last year as a $10,000 added race, this is the first attempt of the local management to make it the "winter Kentucky Derby" and despite substantial raises in admission prices, the program is expected to draw more than 25,000 regular and occasional racegoers.

Track officials anticipate a betting total of $700,000. As far as I have been able to determine, the interest of the present population of Miami is not "at fever pitch" over the $50,000 race. True, the eve of the Widener finds sportsmen gathered along Flagler street discussing the merits of the various horses, but that Louisville-the-night-before-the-Derby spirit just doesn't prevail.

Metz's 8-Sub-Par 272 Wins Hollywood Golf

Revolta, Runyan Tied at 275 for Second; Hines Is Next With 276; Laffoon Has 277; Winner Gets $700 in $3,000 Tourney.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Fla., March 5.—Dick Metz, bronzed young Chicago professional, won the $3,000 Hollywood Open golf tournament today with a 72-hole score of 272.

Metz, eight under par for the distance, finished three strokes ahead of his nearest rivals, Johnny Revolta, of Evanston, Ill., and Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y.

Another stroke back at 276 was Jimmy Hines, blond shotmaker from Garden City, N. Y.

Revolta and Paul Runyan split $800.

Jimmy Hines won $280 fourth money. Ky Laffoon and Byron Nelson collected $200 apiece. Johnny Farrell won seventh prize of $180. Seven others also were in the money.

Metz played a contrasting round this afternoon. Sinking putts from 8 to 15 feet, he shared birdies on the first, fourth, sixth and seventh holes for an out 33, three under par.

Coming back was a different story for the smiling Chicagoan. Thrown off pace, possibly by showers, he three-putted the tenth and played par golf on the last eight, unsuccessfully putting for birdies on each.

Revolta's woods went sour on fairways made a trifle soft by the rain. He copped just two birdies, on the second and seventh. He hooked his tee shot out of bounds on the fourteenth.

Frank Strafaci, of New York, former public links champion, shot a pair of 72s today to win amateur honors by two strokes over Bobby Dunkelberger, of Sedgefield, N. C. Strafaci had a 287. Morton McCarthy, of Norfolk, Va., was third in the simon-pure division with 294.

Fencing Wins Over Bain Marie by Head in Hialeah Feature

Game Finish Gives Gelding Sprint Purse

Bain Marie Suffers Bad Luck; Scotch Queen Finally Scores.

By the Associated Press.

Hialeah Park, Fla., March 5.—Racing under leaden skies and over a sloppy track, Maxwell Howard's Fencing scored a lucky victory in the featured Perrine purse, seven furlong test for 3-year-olds, here today. The Chance Shot gelding, a non-threatening sixth in the recent Flamingo stakes won by Court Scandal, defeated H. E. Enger's Bain Marie, doubtlessly the best horse in the race, by a head. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Prairie Dog was third, six lengths away.

Fencing raced the distance in 1:25 1-5 to pay favorite players $5 for $2.

Bain Marie suffered bad racing luck. During the post parade the filly broke away from Apprentice Barba and galloped a furlong before being caught. That did her no harm, but when it came to the actual running of the race, Bain Marie was forced back on the inside rail rounding the bend and had to ease around horses for the stretch run.

Nad, ridden by Stout, made the early running, with Prairie Dog and Fencing hard by. Bain Marie moved up fast leaving the far side, then was blocked by Nad. She made a game try in the stretch but Fencing, closing gamely, beat her out at the wire.

Scotch Queen broke a long string of failures when she outran a field of platers to score by a length in the second contest. Fair Time was a fast-closing second, three lengths clear of Harp o' Gold. Hubert Leblanc sent Scotch Queen into almost immediate command. His mount disposed of Wee Princess in the first half mile, opened up on the field but was driving to hold Fair Time safe at the end. Capt. Greenock, close second choice to Fair Time, never was a factor, finishing eighth. Scotch Queen returned $12.90.

Sunphantom, 3-year-old son of Genie, easily rewarded the talent in the third. Another 6-furlong affair. With Charlie Kurtsinger adding to his lead over other local jockeys, Sunphantom came from behind with a rush that overpowered the faster beginners in the stretch. The gelding registered by three lengths and paid $5. Company, the early leader, was easy second, another three lengths better than Amhurst. The time was 1:12 flat.

Carlovinian, a $14.60 for $2 hazard, turned in a flashy effort to defeat some shifty sprinters in the fourth. Well handled by Apprentice Barba, the chestnut son of Grandace triumphed by a half length in 1:11 4-5. Anglo Saxon was second by six lengths over Top Radio. Rye Beach, heavily backed, stopped badly. Carlovinian spurted from fourth place in the early running, caught Anglo Saxon at the eighth pole and prevailed in a hard drive.

Hot Cake, $5.50, made it two in a row in the last race, beating Gunwale by four lengths. Glittering was third.

Apprentice Hubert LeBlanc duplicated Jack Westrope's feat of riding two winners when he booted the lightly played First Entry to a driving success in the sixth event of a mile and a furlong. Closing at $23.90 for $2, First Entry came from a position not far behind the pace and scored by a length and a half in 1:52. Star Bud made up ground to finish three lengths before Easiest Way for secondary honors.

*Field.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NOTORIETY, $4.60, $3.50, $2.80; ROUTINE, $52.80, $23.60; PEGGING AWAY, $3.90.

NOTORIETY broke fast, showed a liking for the sloppy going, and stood drive gamely. ROUTINE broke fast, showed speed, ran straight and held on gamely. PEGGING AWAY was well up all the way and had no excuse. WISE COUNSEL finished fast on the inside. BOLD TURK well up all the way. TRANSMITTER never a factor.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward, nonwinners since January 12. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:33½. Winner, Mrs. P. Andolino's ch. m. (5), by Scotch Broom—Balkan Queen. Trained by N. A. Nardi. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SCOTCH QUEEN, $12.90, $6.60, $4.00; FAIR TIME, $4.30, $2.80; HARP O' GOLD, $4.30.

SCOTCH QUEEN, showing a decided liking for the going, was kept on the outside, raced WEE PRINCESS into defeat, drew away, but was doing her best at end. FAIR TIME, slow to get into his stride, moved up gamely and was a fast-going second. HARP O' GOLD ran good race. METTLE closed a big gap. CAPT. GREENOCK floundered in the going.

$2.00 DAILY DOUBLE, FIRST AND SECOND RACES, PAID $54.30.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of two races at any time. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 3:01. Off at 3:04. Winner, Mrs. Charles S. Bromley's ch. g. (3), by Genie—Sunayr. Trained by L. P. Harlan. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12.

MODEST MANNERS	(J. Renick)	103	1	6	6	6	6	6	28.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNPHANTOM, $5.00, $3.30, $2.50; COMPANY, $3.90, $2.90; AMHURST, $3.30.

SUNPHANTOM, running in best form, was steered wide all the way, moved up gamely on the outside, assumed lead in stretch and won nicely in hand. COMPANY was used up racing BARON GRAY into defeat and tired. AMHURST, well up all the way, ran a nice race. MANRICO did not like the going. BARON GRAY had speed for half a mile, then quit.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of two races at any time. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 3:31. Off at 3:33½. Winner, Mrs. W. T. Anderson's ch. g. (3), by Grandace—Gay Kitty. Trained by W. T. Anderson. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:11 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CARLOVINIAN, $14.60, $5.60, $3.90; ANGLO SAXON, $3.80, $3.10; TOP RADIO, $4.20.

CARLOVINIAN was allowed to gallop along back of the fast early pace, began to move up around turn, came to inside in stretch, but swerved out, but apparently was clear and never bothered. ANGLO SAXON, Latter had plenty of speed, raced RYE BEACH into defeat and held on gamely. TOP RADIO finished third. RYE BEACH stopped badly after showing speed for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 4:02. Off at 4:05. Winner, Maxwell Howard's ch. g. (3), by Chance Shot—Psyche. Trained by E. Sande. Value to winner, $775; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:25 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FENCING, $5.00, $3.00, $2.30; BAIN MARIE, $3.70, $2.30; PRAIRIE DOG, $2.30.

FENCING, on the extreme outside all the way, began to move up around turn, assumed lead in stretch and was driven hard to win. BAIN MARIE was probably pounds off by Stout on NAD. She was eased back, then came around field and finished gamely. PRAIRIE DOG was used up racing with NAD and tired badly. NAD had speed for six furlongs, then quit.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of two races in 1937. Start good. Won driving; place easily. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:24½. Winner, G. La Fiesh's dk. b. or br. g. (5), by Kai-Sang—Io. Trained by E. T. Miller. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:52.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRST ENTRY, $23.90, $12.60, $7.20; STAR BUD, $11.60, $6.80; EASIEST WAY, $5.20.

FIRST ENTRY moved up on the outside, finally ran into lead on turn, drew out, but was doing his best to win. STAR BUD moved up with a rush and made a game effort. EASIEST WAY broke fast, but dropped far back, finished fast on the inside. PLAY CHANCE closed a big gap and would have been third in a few more strides. NIGHT RAVEN stopped to a walk.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and a furlong. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward, nonwinners of two races since November 15. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:02. Off at 5:04½. Winner, Medway Stable's ch. g. (8), by The Porter—Pancake. Trained by G. Alexandra. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:54 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT CAKE, $5.50, $4.10, $3.40; GUNWALE, $5.50, $3.80; GLITTERING, $4.20.

HOT CAKE, much the best, moved up gamely in run down backstretch, took lead half way around turn, drew away and won easily. GUNWALE was hard ridden the last half mile. GLITTERING came with a rush on the inside. BERRY PATCH was close up all the way. CHANCE QUEEN had speed for six furlongs, then quit.

Sherwood Wins Tourney Title

Hosts Lose By 24 to 19 At Rockville

Rockville Juniors and Bethesda Girls Both Annex Laurels.

Sherwood High School, of Sandy Spring, pulled away in the final quarter to win the ninth annual Richard Montgomery High sportsmanship tourney from the host, Rockville High, 24 to 19, before a packed house.

The Rockville Junior team won the little fellows' trophy with a 22-to-15 victory over Friends, and the Bethesda Girls kept the trophies in Montgomery County by triumphing over the George Washington of Alexandria High Girls, 20 to 16, earlier.

The final game of the evening was a thriller up to the last period. Sherwood led, 9 to 5, at the first quarter, but the hosts tied it at 11-all at half time. The visitors assumed a 15-to-13 lead entering the last stanza and pulled away, led by Bond and Lansdale.

L. Fletcher Schott, principal of Rockville High, presented the main trophy to Capt. Dick Lansdale of the winners. Members of the winning teams in each class received Sportsmanship Brotherhood pins.

The host Rockville little fellows trailed 8-2 at the first quarter, but led by Tommy Ray forged ahead, 14-13, at half time and held the Friends juniors scoreless in the third period to run up the margin of victory. Ray, with 12 points, led the scorers, while McKee, with 6, was high for the losers.

Misses Berg, Hemphill Vie In Golf Finals

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla. March 5.—Patty Berg and Kathryn Hemphill set the stage today for the most gripping drama of the women golfers' winter swing around Florida.

They meet in the finals of the Florida East Coast tournament and to the winner goes the lion's share of the season's honors. Opinion was divided, but all agreed Patty, sturdy little Minneapolis school girl, would be hard pressed to compete with the vastly improved player from Columbia, S. C.

The tip-off may have been in today's play, a repetition of the early rounds since Miss Berg blasted par by four strokes to win medal honors with a 76.

Miss Hemphill's game was deadly as she polished off Dorothy Traung of San Francisco, 6 and 5. The Carolinian went out in 36, a stroke under men's par, to lead 4 up at the turn. Putting on the pressure to make her score even 4's for the 13 holes played she won the eleventh and twelfth and rounded out the victory.

G. W. Frosh Beat G.W. High, 38 to 28

The George Washington Freshmen, defending champions and favorites in The Post's A. A. U. tournament were extended in winning over George Washington High of Alexandria, 38-28, last night in the losers' gym.

The Frosh held a 21 to 14 lead at half-time and led by Carper retained a comfortable margin over the hosts. Carper with 14 points led the scoring with Headstream of the Colonials and Noland of the losers next with 8 each.

D. C. Intercollegiate Mat Tourney Tonight

The first annual District Intercollegiate wrestling tournament will be held tonight at Gallaudet College with a field of 20 contestants entered in the battle for eight championships. All of the wrestlers are from Gallaudet and Maryland, but it is hoped that post-entries from other schools will swell the list considerably. The first bout is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Parker Goes Into Indoor Tennis Final

Jones Bows, 6-1, 6-2, 8-6; Mme. Henrotin Goes to Women's Final.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 5.—Frank Parker, of Spring Lake, N. J., America's second-ranking player, moved into the final round of the national men's indoor tennis championships today by defeating David N. Jones, former Columbia star from New York, 6—1, 6—2, 8—6.

Jones, who depended almost entirely upon a terrific service and hard-driving net game, made numerous double faults, while many of his shots either landed in the net or went beyond the baselines.

Frank J. Bowden, of New York, seeded eighth, turned in a mild upset when he downed fourth-ranking Walter Senior, of San Francisco, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4, in the other semifinal.

New York, March 5.—Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, advanced to the final round of the United States indoor women's tennis championship today by beating Charlotte McNeill, of Bound Brook, N. J., 6—2, 6—1, in a semifinal match.

Aintree Favorite Runs Third, Muddles Odds

Hurst Park, England, March 5 (AP).—Speculation on the outcome of the Grand National 'Chase ran into confusion today when H. L. Thomas' Royal Mail, favorite for the Aintree classic, ran third in the Worcester Park 'Chase of three miles and 180 yards.

Beriberi, an outsider, won by a head from Santa Klaus with Royal Mail three lengths back.

Frank Gould's American-owned Grand National hopeful, What Have You, finished among the also rans.

Michigan Track Team Routs Pittsburgh, 66-38

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 5 (AP). Michigan's Thinclads, who will seek their fourth consecutive Big Ten indoor title at Chicago next week, completed a dual meet campaign tonight with a clean slate, triumphing over the University of Pittsburgh's crack track team, 66 to 38.

The Wolverines scored slams in the mile and broad jump and firsts in all but four events. Pitt's Johnny Woodruff, Olympic 880-meter champion, counted a double victory in the 440 and 880 yard runs.

Dub Bowlers Get Innings In Play Today

Super-dub pinmen will have their innings this afternoon at the Queen Pin alleys where a large field is expected to compete in the fourth annual Charlie Olive Sweepstakes. The event, in honor of the local duckpin promoter, is scheduled for seven games and is open to bowlers with a league average of 112 or under.

Manor Club, Team No. 1, clinched the championship of the Golf League which concluded its activities last night at the Lucky Strike drives, leading Kenwood No. 1 to the finish mark by a two-game margin. Beaver Dam No. 1, the defending champions, finished third.

Agnes Rubin, of Kanns, led the list of individual feats in the Ladies Independent League at Arcadia, shooting top set of 315. Hardesty's 121 game aided the Ramblers in collecting team game and set laurels with 323 and 1,494, respectively.

Alvin Crowder to Pilot, Hurl for Charlotte Club

Winston-Salem, N. C., March 5 (AP).—Alvin Crowder, former major league hurler, who secured a Piedmont League franchise for Winston-Salem today, announced here that he would manage his entry in the league, and that he might serve as a pitcher part of the time.

2 Nats Sign, Newsom Is Weakening

Chapman, Stone Both Raised to $12,000 and $9,500.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 5.—The rapidly-dwindling hold-out crop of the Washington ball club was reduced to one—Buck Newsom, today and he apparently was weakening.

Outfielders Ben Chapman and Johnny Stone both yielded to the persuasive powers of Clark Griffith and notified him they would report on schedule Sunday.

From Montgomery, Ala., Chapman telegraphed Griffith that he would bring his contract with him, and from Mulberry, Tenn., Stone telephoned Griffith, collect, that terms were satisfactory.

Both Chapman and Stone, vital cogs in the Washington baseball machine, were rewarded for their brilliant seasons of last year, according to Griffith. Chapman, whose $10,000 salary with the Yankees was taken over by the Nats after the latter acquired him in the trade, was given an additional $2,000 bonus last season by Griffith. His 1937 contract is believed to call for a straight salary of $12,000, which may stamp him as the highest-paid member of the club.

Stone Gets $9,500.

Stone, the Nats' leading hitter last year with his .341 average, is believed to have been given the largest salary raise of any Washington player this year. Comparatively low paid at $7,500 last season, Stone will receive $9,500 for his 1937 services.

That Buck Newsom is beginning to doubt the wisdom of his holdout tactics was revealed by Griffith today when the Nats' owner admitted that Newsom had reopened negotiations with him by telephone.

(A dispatch from Hartsville, S. C., Newsom's home town, however said the pitcher and Griffith were still very much at loggerheads, and quoted him as saying last night that: "I will hold out and not sign under any condition unless the 'Old Fox' gives me what I want."—Ed.)

Unwittingly Griffith, who jealously guards his pay roll figures, revealed tonight that his offer to Newsom was $9,000, not the popularly supposed $10,000. Newsom was paid $11,000 last season and had demanded an increase despite his record of 17 victories against 15 defeats.

Bolton Refused Bonus of $500

Orlando, Fla., March 5.—Clark Griffith today told newspapermen that he could refuse flatly to pay Catcher Cliff Bolton a $500 bonus, which Bolton declares was due him on his 1936 contract.

"Contract or no contract, a player forfeits all rights to bonus money if he quits the team in the middle of the campaign, like Bolton did," said Griffith with some heat. "He has colossal nerve even in asking for it.

"Why, Bolton should be ashamed of himself," added the Nats' owner. "If he had stayed with the team to the finish, we very likely would have finished in second place, and that would have meant $800 more for every man on the club. He threw all of his teammates down."

Bolton has agreed to 1937 salary terms, but declared several days ago that he would insist on the $500 payment, which was a clause in his 1936 contract. He was to receive the bonus, he said, if he caught the majority of the Nats' games. Bolton worked in 86 of the club's 154 games.

While the Chamber of Commerce proudly took a bow for the tropical weather that greeted the Nats at Tinker Field this morning, Manager Bucky Harris stood off and avidly surveyed his athletes in a perspiring 90-minute workout.

The chief eye-opener was provided by young Jim Wasdell, who for the first time gave evidence that his .341 batting average in the Southern Association was no myth. Against the pitching of Joe Cascarella, Jimmy DeShong, Jack Salveson, Pete Appleton, Dick Lanahan and Kendall Chase, young Wasdell sent the ball rollicking to distant points.

Harry Kelly, the long missing rookie who found himself on the wrong train and was four days late in reporting to the Nats, finally made his appearance today.

Sarron's Title Combat With McGrory Delayed

London, March 5 (U.P.).—The title prizefight between Petey Sarron, of Birmingham, Ala., rated by the United States National Boxing Association as world featherweight champion, and Johnny McGrory, British champ, scheduled for April 15, was postponed today when it was learned that McGrory had a broken jaw. The injury was received in last night's ten-round bout with Ginger Foran, of Liverpool.

A.A.U. Ring Tourney.

The District A. A. U. boxing championships will open March 20 at Turner's Arena, it was announced last night. The semifinals will be held March 24 and the finals March 27.

On the Air Today

Phil Baker is looking for an old-fashioned "feud"—and will broadcast his needs with Beetle, Bottle and others of his troupe tomorrow night.

Baker is alarmed by an epidemic of radio "feuds" between J—k Be—y and F—d Al—n, and B-n B—ie and W. W——l. He wants a feuding partner for a real feud. Candidates thus far include a man named Fred, a cousin of Agnes Moorehead, a script writer and no less than Bottle, who is determined to stage a battle with his worst pal and severest critic.

Tonight's comedy relief is provided by Joe Cook and the "Chateau." Joe, as you must know, has been telling a baseball story, a hilarious routine, in which all the game's rules are butchered to make comedy fodder.

Inveterate baseball fans always have insisted that this yarn, although admittedly funny, really amuses only those

Gen. Electric Reports 79% Gain in Orders

Profits Last Year Largest Since 1930; Dividend of 40 Cents Voted.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 5.—Announcing a dividend of 40 cents, General Electric Co. revealed today a 79 per cent gain in orders booked in first two months of the year. The dividend, payable April 26 to stock of record March 19, compares with recent quarterly payments of 25 cents and an extra of 50 cents in December.

Profits for 1936 were $43,947,000, the company reported, equal to $1.52 a share on common stock against $27,843,772 or 97 cents a share in 1935. These were the best profits since 1930.

Gerard Swope, president, said orders received in first two months totaled $64,000,000. Sales billed by the company in 1936 totaled $268,545,000 against $208,733,000 in 1935, an increase of 29 per cent.

After payment of approximately $21,600,000 common stock dividends in December, the company had cash and marketable securities amounting to $92,030,000 against $93,710,000 at close of 1935, Swope reported.

An increase in gross value of investments to $214,881,000 from $188,932,000 in previous year reflected appreciation in market value of securities of an "investment character," the company said. Regarding the employes profit sharing plan, Swope said:

"The amount earned for 1936 under general profit sharing plan, for employes with five or more years of consecutive service who do not participate in extra compensation plans, was $2,938,000 compared with $655,000 for 1935."

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Resume Advance to New High Levels With Steels Leading; Francs Break.

New York, March 5.—Stocks moved ahead briskly, after a day of profit taking rest, and early gains were well maintained. Sales volume was heavy enough at times to upset the Stock Exchange's reporting facilities, but on the whole the trading was orderly. Industrial stocks and railroad shares were lifted to new high levels on the recovery as a result of the day's prices. Government bonds were heavy. May wheat rose 1⅞ cents a bushel to 135¼ cents a bushel. Most commodities were firm.

Stocks again were dominated by the steel issues. United States Steel set the pace by opening on a block of 10,000 shares at 123½, and then advancing 2 more points to a new high level. Other steel issues were equally buoyant and the speculation spread considerably, especially among the railroad issues. Public utilities came to life and the oils, stores, metals, chemicals and motors advanced briskly at times.

Along the airways also the demand for stocks was good, arising partly from the general enthusiasm over an inflationary boom and partly from anticipated Army and Navy demands for planes. On the less serious and less dangerous side of life, the theater stocks boomed a little. In short, the markets indicated in all directions that it was worth a bet that a new era of spending was opening up and the ultimate outcome could remain the worry of the other fellow.

Return to Normalcy.

On the news side the event of the day was the information from Paris that, taught a severe lesson since formal devaluation of the franc by abandonment of the gold standard last autumn, sound measures would be taken on the franc. In conformity with most other New Deal policies, the French government supposed it could abandon gold and coax emigrated capital back to France, but with severe penalties attached. The bad boy had no urgent desire to return home merely to receive the parental walloping, especially when it considered the punishment would be given by a stepfather.

Since that date devaluation of the franc has not helped the French position greatly, in spite of the financial and moral support of the United States and Great Britain. While trade internally improved considerably, the advantages were entirely lost by the rise in prices, which even outstripped higher activity. Meanwhile the French government's deficit continued to rise, forcing the state to borrow from London and from the Bank of France, and to throw money away by attempting to hold the franc from a further debacle.

Coaxing.

New measures to be taken involve two main points: Removal of the penalty against repatriated French capital and a fresh start on governmental economy. By the first policy, which involves permission to buy and sell gold freely in France the setting up of a free gold market in Paris, those who sent their francs abroad will now be able to bring them back at a profit, for they will receive for the old francs a greater number of new and cheaper francs. That ought to bring back French capital, for its employment at home probably will be profitable.

Francs dropped again sharply today, but the current level, some observers think, may be a holding point, with aid of the stabilization funds, and mean permanent stabilization. Whether that is realized will depend largely on how much capital can be tempted to return to France by the bait of the gold profits which will be realized on the emigrated money and on how much faith will be shown in the present political set-up. There may be some question whether, even with removal of the penalty against returning capital, complete confidence will be shown in the Blum Socialist government, but in general less fear of the communistic leanings of that administration is apparent than was the case when the ministry first came to power.

Still in Danger.

If French capital now follows the example of Dutch and Swiss funds, it will return in a large amount, for the Dutch and Swiss used better judgment and allowed the gold profits to be taken by their repatriation schemes. All that naturally raises the question of hot money on this side. If French capital in any considerable amount leaves the United States, what may be the effect on our securities and money market rates? Just now the answer of those who venture to guess is that we have no cause for worry. French money, they say, will return but slowly from short-term employment, and that which is invested in securities will stay there until better opportunities are presented elsewhere, and the war fear abroad also will tend to check a hasty return. In any event, most of the French money went to London.

For all the wisdom of the current financial steps now being taken, the finances of France still are and will remain in an unsatisfactory condition in view of the huge armament expenditures, and on the same count those of Great Britain and Germany stand to worsen. We, too, have no excuse for complacency.

Bank Stocks.

Bank stock buyers went on a spree today, bidding prices up 1 to 20 points. The bank stock market had been in a stalemate for nearly a week, while profit-taking arising from the last extensive advance was being absorbed. It won't be many months before there will be talk of higher bank dividends, but the time of actual increases is probably a longer way off than many investors believe. The banks have been taught in recent years to be more conservative.

Stock Seat $125,000, Advance of $6,000

New York, March 5 (AP).—Arrangements were made to sell a membership in the New York Stock Exchange today for $125,000, an advance of $6,000 over the $119,000 for which a seat last changed hands February 13. The high figure for a membership for 1937 was established January 8, when a seat sold for $134,000, and the low on January 25, when $105,000 was involved. The 1936 high was $174,000 on February 19 and the low $89,000 December 1.

Associated Gas Output.

New York, March 5.—An increase of 16.1 per cent in net output brought electric production of the Associated Gas & Electric System for the week ended February 26 to 87,124,929 units. This is an increase of 12,049,740 units over the same week of last year.

Freight Traffic Continues Rise Over Year Ago

696,727 Cars for Week of February 27 Is Gain of 3.5 Per Cent.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended February 27 totaled 696,727 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 23,858 cars or 3.5 per cent above the corresponding week in 1936 and an increase of 92,396 cars or 15.3 per cent above the corresponding week in 1935.

Loading of revenue freight for the week of February 27 was a decrease of 18,157 cars or 2.5 per cent below the preceding week due to Washington's birthday holiday. The corresponding weeks in 1936 and 1935, however, do not include a holiday.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week ended February 27, totaled 288,326 cars, a decrease of 1,779 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 41,643 cars above the corresponding week in 1936, and 62,845 cars above the corresponding week in 1935.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 153,131 cars, a decrease of 13,345 cars below the preceding week, 4,620 cars below the corresponding week in 1936 and 6,577 cars below the same week in 1935.

Coal loading amounted to 159,144 cars, an increase of 2,510 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 16,009 cars below the corresponding week in 1936. It was, however, an increase of 20,295 cars above the same week in 1935.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 27,772 cars, a decrease of 2,080 cars below the preceding week, 8,885 cars below the corresponding week in 1936, and 1,353 cars below the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended February 27, totaled 16,833 cars, a decrease of 1,566 cars below the preceding week and 5,319 cars below the corresponding week in 1936.

Live stock loading amounted to 11,003 cars, a decrease of 666 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 430 cars above the same week in 1936. It was, however, a decrease of 1,728 cars below the same week in 1935. In the Western districts alone, loading of live stock for the week ended February 27 totaled 7,916 cars, a decrease of 453 cars below the preceding week but an increase of 128 cars above the corresponding week in 1936.

Forest products loading totaled 34,679 cars, a decrease of 2,432 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 4,813 cars above the same week in 1936, and 8,669 cars above the same week in 1935.

Ore loading amounted to 10,683 cars, a decrease of 238 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 4,810 cars above the corresponding week in 1936 and 6,492 cars above the corresponding week in 1935.

Coke loading amounted to 11,989 cars, a decrease of 127 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 1,676 cars above the same week in 1936 and 3,753 cars above the same week in 1935.

All districts, except the Northwestern and Southwestern, reported increases in the number of cars loaded with revenue freight, compared with the corresponding week in 1936. All districts reported increases compared with the corresponding week in 1935.

$100,000,000 Bills Offered by Treasury

The Secretary of the Treasury gives notice that tenders are invited for two series of Treasury bills to the aggregate amount of $100,000,000, or thereabouts. One series will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders.

Tenders will be received at the Federal Reserve Banks or branches, up to 2 p. m. on Monday. Tenders will not be received at the Treasury Department.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, March 5 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.)—Some woolen manufacturers covered immediate needs in original bag lines for fine Western-grown wools today. The volume was not large, but included a number of lines.

Short French combing length fine wools in original bags brought around $1, scoured basis. Average to good French combing length fine territory and Texas wools in original bags were 1.03@1.05, scoured basis, when bought by mills with urgent needs. Others were not attracted by prices in these ranges.

Inflation Charged In Utility Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

Counsel for the Securities Commission contended yesterday there was $420,000,000 of "water" or "inflated values" in the 1929 market price of stock controlled by Harrison Williams.

L. M. C. Smith, commission attorney, asserted the market values amounted to $680,000,000 September 30, 1929, while the asset value was only $260,000,000.

L. E. Kilmarx, an officer in many of the utilities companies dominated by Williams, took immediate exception to Smith's contention the difference represented "inflated values" due in part to Williams' widespread market activities in his own securities.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Marked weakness in the French franc was an unsettling factor in foreign exchange markets yesterday.

Following news of re-establishment of a free gold market in the French capital, the franc fell .08¾ of a cent in New York dealings to 4.56 cents.

Sterling dipped ⅛ of a cent to $4.97½. Guilders also declined in sympathy with the French unit.

In Paris the dollar closed at the equivalent of 4.462 cents to the franc, compared with the overnight New York rate of 4.646 cents. In London the dollar gained ⅛ of a cent, closing at 4.96⅜ to the pound in contrast with the overnight New York rate of 4.98¼.

Auction Sales

MONDAY, MARCH 15, 1937—

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE DETACHED STUCCO AND FRAME DWELLING, NO. 3149 NEWARK STREET NORTHWEST, CONTAINING ELEVEN ROOMS, THREE BATHS, HOT-WATER HEAT, BUILT-IN GARAGE.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 6962, folio 317, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on MONDAY, THE FIFTEENTH DAY OF MARCH, 1937, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Part of the unsubdivided part of "Cleveland Park," conveyed by Thomas E. Waggaman and wife, Christine, to Margaret F. Sharp, by deed recorded in Liber 2299, folio 432, of the Land Records of the District of Columbia, described by metes and bounds agreeable with the Surveyor's Record Book 83, page 474, of the Surveyor's Office Records, as follows: Beginning for the same at the intersection of the West line of said conveyance to Margaret F. Sharp with the North line of Newark street as dedicated and shown by plat recorded in Liber County No. 15, folio 12, of the aforesaid Surveyor's Office Records, said beginning point being distant 198.93 feet from a point 15 feet south of a stone at the Southeast corner of Block 8 in Cleveland Park, as said Block 8 is shown by a plat recorded in Liber County No. 10, folio 4, of the aforesaid Surveyor's Office Records, and running thence along said line of Newark street, North 89 degrees 54 minutes East, 82.52 feet to the Easterly line of said conveyance to Margaret F. Sharp; thence following the outlines of the land so conveyed, the following four courses and distances (1) North 6 minutes West 99.61 feet (2) North 74 degrees 56 minutes West, 26.39 feet, (3) North 75 degrees 51 minutes West, 58.94 feet (4) South 6 minutes East 121.32 feet to the place of beginning. Subject to the building restriction line as shown on said plat recorded in Liber County No. 15, folio 12, of the aforesaid Surveyor's Office Records. And further subject to the agreement in said plat of dedication recorded in Liber County No. 15, folio 12, of the aforesaid Surveyor's Office Records, that the area between said restriction lines and the line of the streets shall be subject to the regulations, restrictions and conditions as expressed in the Act of Congress of May 31, 1900, 31 Statutes at Large, page 249.

Now known for purposes of assessment and taxation as lot 808 in Square 2073.

Subject to the right of redemption by the maker of the aforesaid deed of trust, her heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from the date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semiannually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

LOOK PRETTY PLEASE!

Sah! There's a conspiracy ahead! To make every woman look prettier than ever this spring! It's the hat that does it! Delectable hats! Hats that are all over flowers! Bretons to make your profile pert and piquant! Senorita hats borrowed from Spain's great ladies! Sailors as gay as a young Jack Tar! Bonnets with a bit of veiling to make you look young and winsome! Every single hat for spring says "look pretty, please." And The Hecht Co.'s great spring hat collection tops them all—at prices that are definitely down to earth. (Third Floor)

The bonnet of porte bonheur straw with a quilted taffeta ribbon bow. Very young and becoming..... $5
